SUPREME COURT CHAMBERS,
CARSON CITY, NEVADA, December 15, 1911.

HON. GEORGE BRODIGAN, Secretary of State.

SIR: We, the undersigned, Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of Nevada, do hereby certify that the annexed is a true and full compilation of the general laws of the State of Nevada, as revised, compiled, annotated and indexed under an act of the legislature entitled "An act to provide for the revising, compiling, annotating and publishing the laws of the State of Nevada, and the compiling, annotating and publishing therewith certain laws of the United States of particular interest to the State of Nevada, and other matters properly connected therewith, and making appropriation therefor," which became a law March 31, 1909, and as amended March 20, 1911.

PREFACE

This work has been prepared pursuant to the act of the legislature of March 31, 1909 (sections 1001 to 1016 of this volume), which provides that "The justices of the supreme court of the State of Nevada shall constitute a commission to revise, compile, annotate and index the laws of the State of Nevada, and certain laws of the United States," as directed in different sections of the act, and to present new bills for the consideration of the succeeding legislature. The magnitude of the task proposed was greater than at first realized, and the labor necessarily involved in the preparation of a careful and complete revision of all the statutes of the state was more than could be accomplished in the time at the disposal of the commission. Proceeding as far as this part of the work could be done to the close of the legislative session, the commission revised and consolidated old and prepared new acts relating to the more important branches of the law, such as civil practice, crimes, and criminal practice, and these and an act comprehending a complete revision of the school laws of the state, were reenacted by the legislature of 1911. In the preparation of these the latest and most improved codes in various states were examined, sections which appeared beneficial and suitable to our conditions were adopted, amendments and changes were made, unnecessary requirements eliminated, new sections added, and more especially it was sought to make the law in relation to crimes more complete, and civil and criminal practice more simple, expeditious and inexpensive. The statement on motion for a new trial, which has heretofore caused delay and trouble in its amendment and settlement, is abolished, and a statement on appeal will no longer be necessary when the alleged errors appear upon the record, or except in cases where the evidence or other matter cannot be brought to the appellate court without the making and settlement of a statement.

As a basis for revision and compilation every act passed at the regular or special sessions of the legislature from 1861 to 1911, inclusive, has been examined and classified as general, special, local, amended, or repealed, and the books and manuscript showing these classifications have been retained for preservation in the archives of the secretary of state in contemplation of their use in preparing future revisions or compilations of the laws, in so far as they may relate to statutes passed to this time.

The preparation of the new act relating to schools was almost entirely the work of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Bray and Deputy Superintendents Abel, Anderson, Lightfoot, McKay, and Mitchell, and they are entitled to the credit for the painstaking labor involved in the revision of that important branch of the law, the commission being able to give only advice and slight assistance in this part of the revision which those officials readily undertook at the request of the commission.

As the work contains new features, arranged differently from any compilation heretofore published, an outline of its plan will be an aid to users.

Nearly all of the acts relating to civil practice, crimes, and criminal practice passed since the main civil practice act of 1869, the general crimes and punishments and the general criminal practice acts in 1861, have been consolidated with the main acts and enlarged with new sections, and the old ones worked over have been repealed.

The direction in section 5 of the act authorizing this compilation, that all acts unconstitutional shall not be included, the commission has deemed as applying only where statutes manifestly fell within some well-established rule of construction enunciated by the supreme court so as to leave not the slightest question of doubt as to constitutionality. In no way whatever should it be deemed that the appearance of any statute within this publication carries any expression of opinion upon the part of the compilers by virtue of their official positions, either as to construction or constitutionality.

Although not so classified, except in the table of contents, theoretically the work is arranged in four parts. The first contains Magna Carta, Declaration of Independence, Articles of Confederation, Federal and State Constitutions, and Enabling Acts. The third contains the statutes relating to courts, court officers, civil practice, divorce, adoption of children, estates of deceased persons, wills, guardians, and habeas corpus. The fourth contains the acts relating to crime, criminal practice, state prison and jails, pardons and paroles. The second contains the statutes of a general nature pertaining to the other branches of the law, with the titles in alphabetical order.

A little familiarity with this arrangement, and the knowledge that the acts relating to courts and civil practice are in the fore part and those concerning crimes in the last part of volume 2, will enable any one, without going to the table of contents or index, to turn to a desired title, with its schedule of acts and sections. The alphabetical list following this preface also permits of ready reference to the different titles. The next schedule shows the acts of Congress. The table of contents following gives a panoramic view of the whole work, and indicates where the various acts may be found.

At the heads of the more important acts are tables of statutory and constitutional cross-references, arranged separately and alphabetically. A number of acts were found to properly fall within either of two classifications, and when this occurred they were placed in that classification which seemed to the commission to be the more appropriate and a cross-reference made under the other classification.

The commission has endeavored by cross-references at the beginning of different subjects or titles, and under the various sections, to refer to sections in the same or other acts having a particular bearing upon the same subject-matter. Such cross-references should, however, be deemed only as an aid in finding the law upon a given subject, and whenever the importance of the investigation warrants resort should be had to the index for a more complete reference. The head-lines in large type above the sections of nearly all the titles, excepting the constitution and corporations, have been revised, and these have been given special care in the index.

The act in relation to marriage and divorce has been divided, and that portion of it relating to marriage has been placed under its own title in alphabetical order in volume 1, and the part relating to divorce and the act concerning the adoption of children have been inserted as subheads under civil practice in volume 2.

The federal constitution and acts of Congress relating to the organization of the territory and state, the land grants to the state, agricultural colleges, animal industry, bankruptcy, authentication of records, land, mining and water laws, townsites and rights of way on the public domain, and election of United States senator, which are as controlling and of as much interest to the people of the state as the enactments of our own legislature, have been included in the compilation. When pertinent to the same subjects, such as mines, public lands or water, as the state statutes, the acts of Congress have for convenience been placed adjoining and preceding the state statutes under the same title, and the federal and state sections are accompanied by notes under each giving reference to the other. The rules and regulations of various departments, boards and officers, both federal and state, which either have the force of statute or are essential in the application of statutory provisions, have been placed immediately after the statutory law to which they relate.

In kindly response to the solicitation of the commission, valuable suggestions were made by members of the bar, state and other public officials. It is desired to especially acknowledge the assistance rendered by the legislature; by Hon. Joe Farnsworth, superintendent of state printing; Hon. H. F. Bartine, chairman of the railroad commission, in the preparation and indexing of the laws affecting the railroads and the public utility commission act; Mr. Edward T. Patrick, in the review and classification of all the original territorial and state statutes and the insertion of annotations of most of the decisions under the greater part of the titles; and Mr. Walter D. Cole, in the examination and submission of the laws of other states for the use of the commission in the preparation of new acts for the legislature and insertion of most of the references to decisions relating to mines.

It is regretted that the magnitude of the undertaking has necessarily occasioned so much delay in publication. With a full consciousness of many imperfections, and with the realization that lack of time has rendered it impossible to bring the work to that high degree of excellence for which the commission has entertained a sincere purpose and earnestly labored, the compilation is finally submitted in the hope that, notwithstanding its defects, it will be a valuable aid to the people of the state and to some appreciable extent fulfil the object of the legislature.

MAGNA CARTA¹

THE GREAT CHARTER OF LIBERTIES OF KING JOHN

Granted at Runningmede, June 15, A. D. 1215, in the Seventeenth Year of His Reign

John, by the grace of God, King of England, Lord of Ireland, DUKE OF NORMANDY, Aquitaine, and Count of Anjou, to his Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Earls, Barons, Justiciaries, Foresters, Sheriffs, Governors, Officers, and to all Bailiffs, and his lieges, greeting. Know ye, that we, in the presence of God, and for the salvation of our soul, and the souls of all our ancestors and heirs, and unto the honor of God and the advancement of Holy Church, and amendment of our Realm, by advice of our venerable Fathers, STEPHEN, archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England and Cardinal of the Holy Roman Church, HENRY, Archbishop of Dublin, WILLIAM of London, PETER of Winchester, JOCELIN of Bath and Glastonbury, HUGH of Lincoln, WALTER of Worcester, WILLIAM of Coventry, BENEDICT of Rochester, Bishops; of Master PANDULPH, Sub-Deacon and Familiar of our Lord the Pope, Brother AYMERIC, Master of the Knights-Templars in England; and of the Noble Persons, WILLIAM MARESCALL, Earl of Pembroke, WILLIAM, Earl of Salisbury, WILLIAM, Earl of Warren, WILLIAM, Earl of Arundel, ALAN DE GALLOWAY, Constable of Scotland, WARIN FITZ GERALD, PETER FITZ HERBERT, and HERBERT DE BURGH, Seneschal of Poitou, HUGH DE NEVILLE, MATTHEW FITZ HERBERT, THOMAS BASSET, ALAN BASSET, PHILIP OF ALBINEY, ROBERT DE ROPPELL, JOHN MARESCHAL, JOHN FITZ HUGH, and others our liegemen, have in the first place, granted to God, and by this our present Charter confirmed, for us and our heirs for ever:

1. That the Church of England shall be free, and have her whole rights, and her liberties inviolable; and we will have them so observed, that it may appear thence, that the freedom of elections, which is reckoned chief and indispensable to the English Church, and which we granted and confirmed by our Charter, and obtained the confirmation of the same from our Lord the Pope Innocent III., before the discord between us and our barons, was granted of mere free will; which charter we shall observe, and we do will it to be faithfully observed by our heirs for ever.

2. We also have granted to all the freemen of our kingdom, for us and for our heirs for ever, all the underwritten liberties, to be had and holden by them and their heirs, of us and our heirs for ever: If any of our earls, or barons, or others, who hold of us in chief by military service, shall die, and at the time of his death his heir shall be of full age, and owes a relief, he shall have his inheritance by the ancient relief; that is to say, the heir or heirs of an earl, for a whole earldom, by a hundred pounds; the heir or heirs of a baron, for a whole barony, by a hundred pounds; the heir or heirs of a knight, for a whole knight's fee, by a hundred shillings at most; and whoever oweth less shall give less, according to the ancient custom of fees.

3. But if the heir of any such shall be under age, and shall be in ward when he comes of age, he shall have his inheritance without relief and without fine.

4. The keeper of the land of such an heir being under age, shall take of the land of the heir none but reasonable issues, reasonable customs, and reasonable services, and that without destruction and waste of his men and his goods; and if we commit the custody of any such lands to the sheriff or any other who is answerable to us for the issues of the land, and he shall make destruction and waste of the lands which he hath in custody, we will take of him amends, and the land shall be committed to two lawful and discreet men of that fee, who shall answer for the issues to us; or to him to whom we shall assign them, and if we sell or give to anyone the custody of any such lands, and he therein make destruction or waste, he shall lose the same custody, which shall be committed to two lawful and discreet men of that fee, who shall in like manner answer to us as aforesaid.

5. But the keeper, so long as he shall have custody of the land, shall keep up the houses, parks, warrens, ponds, mills, and other things pertaining to the land, out of the issues of the same land; and shall deliver to the heir, when he comes of full age, his whole land, stocked with plows and carriages, according as the time of wainage shall require, and the issues of the land can reasonably bear.

6. Heirs shall be married without disparagement, and so that before matrimony shall be contracted those who are near in blood to the heir shall have notice.

7. A widow, after the death of her husband, shall forthwith and without difficulty have her marriage and inheritance; nor shall she give anything for her dower, or her marriage, or her inheritance, which her husband and she held at the day of his death; and she may remain in the mansion house of her husband forty days after his death, within which term her dower shall be assigned.

8. No widow shall be distrained to marry herself, so long as she has a mind to live without a husband; but yet she shall give security that she will not marry without our assent, if she holds of us; or without the consent of the lord of whom she holds, if she holds of another.

9. Neither we nor our bailiffs shall seize any land or rent for any debt, so long as the chattels of the debtor are sufficient to pay the debt; nor shall the securities of the debtor be distrained so long as the principal debtor is sufficient for the payment of the debt; and if the principal debtor shall fail in the payment of the debt, not having wherewithal to pay it, then the sureties shall answer the debt; and if they will they shall have the lands and rents of the debtor, until they shall be satisfied for the debt which they paid for him, unless the principal debtor can show himself acquitted thereof against the said sureties.

10. If any one have borrowed anything of the Jews, more or less, and die before the debt be satisfied, there shall be no interest paid for that debt, so long as the heir is under age, of whomsoever he may hold; and if the debt fall into our hands we will only take the chattel mentioned in the deed.

11. And if anyone shall die indebted to the Jews, his wife shall have her dower and pay nothing of that debt; and if the deceased left children under age, they shall have necessaries provided for them, according to the tenement of the deceased; and out of the residue the debt shall be paid, saving however the service due to the lords; and in like manner shall it be done touching debts due to others than the Jews.

12. No scutage or aid shall be imposed in our kingdom, unless by the general council of our kingdom; except for ransoming our person, making our eldest son a knight, and once for marrying our eldest daughter; and for these there shall be paid a reasonable aid. In like manner it shall be concerning the aids of the City of London.

13. And the City of London shall have all its ancient liberties and free customs, as well by land as by water; furthermore we will and grant, that all other cities and boroughs, and towns and ports, shall have all their liberties and free customs.

14. And for holding the general council of the kingdom concerning the assessment of aids, except in the three cases aforesaid, and for the assessing of scutages, we shall cause to be summoned the archbishops, bishops, abbots, earls and greater barons of the realm, singly by our letters. And furthermore we shall cause to be summoned generally by our sheriffs and bailiffs, all others who hold of us in chief, for a certain day, that is to say, forty days before their meeting at least, and to a certain place; and in all letters of each summons we will declare the cause of such summons. And summons being thus made, the business of the day shall proceed on the day appointed, according to the advice of such as shall be present, although all that were summoned come not.

15. We will not for the future grant to any one that he may take aid of his own free tenants, unless to ransom his body, and to make his eldest son a knight, and once to marry his eldest daughter; and for this there shall be only paid a reasonable aid.

16. No man shall be distrained to perform more service for a knight's fee, or other free tenement, than is due from thence.

17. Common pleas shall not follow our court, but shall be holden in some place certain.

18. Assizes of novel disseisen, and of mort d'ancestor, and of darrien presentment, shall not be taken but in their proper counties, and after this manner. We, or, if we should be out of the realm, our chief justiciary, shall send two justiciaries through every county four times a year, who, with four knights, chosen out of every shire by the people, shall hold the said assizes, in the county, on the day, and at the place appointed.

19. And if any matters cannot be determined on the day appointed for holding the assizes in each county, so many of the knights and freeholders as have been at the assizes aforesaid, shall stay to decide them, as is necessary, according as there is more or less business.

20. A freeman shall not be amerced for a small fault, but after the manner of the fault; and for a great crime according to the heinousness of it, saving to him his contenment; and after the same manner a merchant, saving to him his merchandise, and a villein shall be amerced after the same manner, saving to him his wainage, if he falls under our mercy; and none of the aforesaid amerciaments shall be assessed but by the oath of honest men in the neighborhood.

21. Earls and barons shall not be amerced, but by their peërs, and after the degree of the offense.

22. No ecclesiastical person shall be amerced for his lay tenement, but according to the proportion of the others aforesaid, and not according to the value of his ecclesiastical benefice.

23. Neither a town nor any tenant shall be distrained to make bridges or banks, unless that anciently and of right they are bound to do it.

24. No sheriff, constable, coroner, or other our bailiffs, shall hold pleas of the crown.

25. All counties, hundreds, wapentakes, and tythings, shall stand at the old rents, without any increase, except in our demesne manors.

we have in our hands, or are possessed by others, and we are bound to warrant and make good, we shall have a respite till the term usually allowed the crusaders; excepting those things about which there is a plea depending, or whereof an inquest hath been made by our order, before we undertook the crusade, but when we return from our pilgrimage, or if perchance we tarry at home and do not make our pilgrimage, we will immediately cause full justice to be administered therein.

53. The same respite we shall have (and in the same manner above administering justice, disafforesting the forests or letting them continue) for disafforesting the forests which Henry our father, and our brother Richard have afforested; and for the keeping of the lands which are in another's fee, in the same manner as we have hitherto enjoyed those wardships, by reason of a fee held of us by knight's service; and for the abbeys founded in any other fee than our own, in which the lord of the fee says he has a right; and when we return from our pilgrimage, or if we tarry at home, and do not make our pilgrimage, we will immediately do full justice to all the complainants in this behalf.

54. No man shall be taken or imprisoned upon the appeal of a woman, for the death of any other than her husband.

55. All unjust and illegal fines made by us, and all amerciaments imposed unjustly and contrary to the law of the land, shall be entirely given up, or else be left to the decision of the five-and-twenty barons hereafter mentioned for the preservation of the peace, or of the major part of them, together with the aforesaid Stephen, archbishop of Canterbury, if he can be present, and others whom he shall think fit to take along with him; and if he cannot be present, the business shall notwithstanding go on without him; but so that if one or more of the aforesaid five-and-twenty barons be plaintiffs in the same cause, they shall be set aside as to what concerns this particular affair, and others be chosen in their room, out of the said five-and-twenty, and sworn by the rest to decide the matter.

56. If we have disseised or dispossessed the Welsh, of any lands, liberties, or other things, without the legal judgment of their peers, either in England or in Wales, they shall be immediately restored to them; and if any dispute arise upon this head, the matter shall be determined in the marche by the judgment of their peers; for tenements in England according to the law of England, for tenements in Wales, according to the law in Wales, for tenements of the marche according to the law of the marche; the same shall the Welsh do to us and our subjects.

57. As of all those things of which a Welshman hath, without the legal judgment of his peers, been disseised or deprived of by King Henry our father, or our brother King Richard, and which we either have in our hands, or others are possessed of, and we are obliged to warrant it, we shall have a respite till the time generally allowed the crusaders; excepting those things about which a suit is depending, or whereof an inquest has been made by our order, before we undertook the crusade; but when we return, or if we stay at home without performing our pilgrimage, we will immediately do them full justice according to the laws of the Welsh and of the parts before mentioned.

58. We will without delay dismiss the son of Llewelin, and all the Welsh hostages, and release them from the engagements they have entered into with us for the preservation of the peace.

59. We will treat with Alexander, King of Scots, concerning the restoring his sisters and hostages, and his right and liberties, in the same form and manner as we shall do to the rest of our barons of England; unless by the charters which we have from his father William, late King of Scots, it ought to be otherwise; but this shall be left to the determination of his peers in our court.

60. All the aforesaid customs and liberties, which we have granted to be holden in our kingdom, as much as it belongs to us towards our people of our kingdom, as well clergy as laity shall observe, as far as they are concerned towards their dependents.

61. And whereas, for the honour of God and the amendment of our kingdom, and for the better quieting the discord that has arisen between us and our barons, we have granted all these things aforesaid; willing to render them firm, and lasting, we do give and grant our subjects the underwritten security, namely; that the barons may choose five-and-twenty barons of the kingdom, whom they think convenient; who shall take care, with all their might, to hold and observe, and cause to be observed, the peace and liberties we have granted them, and by this our present charter confirmed; so that if we, our justiciary, our bailiffs, or any of our officers, shall in any circumstance fail in the performance of them, towards any person, or shall break through any of these articles of peace and security, and the offense be notified to four barons chosen out of the five-and-twenty before mentioned, the said four barons shall repair to us, or our justiciary, if we are out of the realm, and laying open the grievance, shall petition to have it redressed without delay; and if it be not redressed by us, or if we should chance to be out of the realm, if it should not be redressed by our justiciary, within forty days, reckoning from the time it has been notified to us, or to our justiciary, (if we should be out of the realm,) the four barons aforesaid shall lay the cause before the rest of the five-and-twenty barons, and the said five-and-twenty barons, together with the community of the whole kingdom, shall distrain and distress us in all possible ways, by seizing our castles, lands, possessions, and in any other manner they can, till the grievance is redressed according to their pleasure; saving harmless our own person, and the persons of our queen and children; and when it is redressed, they shall obey us as before. And any person whatsoever in the kingdom, may swear that he will obey the orders of the five-and-twenty barons aforesaid, in the execution of the premises, and will distress us, jointly with them, to the utmost of his power; and we give public and free liberty to any one that shall please to swear to this, and never will hinder any person from taking the same oath.

62. As for all those of our subjects who will not, of their own accord, swear to join the five-and-twenty barons in distraining and distressing us, we will issue orders to make them take the same oath as aforesaid. And if any one of the five-and-twenty barons dies, or goes out of the kingdom, or is hindered any other way from carrying the things aforesaid into execution, the rest of the said five-and-twenty barons may choose another in his room, at their discretion, who shall be sworn in like manner as the rest. In all things that are committed to the execution of these five-and-twenty barons, if when they are all assembled together, they should happen to disagree about any matter; and some of them, when summoned, will not, or cannot come, whenever is agreed upon, or enjoined, by the major part of those that are present, shall be reputed as firm and valid as if all the five-and-twenty had given their consent; and the aforesaid five-and-twenty shall swear, that all the premises they shall faithfully observe, and cause with all their power to be observed. And we will not by ourselves, or by any other, procure anything whereby any of these concessions and liberties may be revoked or lessened; and if any such thing be obtained, let it be null and void; neither shall we ever make use of it, either by ourselves or any other. And all the ill-will, indignations, and rancours that have arisen between us and our subjects, of the clergy and laity, from the first breaking out of the dissensions between us, we do fully remit and forgive; moreover all trespasses occasioned by the said dissensions, from Easter in the fifteenth year of the reign, till the restoration of peace and tranquility, we hereby entirely remit to all, both clergy and laity, and as far as in us lies do fully forgive. We have, moreover, caused to be made for them the letters patent testimonial of Stephen, lord archbishop of Canterbury, Henry, lord archbishop of Dublin, and the bishops aforesaid, as also of Master Pandulph, for the security and concessions aforesaid.

63. Wherefore we will and firmly enjoin, that the Church of England be free, and that all the men in our kingdom have and hold all the aforesaid liberties, rights, and concessions, truly and peaceably, freely and quietly, fully and wholly to themselves and their heirs, of us and our heirs, in all things and places, forever, as is aforesaid. It is also sworn, as well on our part as on the part of the barons, that all the things aforesaid shall be observed bona fide and without evil subtilty.

64. Given under our hand, in the presence of the witnesses above named, and many others, in the meadow called Runningmede, between Windsor and Staines the 15th day of June, in the 17th year of our reign. With the Seals of the King's Securities to Magna Charta and Shields of ye Barons in Arms.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE¹

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America:

65. When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

66. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; That, whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new Government laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government and to provide new Guards for their future security.

67. Such has been the patient sufference of these Colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world: He has refused his Assent to Laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operations till his Assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise, the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states, for that purpose obstructing the Laws for the Naturalization of foreigners, refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the consent of our Legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of, and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his Assent to their acts of pretended Legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from Punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering, fundamentally, the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with Power to Legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow citizens, taken Captive on the high Seas, to bear Arms against their Country, to become the excutioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rules of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

68. In every stage of these oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free People.

69. Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts made by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace, Friends.

70. We, therefore, the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IN GENERAL CONGRESS Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that as FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and do all other Acts and Things which INDEPENDENT STATES may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with firm reliance on the Protection of DIVINE PROVIDENCE we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor.

ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION¹

ADOPTED BY DELEGATES IN CONGRESS AT PHILADELPHIA, JULY 9, 1778

To all to whom these Presents shall come, we the undersigned Delegates of the States affixed to our Names send greeting:

71. Whereas the Delegates of the United States of America in Congress assembled did on the fifteenth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven, and in the second year of the Independence of America agree to certain articles of Confederation and perpetual Union between the States of New Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Rhodeisland and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North-Carolina, South-Carolina and Georgia in the Words following, viz:

"Articles of Confederation and perpetual Union between the States of New-hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Rhodeisland and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North-Carolina, South-Carolina, and Georgia."

72. ARTICLE I. The style of this confederacy shall be, "The United States of America."

73. ARTICLE II. Each State retains its sovereignty, freedom and independence, and every power, jurisdiction and right, which is not by this confederation expressly delegated to the United States in Congress assembled.

74. ARTICLE III. The said States hereby severally enter into a firm league of friendship with each other for their common defense, the security of their liberties, and their mutual and general welfare; binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to, or attacks made upon them, or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade, or any other pretense whatever.

75. ARTICLE IV. The better to secure and perpetuate mutual friendship and intercourse among the people of the different States in this Union, the free inhabitants of each of these States, paupers, vagabonds, and fugitives from justice excepted, shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several States; and the people of each State shall have free ingress and regress to and from any other State, and shall enjoy therein all the privileges of trade and commerce, subject to the same duties, impositions and restrictions, as the inhabitants thereof respectively: provided, That such restriction shall not extend so far as to prevent the removal of property imported into any State to any other State of which the owner is an inhabitant: provided, also, That no impositions, duties or restriction shall be laid by any State on the property of the United States, or either of them.

If any person, guilty of or charged with treason, felony, or other high misdemeanor, in any state shall flee from justice, and be found in any of the United States, he shall, upon demand of the Governor or Executive power of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, and removed to the State having jurisdiction of his offense. Full faith and credit shall be given in each of these States to the records, acts, and judicial proceedings of the courts and magistrates of every other State.

76. ARTICLE V. For the more convenient management of the general interests of the United States, delegates shall be annually appointed, in such manner as the legislature of each State shall direct, to meet in Congress on the first Monday of November, in every year, with a power reserved to each State to recall its delegates, or any of them, at any time within the year, and to send others in their stead for the remainder of the year.

No State shall be represented in Congress by less than two, nor more than seven members; and no person shall be capable of being a delegate for more than three years in any term of six years; nor shall any person, being a delegate, be capable of holding any office under the United States, for which he, or another for his benefit, receives any salary, fees, or emoluments of any kind. Each State shall maintain its own delegates in a meeting of the States, and while they act as members of the committee of the States.

In determining questions in the United States in Congress assembled, each State shall have one vote.

Freedom of speech and debate in Congress shall not be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Congress; and the members of Congress shall be protected in their persons from arrests and imprisonments during the time of their going to and from, and attendance on Congress, except for treason, felony, or breach of the peace.

77. ARTICLE VI. No State without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, shall send any embassy to, or receive an embassy from, or enter into any conference, agreement, alliance or treaty with any king, prince, or state; nor shall any person holding any office of profit or trust under the United States, or any of them, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever, from any king, prince or foreign state; nor shall the United States in Congress assembled, or any of them grant any title of nobility.

No two or more States shall enter into any treaty, confederation, or alliance whatever between them, without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, specifying accurately the purposes for which the same is to be entered into, and how long it shall continue.

No State shall lay any imposts or duties, which may interfere with any stipulations in treaties entered into by the United States in Congress assembled, with any king, prince or state, in pursuance of any treaties already proposed by Congress to the courts of France and Spain.

No vessels of war shall be kept up in time of peace by any State, except such number only as shall be deemed necessary by the United States in Congress assembled, for the defense of such State or its trade; nor shall any body of forces be kept up by any State in time of peace, except such number only, as in the judgment of the United States in Congress assembled, shall be deemed requisite to garrison the forts necessary for the defense of such State; but every State shall always keep up a well regulated and disciplined militia, sufficiently armed and accoutered, and shall provide, and constantly have ready for use, in public stores, a due number of field pieces and tents, and a proper quantity of arms, ammunition and camp equipage.

No State shall engage in any war without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, unless such State be actually invaded by enemies, or shall have received certain advice of a resolution being formed by some nation of Indians to invade such State, and the danger is so imminent as not to admit of a delay till the United States in Congress assembled, can be consulted; nor shall any State grant commissions to any ships or vessels of war, nor letters of marque or reprisal, except it be after a declaration of war by the United States in Congress assembled; and then only against the kingdom or state, and the subjects thereof, against which war has been so declared, and under such regulations as shall be established by the United States in Congress assembled; unless such States be invested by pirates; in which case vessels of war may be fitted out for that occasion, and kept so long as the danger shall continue, or until the United States in Congress assembled shall determine otherwise.

78. ARTICLE VII. When land forces are raised by any State for the common defense, all officers of or under the rank of colonel, shall be appointed by the legislature of each State respectively, by whom such forces shall be raised, or in such manner as such State shall direct; and all vacancies shall be filled up by the State which first made the appointment.

79. ARTICLE VIII. All charges of war and all other expenses that shall be incurred for the common defense or general welfare, and allowed by the United States in Congress assembled, shall be defrayed out of a common treasury, which shall be supplied by the several States, in proportion to the value of all land within each State, granted to, or surveyed for, any person, as such land and the buildings and improvements thereon shall be estimated according to such mode as the United States in Congress assembled, shall from time to time, direct and appoint.

The taxes for paying that proportion, shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the Legislatures of the several States, within the time agreed upon by the United States in Congress assembled.

80. ARTICLE IX. The United States in Congress assembled, shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article—of sending and receiving ambassadors—entering into treaties and alliances; provided, That no treaty of commerce shall be made, whereby the legislative power of the respective States, shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever—of establishing rules for deciding, in all cases, what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated—of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace—appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of captures: provided, That no member of Congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

The United States in Congress assembled shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting, or that hereafter may arise between two or more States, concerning boundary, jurisdiction, or any other cause whatever; which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following: whenever the legislative or executive authority, or lawful agent of any State in controversy with another, shall present a petition to Congress, stating the matter in question, and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of Congress, to the legislative or executive authority of the other State in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agents, who shall then be directed to appoint by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining the matter in question; but if they cannot agree, Congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the list of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen; and from that number not less than seven nor more than nine names, as Congress shall direct, shall in the presence of Congress be drawn out by lot; and the persons whose names shall be so drawn, or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges to hear, and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges, who shall hear the cause, shall agree in the determination; and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed, without showing reasons which Congress shall judge sufficient, or, being present shall refuse to strike, the Congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each state, and the Secretary of Congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgment and sentence of the court to be appointed in the manner before prescribed, shall be final and conclusive. And if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court or to appear or defend their claim or cause, the court shall, nevertheless, proceed to pronounce sentence or judgment, which shall, in like manner, be final and decisive, the judgment or sentence and other proceedings being in either case transmitted to Congress, and lodged among the acts of Congress, for the security of the parties concerned: provided, That every commissioner, before he sits in judgment, shall take an oath, to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior court of the state where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgment, without favor, affection, or hope of reward:" provided, also, That no State shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.

All controversies concerning the private right of soil, claimed under different grants of two or more States, whose jurisdiction, as they may respect such lands and the States which passed such grants, are adjusted, the said grants, or either of them, being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall, on the petition of either party to the Congress of the United States, be finally determined, as near as may be, in the same manner as is before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different States. The United States in Congress assembled, shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective States—fixing the standard of weights and measures throughout the United States—regulating the trade, and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the states: provided, that the legislative right of any State within its own limits be not infringed or violated—establishing and regulating post-offices from one State to another throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing thro' the same as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office—appointing all officers of the land forces in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers—appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States—making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall have authority to appoint a committee to sit in the recess of Congress, to be denominated, "a Committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each State; and to appoint such other committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the United States, under their direction—to appoint one of their number to preside; provided, That no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses—to borrow money or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half year to the respective states an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted—to build and equip a navy—to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each state for its quota, in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such state; which requisition shall be binding, and thereupon the Legislature of each State shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men, and cloath, arm, and equip them in a soldier-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men so cloathed, armed, and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in Congress assembled: but if the United States in Congress assembled shall, on consideration of circumstances, judge proper that any state should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number than its quota, and that any other State, should raise a greater number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, cloathed, armed and equipped in the same manner as the quota of such state, unless the legislature of such State shall judge that such extra number cannot be safely spared out of the same; in which case they shall raise, officer, cloath, arm and equip as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared; and the officers and men, so cloathed, armed and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in Congress assembled.

The United States in Congress assembled, shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque and reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander-in-chief of the army or navy, unless nine States assent to the same; nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day, be determined, unless by the votes of a majority of the United States in Congress assembled.

The Congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months; and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances, or military operations, as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each State on any question shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate; and the delegates of a State, or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the Legislatures of the several States.

81. ARTICLE X. The committee of the States, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of Congress, such of the powers of Congress as the United States in Congress assembled, by the consent of nine States, shall from time to time, think expedient to vest them with: provided, That no power be delegated to the said committee, for the exercise of which, by the articles of confederation the voice of nine States in the Congress of the United States assembled is requisite.

82. ARTICLE XI. Canada, acceding to this confederation, and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into, and entitled to all the advantages of this Union; but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine states.

83. ARTICLE XII. All bills of credit emitted, moneys borrowed, and debts contracted by or under the authority of Congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

84. ARTICLE XIII. Every State shall abide by the determinations of the United States in Congress assembled, on all questions which, by this confederation, are submitted to them. And the articles of this confederation shall be inviolably observed by every State, and the Union shall be perpetual;

nor shall any alteration at any time hereafter be made in any of them, unless such alteration be agreed to in a Congress of the United States, and be afterwards confirmed by the Legislatures of every State.

And, whereas, it has pleased the Great Governor of the world to incline the hearts of the Legislatures we respectively represent in Congress, to approve of, and to authorize us to ratify the said articles of confederation and perpetual union. KNOW YE, That we, the undersigned delegates, by virtue of the power and authority to us given for that purpose, do, by these presents, in the name and in behalf of our respective constituents, fully and entirely ratify and confirm each and every of the said articles of confederation and perpetual Union, and all and singular the matters and things therein contained, and we do further solemnly plight and engage the faith of our respective constituents, that they shall abide by the determinations of the United States in Congress assembled, on all questions, which, by the said confederation, are submitted to them; and that the articles thereof shall be inviolably observed by the States we re[s]pectively represent; and that the Union shall be perpetual.

In May, 1785, a committee of Congress made a report recommending an alteration in the Articles of Confederation, but no action was taken on it, and it was left to the State Legislatures to proceed in the matter. In January, 1786, the Legislature of Virginia passed a resolution providing for the appointment of five commissioners, who, or any three of them, should meet such commissioners as might be appointed in the other States of the Union, at a time and place to be agreed upon, to take into consideration the trade of the United States; to consider how far a uniform system in their commercial regulations may be necessary to their common interest and their permanent harmony; and to report to the several States such an act, relative to this great object, as, when ratified by them, will enable the United States in Congress effectually to provide for the same. The Virginia commissioners, after some correspondence, fixed the first Monday in September as the time, and the city of Annapolis as the place for the meeting, but only four other States were represented, viz: Delaware, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania; the commissioners appointed by Massachusetts, New Hampshire, North Carolina, and Rhode Island failed to attend. Under the circumstances of so partial a representation, the commissioners present agreed upon a report (drawn by Mr. Hamilton, of New York), expressing their unanimous conviction that it might essentially tend to advance the interests of the Union if the States by which they were respectfully delegated would concur, and use their endeavors to procure the concurrence of the other States, in the appointment of commissioners to meet at Philadelphia on the second Monday of May following, to take into consideration the situation of the United States; to devise such further provisions as should appear to them necessary to render the Constitution of the Federal Government adequate to the exigencies of the Union; and to report such an act for that purpose to the United States in Congress assembled as, when agreed to by them and afterwards confirmed by the Legislatures of every State, would effectually provide for the same.

Congress, on the 21st of February, 1787, adopted a resolution in favor of a convention, and the Legislatures of those States which had not already done so (with the exception of Rhode Island) promptly appointed delegates. On the 25th of May, seven States having convened, George Washington, of Virginia, was unanimously elected President, and the consideration of the proposed constitution was commenced. On the 17th of September, 1787, the Constitution as engrossed and agreed upon was signed by all the members present, except Mr. Gerry, of Massachusetts, and Messrs. Mason and Randolph, of Virginia. The president of the convention transmitted it to Congress, with a resolution stating how the proposed Federal Government should be put in operation, and an explanatory letter. Congress, on the 28th of September, 1787, directed the Constitution so framed, with the resolutions and letter containing the same, to "be transmitted to the several Legislatures in order to be submitted to a convention of delegates chosen in each State by the people thereof, in conformity to the resolves of the convention."

On the 4th of March, 1789, the day which had been fixed for commencing the operations of Government under the new Constitution, it had been ratified by the conventions chosen in each State to consider it, as follows: Delaware, December 7, 1787; Pennsylvania, December 12, 1787; New Jersey, December 18, 1787; Georgia, January 2, 1788; Connecticut, January 9, 1788; Massachusetts, February 6, 1788; Maryland, April 28, 1788; South Carolina, May 23, 1788; New Hampshire, June 21, 1788; Virginia, June 26, 1788; and New York, July 26, 1788.

The President informed Congress, on the 28th of January, 1790, that North Carolina had ratified the Constitution November 21, 1789; and he informed Congress on the 1st of June, 1790, that Rhode Island had ratified the Constitution May 29, 1789. Vermont, in convention, ratified the Constitution January 10, 1791, and was, by an act of Congress approved February 18, 1791, "received and admitted into this Union as a new and entire member of the United States."

The Constitution was adopted by the Convention on the 17th of September, 1787, appointed in pursuance of the resolution of the Congress of the Confederation of the 21st of February, 1787, and ratified by the conventions of the several States, as follows:

Delaware, December 7, 1787, unanimously.

Pennsylvania, December 12, 1787, by a vote of 46 to 23.

New Jersey, December 18, 1787, unanimously.

Georgia, January 2, 1788, unanimously.

Connecticut, January 9, 1788, by a vote of 128 to 40.

Massachusetts, February 6, 1788, by a vote of 187 to 168.

Maryland, April 28, 1788, by a vote of 63 to 12.

South Carolina, May 23, 1788, by a vote of 149 to 73.

New Hampshire, June 21, 1788, by a vote of 57 to 47.

Virginia, June 25, 1788, by a vote of 89 to 79.

New York, July 26, 1788, by a vote of 30 to 25.

North Carolina, November 21, 1789, by a vote of 193 to 75.

Rhode Island, May 29, 1790, by a majority of 2.

Vermont, January 10, 1791, by a vote of 105 to 4.

Declared ratified by resolution of the old Congress, September 13, 1788.

[The adoption of the Constitution was opposed by many who believed that the extensive powers granted by it to Congress and the executive would be dangerous to the liberties of the people. It was, however, finally adopted chiefly through the exertions and writings of James Madison, John Jay, and Alexander Hamilton. Virginia ratified the Constitution with the declaration that she was at liberty to withdraw from the Union whenever its powers were used for oppression; and New York, after Hamilton had declared that no State should ever be coerced by an armed force. There were two great parties: The Federalists, in favor of a strong, centralized government, and the Anti-Federalists, supporters of State's rights. Washington and Adams, Federalist leaders, were elected, and the government was organized with Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of State; Alexander Hamilton, Secretary of the Treasury; Henry Knox, Secretary of War, and John Jay, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.]

ACT OF CONGRESS

ORGANIZING THE TERRITORY OF NEVADA

AN ACT TO ORGANIZE THE TERRITORY OF NEVADA

[Approved March 2, 1861]

The organic act, in a territory, to some extent, stands in the place of a constitution. Sawyer v. Hayden, 1 Nev. 79.

Boundaries—California may cede—Rights of Indians—Territory may be divided.

192. Be it enacted, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all that part of the territory of the United States, included within the following limits, to-wit:—Beginning at the point of intersection of the forty-second degree of north latitude with the thirty-ninth degree of longitude west from Washington; thence, running south on the line of said thirty-ninth degree of west longitude, until it intersects the northern boundary line of the territory of New Mexico; thence due west, to the dividing ridge separating the waters of Carson Valley from those that flow into the Pacific; thence on said dividing ridge northwardly to the forty-first degree of north latitude; thence due north to the southern boundary line of the state of Oregon; thence due east to the point of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, erected into a temporary government, by the name of the territory of Nevada; provided, that so much of the territory within the present limits of the state of California, shall not be included within this territory until the state of California shall assent to the same, by an act irrevocable without the consent of the United States; provided, further, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to impair the rights of person or property now pertaining to the Indians in said territory, so long as such rights shall remain unextinguished by treaty between the United States and such Indians, or to include any territory which, by treaty with any Indian tribe, is not, without the consent of said tribe to be included within the territorial limits, or jurisdiction of any state or territory, but all such territory shall be excepted out of the boundaries, and constitute no part of the territory of Nevada, until said tribe shall signify their assent to the President of the United States, to be included within the said territory, or to affect the authority of the government of the United States to make any regulations respecting such Indians, their lands, property, or other rights, by treaty, law, or otherwise, which it would have been competent for the government to make if this act had never passed; provided, further, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to inhibit the government of the United States from dividing said territory into two or more territories, in such manner and at such times as Congress shall deem convenient and proper, or from attaching any portion thereof to any other territory or state.

The courts of this state have no jurisdiction to try an Indian belonging to a tribe which is recognized and treated as such by the government of the United States, having its chief and tribal laws, for killing another Indian belonging to the same tribe. State v. McKenney, 18 Nev. 182, 193.

As both Indians were under the authority and subjection of such tribal laws, the authorities of the tribe alone have the right to take cognizance of the crime. It is not the intention of the legislature that the territorial or state laws defining crime and providing for their punishment should apply to crimes committed by Indians against each other, living in their tribal relations. The courts of this state could only obtain jurisdiction of such offenses by an affirmative act of the legislature, or a self-enacting clause of the constitution. State v. McKenney, 18 Nev. 182, 193.

Executive power—Commander-in-chief—Superintendent of Indian affairs—Governor, powers of.

193. SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the executive power and authority in and over said territory of Nevada, shall be vested in a governor, who shall hold his office for four years and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the president of the United States. The governor shall reside within said territory, shall be commander-in-chief of the militia thereof, shall perform the duties and receive the emoluments of superintendent of Indian affairs, and shall approve all laws passed by the legislative assembly before they shall take effect; he may grant pardons for offenses against the laws of said territory, and reprieves for offenses against the laws of the United States, until the decision of the president can be made known thereon; he shall commission all officers who shall be appointed to office under the laws of said territory, and shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

The Governor of Nevada Territory was, by law, made a part of the legislative body; as such he could only concur in the passage of a law, whilst the other branches had a legal existence. The act in question is not a law, because it was not approved by the Governor before the adjournment of the legislative assembly. School Trustees v. County Commissioners of Ormsby County, 1 Nev. 340, 341.

Said Governor had the right to pardon absolutely or conditionally, but no right to commute one punishment for another. Ex Parte James, 1 Nev. 319, 321.

See State v. McKenney, 18 Nev. 182, 193, under sec. 1 of this act.

Secretary of territory, duties of—When Acting Governor.

194. SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That there shall be a secretary of said territory, who shall reside therein, and hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president of the United States; he shall record and preserve all the laws and proceedings of the legislative assembly hereinafter constituted, and all the acts and proceedings of the governor in his executive department; he shall transmit one copy of the laws and one copy of the executive proceedings, on or before the first day of December in each year, to the President of the United States, and at the same time two copies of the laws to the speaker of the house of representatives and president of the senate, for the use of congress; and in case of the death, removal, or resignation, or other necessary absence of the governor from the territory, the secretary shall have, and he is hereby authorized and required, to execute and perform all the powers and duties of the governor, during such vacancy, or necessary absence, or until another governor shall be duly appointed to fill such vacancy.

Legislative power, in whom vested—Council, members of—House of Representatives, members of—Apportionment—Census—Election—Legislative Assembly, meeting of—Term of.

195. SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the legislative power and authority of said territory shall be vested in the governor, and a legislative assembly. The legislative assembly shall consist of a council and house of representatives. The council shall consist of nine members, which may be increased to thirteen, having the qualifications of voters as hereinafter prescribed, whose term of service shall continue two years. The house of representatives shall consist of thirteen members, which may be increased to twenty-six, possessing the same qualifications as prescribed for members of the council, and whose term of service shall continue one year. An apportionment shall be made, as nearly equal as practicable, among the several counties or districts, for the election of the council and of the house of representatives, giving to each section of the territory representation in the ratio of its population (Indians excepted), as nearly as may be; and the members of the council and of the house of representatives shall reside in, and be inhabitants of the district for which they may be elected, respectively. Previous to the first election, the governor shall cause a census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the several counties and districts of the territory to be taken; and the first election shall be held at such time and places, and be conducted in such manner as the governor shall appoint and direct; and he shall, at the same time, declare the number of the members of the council and house of representatives to which each of the counties or districts shall be entitled under this act. The number of persons authorized to be elected having the highest number of votes in each of said council districts for members of the council shall be declared by the governor to be duly elected to the council; and the person or persons authorized to be elected having the greatest number of votes for the house of representatives, equal to the number to which each county or district shall be entitled, shall be declared by the governor to be elected members of the house of representatives; provided, that in case of a tie between two or more persons voted for, the governor shall order a new election, to supply the vacancy made by such tie. And the persons thus elected to the legislative assembly, shall meet at such place and on such day as the governor shall appoint; but thereafter, the time, place, and manner of holding and conducting all elections by the people, and the apportioning the representations, in the several counties or districts, to the council and house of representatives, according to the population, shall be prescribed by law, as well as the day of the commencement of the regular sessions of the legislative assembly; provided, that no one session shall exceed the term of forty days, except the first, which may be extended to sixty days, but no longer.

See State v. McKenney, 18 Nev. 182, 193, under sec. 1 of this act.

See School Trustees v. County Commissioners of Ormsby County, 1 Nev. 340, 341, under sec. 2 of this act.

Voters, qualification of—Who to hold office.

196. SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That every free white male inhabitant of the United States above the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of said territory at the time of the passage of this act, shall be entitled to vote at the first election, and shall be eligible to any office within the said territory; but the qualifications of voters, and of holding office at all subsequent elections shall be such as shall be prescribed by the legislative assembly; provided, that the right of suffrage and of holding office shall be exercised only by citizens of the United States, and those who shall have declared on oath their intention to become such, and shall have taken an oath to support the constitution of the United States.

Legislative power, what to extend to.

197. SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That the legislative power of the territory shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation consistent with the constitution of the United States, and the provisions of this act; but no law shall be passed interfering with the primary disposal of the soil; no tax shall be imposed upon the property of the United States; nor shall the lands or other property of non-residents be taxed higher than the lands or other property of residents; nor shall any law be passed impairing the rights of private property; nor shall any discrimination be made in taxing different kinds of property; but all property subject to taxation shall be in proportion to the value of the property taxed.

Taxation of the possessory right is not in violation of this section. The object of this section was to protect the government, and not to prevent the taxation of settlers on public lands. Hale and Norcross G. & S. M. Co. v. Storey County, 1 Nev. 104, 105, 106, 107.

See State v. McKenney, 18 Nev. 182, 193, under sec. 1 of this act.

Certain officers, how appointed.

198. SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That all township, district, and county officers, not herein otherwise provided for, shall be appointed, or elected, as the case may be, in such manner as shall be provided by the governor and legislative assembly of the territory. The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the legislative council, appoint all officers not herein otherwise provided for; and, in the first instance, the governor alone may appoint all said officers, who shall hold their offices until the end of the first session of the legislative assembly, and shall lay off the necessary districts for members of the council and house of representatives, and all other officers.

Restrictions on members of legislative assembly.

199. SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That no member of the legislative assembly shall hold or be appointed to any office which shall have been created, or the salary or emoluments of which shall have been increased while he was a member, during the term for which he was elected, and for one year after the expiration of such term; and no person holding a commission or appointment under the United States, except postmasters, shall be a member of the legislative assembly, or shall hold any office under the government of said territory.

Judicial power, how vested—Supreme Court, what to consist—Judicial Districts—Jurisdiction of Courts—Proviso—Register in Chancery—Writs, etc.—Courts, clerk of—Writs of error and appeals, proceedings on—Habeas corpus—Fees of clerks of court.

200. SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the judicial power of said territory shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts, and in justices of the peace. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and who shall hold a term at the seat of government of said territory annually, and they shall hold their offices during the period of four years. The said territory shall be divided into three judicial districts, and a district court shall be held in each of said districts by one of the justices of the supreme court, at such time and place as may be prescribed by law; and the said judges shall, after their appointments, respectively, reside in the districts which shall be assigned them. The jurisdiction of the several courts herein provided for, both appellate and original, and that of the probate courts and of the justices of the peace, shall be as limited by law; provided, that justices of the peace shall not have jurisdiction of any matter in controversy when the title of boundaries of land may be in dispute, or where the debt or sum claimed shall exceed one hundred dollars; and the said supreme and district courts, respectively, shall possess chancery as well as common law jurisdiction; and authority for redress of all wrongs committed against the constitution or laws of the United States, or the territory, affecting persons or property. Each district court, or the judge thereof, shall appoint its clerk, who shall also be the register in chancery, and shall keep his office at the place where the court may be held. Writs of error, bills of exception, and appeals, shall be allowed in all cases from the final decisions of said district courts to the supreme court, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; but in no case removed to the supreme court shall trial by jury be allowed in said court. The supreme court, or the justices thereof, shall appoint its own clerk, and every clerk shall hold his office at the pleasure of the court for which he shall have been appointed. Writs of error and appeals from the final decisions of said supreme court shall be allowed, and may be taken to the supreme court of the United States, in the same manner and under the same regulations as from the circuit courts of the United States, where the value of the property, or the amount in controversy, to be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of either party, or other competent witnesses, shall exceed one thousand dollars; and each of the said district courts shall have and exercise the same jurisdiction in all cases arising under the constitution and laws of the United States, as is vested in the circuit and district courts of the United States; and the said supreme and district courts of the said territory, and the respective judges thereof, shall and may grant writs of habeas corpus in all cases in which the same are grantable by the judges of the United States in the District of Columbia; and the first six days of every term of said courts, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be appropriated to the trial of causes arising under the said constitution and laws, and writs of error and appeals in all such cases shall be made to the supreme court of said territory, the same as in other cases. The said clerk shall receive, in all such cases, the same fees which the clerks of the district courts of Utah Territory now receive for similar services.

Under the organic act and laws of the Territory of Nevada, no appeal could be taken from an order made by a referee. Hamilton v. Kneeland, 1 Nev. 40, 55.

The right of appeal must be governed by the laws in force at the time the appeal is taken. A case commenced in the territorial courts, and appealed to the Supreme Court of the territory, but decided by the Supreme Court of the State of Nevada, cannot be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, merely because the organic act of the territory allowed it at the time the action was commenced. Such an inchoate right of appeal is not a vested right. Hamilton v. Kneeland, 1 Nev. 60, 63, 66, 67.

The organic act of the territory limiting the jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace to cases where the debt or sum claimed does not exceed $100, is applicable to an action in tort for damages, as well as to an action on contract. Armstrong v. Paul, 1 Nev. 134, 139, 140.

Prior to the adoption of the constitution, the district courts had jurisdiction in all cases over $100. Paul v. Beegan, 1 Nev. 330.

Attorney for territory, compensation—Marshal, compensation.

201. SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed an attorney for said territory, who shall continue in office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president, and who shall receive the same fees and salary as the attorney of the United States for the present territory of Utah. There shall also be a marshal for the territory appointed, who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president, and who shall execute all processes issuing from the said courts when exercising their jurisdiction as circuit and district courts of the United States; he shall perform the duties, be subject to the same regulations and penalties, and be entitled to the same fees, as the marshal of the district court of the United States for the present territory of Utah, and shall, in addition, be paid two hundred dollars annually as a compensation for extra services.

Territorial officers, appointment of—Oaths of office, how taken—To be certified to—Salaries, how paid—Members of legislative assembly, compensation of—Contingent expenses—Incidental and legislative expenses.

The governor and secretary, to be appointed as aforesaid, shall, before they act as such, respectively take an oath or affirmation before the district judge, or some justice of the peace in the limits of said territory, duly authorized to administer oaths and affirmations by the laws now in force therein, or before the chief justice, or some associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, to support the constitution of the United States, and faithfully to discharge the duties of their respective offices; which said oaths, when so taken, shall be certified by the person by whom the same shall have been taken, and such certificates shall be received and recorded by the secretary among the executive proceedings; and the chief justice and associate justices, and all other civil officers in said territory, before they act as such, shall take a like oath or affirmation before the said governor or secretary, or some judge or justice of the peace of the territory, who may be duly commissioned and qualified, which said oath or affirmation shall be certified and transmitted by the person taking the same to the secretary, to be by him recorded as aforesaid; and afterwards, the like oath or affirmation shall be taken, certified, and recorded in such manner and form as may be prescribed by law. The governor shall receive an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars as governor, and one thousand dollars as superintendent of Indian affairs; the chief justice and associate justices shall each receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars; the secretary shall receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars. The said salaries shall be paid quarter-yearly at the treasury of the United States. The members of the legislative assembly shall be entitled to receive three dollars each per day during their attendance at the session thereof, and three dollars for every twenty miles' travel in going to and returning from the said session, estimated according to the nearest usually traveled route. There shall be appropriated annually the sum of one thousand dollars, to be expended by the governor to defray the contingent expenses of the territory. There shall also be appropriated annually a sufficient sum, to be expended by the secretary of the territory, and upon an estimate to be made by the secretary of the treasury of the United States, to defray the expenses of the legislative assembly, the printing of the laws, and other incidental expenses, and the secretary of the territory shall annually account to the secretary of the treasury of the United States for the manner in which the aforesaid sum shall have been expended.

Legislative assembly, time for holding first session.

203. SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That the legislative assembly of the territory of Nevada shall hold its first session at such time and place in said territory as the governor thereof shall appoint and direct; and at said first session, or as soon thereafter as they shall deem expedient, the governor and legislative assembly shall proceed to locate and establish the seat of government for said territory at such place as they may deem eligible; which place, however, shall thereafter be subject to be changed by the said governor and legislative assembly.

204. SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That a delegate to the house of representatives of the United States, to serve during each congress of the United States, may be elected by the voters qualified to elect members of the legislative assembly, who shall be entitled to the same rights and privileges as are exercised and enjoyed by the delegates from the several other territories of the United States to the said house of representatives. The first election shall be held at such time and places, and be conducted in such manner, as the governor shall appoint and direct; and at all subsequent elections, the times, places, and manner of holding elections, shall be prescribed by law. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be declared by the governor to be duly elected, and a certificate thereof shall be given accordingly.

Land reserved for school purposes.

205. SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That when the land in said territory shall be surveyed, under the direction of the government of the United States, preparatory to bringing the same into market, sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in each township in said territory shall be, and the same is hereby, reserved for the purpose of being applied to schools in the states hereafter to be erected out of the same.

Governor to define judicial districts and assign judges.

206. SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That temporarily, and until otherwise provided by law, the governor of said territory may define the judicial districts of said territory, and assign the judges who may be appointed for said territory to the several districts, and also appoint the times and places for holding courts in the several counties or subdivisions in each of said judicial districts, by proclamation to be issued by him; but the legislative assembly, at their first or any subsequent session, may organize, alter, or modify such judicial districts, and assign the judges, and alter the times and places of holding the courts, as to them shall seem proper and convenient.

Constitution and laws of United States applicable.

207. SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the constitution and all laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable, shall have the Representative in Congress.

214. SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That until the next general census shall be taken, said State of Nevada shall be entitled to one representative in the House of Representatives of the United States, which representative, together with the Governor and State and other officers provided for in said Constitution, may be elected on the same day a vote is taken for or against the proposed Constitution and State government.

School lands.

215. SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That sections numbers sixteen and thirty-six, in every township, and where such sections have been sold or otherwise disposed of by an Act of Congress, other lands equivalent thereto in legal subdivisions of not less than one quarter section, and as contiguous as may be, shall be, and are hereby granted to said State for the support of common schools.

The state was entitled to all 16th and 36th sections of the public lands as fast as they were segregated by survey, and the survey affirmed. Wall v. Blasdel, 4 Nev. 246.

Assuming that the proper construction of above section is, that the grant of the 16th and 36th sections took effect absolutely upon the admission of this state into the union, and that the title to said lands then vested in this state: Held, that the Congress could thereafter, with the consent of this state, prior to the disposal by the state of any of the lands embraced in said sections, and at any time prior to the survey, change the terms of the grant. Heydenfeldt v. Daney G. & S. M. Co., 10 Nev. 290, 308, 309, 317.

This section must be construed as a grant to the state in presenti, in the nature of a float, taking effect upon specific tracts of land as soon as the same are surveyed by the United States, and not before. Layton v. Farrell, 11 Nev. 451, 455, 456.

Lands for public buildings.

216. SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That provided the State of Nevada shall be admitted into the Union, in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Act, that twenty entire sections of the unappropriated public lands within said State to be selected, and located by direction of the legislature thereof, on or before the first day of January, Anno Domini eighteen hundred and sixty eight, shall be, and they are hereby granted, in legal subdivisions of not less than one hundred and sixty acres, to said State, for the purpose of erecting public buildings at the capital of said State, for legislative and judicial purposes, in such manner as the legislature shall prescribe.

For penitentiary building.

217. SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That twenty other entire sections of land, as aforesaid, to be selected and located as aforesaid, in legal subdivisions as aforesaid, shall be and they are hereby granted to said State for the purpose of erecting a suitable building for a penitentiary or State Prison, in the manner aforesaid.

Five per cent of sales of public lands, for roads, etc.

218. SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That five per centum of the proceeds of the sales of all public lands lying within said State, which shall be sold by the United States subsequent to the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to the said State for the purpose of making and improving public roads, constructing ditches or canals, to effect a general system of irrigation of the agricultural lands in the State, as the legislature shall direct.

The State stands in the position of an ordinary trustee as to all these lands, except the 90,000 acres granted for the purpose of establishing an agricultural or mining college, as to which it has undertaken to bear the expenses of converting the trust lands into interest-bearing bonds without calling on the trust fund for reimbursement. State ex rel. Greenbaum v. Rhoades, 4 Nev. 312, 314.

Laws of United States made applicable—Judicial district.

219. SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That from and after the admission of the said State of Nevada into the Union, in pursuance of this Act, the laws of the United States, not locally inapplicable, shall have the same force and effect within the said State, as elsewhere within the United States, and said State shall constitute one judicial district, and be called the District of Nevada.

Approved March 21, 1864.

AN ACT TO AMEND AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT TO ENABLE THE PEOPLE OF NEVADA TO FORM A CONSTITUTION AND STATE GOVERNMENT, AND FOR THE ADMISSION OF SUCH STATE INTO THE UNION ON AN EQUAL FOOTING WITH THE ORIGINAL STATES."

Constitution of Nevada to be submitted to popular vote, on the first Wednesday of September.

220. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That so much of the fifth section of the act to which this act is an amendment as provides by ordinance for submitting the Constitution to the people of said State, for their ratification or rejection, at an election to be held on the second Tuesday of October, be so amended as to read "on the first Wednesday of September," and that the election for the purposes aforesaid be held on that day instead of the second Tuesday of October.

Approved May 21, 1864.

226. WHEREAS, The Act of Congress approved March Twenty First A. D. Eighteen Hundred and Sixty Four "To enable the People of the Territory of Nevada to form a Constitution and State Government and for the admission of such State into the Union on an equal footing with the Original States," requires that the Members of the Convention for framing said Constitution shall, after Organization, on behalf of the people of said Territory adopt the Constitution of the United States. Therefore, Be it Resolved,

227. That the Members of this Convention, elected by the Authority of the aforesaid enabling Act of Congress, Assembled in Carson City the Capitol of said Territory of Nevada, and immediately subsequent to its Organization, do adopt, on behalf of the people of said Territory the Constitution of the United States.

ORDINANCE.

228. In obedience to the requirements of An Act of the Congress of the United States approved March Twenty First A. D. Eighteen Hundred and Sixty four to enable the People of Nevada to form a Constitution and State Government: This Convention elected and convened in Obedience to said Enabling Act, Do ordain as follows, and this Ordinance shall be Irrevocable without the consent of the United States and the people of the State of Nevada.

First. That there shall be in this State neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, otherwise than in the punishment for crimes, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

Second. That perfect toleration of religious sentiment shall be secured, and no inhabitant of said State shall ever be molested in person or property, on account of his or her mode of religious worship.

Third. That the people inhabiting said Territory do agree and declare that they forever disclaim all right and title to the unappropriated public lands lying within said Territory, and that the same shall be and remain at the sole and entire disposition of the United States and that lands belonging to citizens of the United States, residing without the said State, shall never be taxed higher than the lands belonging to residents thereof; and that no taxes shall be imposed by Said State on lands or property therein belonging to, or which may hereafter be purchased by the United States.

The revenue laws, in no respect, contemplate taxation of government title to the public domain, but on the contrary have expressly forbidden it. Yet the right to impose a tax on the possession of individual claimants to such lands is equally as distinctly asserted by these laws—a right so universally upheld by judicial authority at the present day as to have become an established and recognized principle of law. Wright v. Cradlebaugh, 3 Nev. 352.

ernment land, and this power is subject to no limitation. No state legislation can interfere with this right, for it is well settled that the statute of limitations of a state cannot run against the United States, by the above provision. Therefore the statute does not begin to run against the plaintiff's cause of action until after the issuance of the patent. *Dissenting opinion of Murphy, C. J. South End Mining Co. v. DECLARATION OF RIGHTS

230. SECTION 1. All men are, by nature free and equal and have certain inalienable rights among which are those of Enjoying and defending life and liberty; Acquiring, Possessing and Protecting property and pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness.

T. C. C. pp. 2, 459.

"Liberty" does not mean mere freedom from arrest or restraint, but it means liberty in a broader and more comprehensive sense. It means freedom of action; freedom in the selection of a business, calling or avocation; freedom in the control and use of one's property, so far as its use is not injurious to the community, and does not infringe the rights of others; freedom in exercising the rights, privileges and immunities that belong to citizens of the country generally; and freedom in the pursuit of any lawful business or calling selected by him. Mary- mont v. State Banking Board, 33 Nev. —, 111 P. 295, 301.

The act of February 23, 1903 (1903, p. 33 c. 10), providing an eight hour day for workmen in mines, smelters and mills for the reduction of ores is not void under this section. Ex Parte Boyce, 27 Nev. 299, 352, 353, 358, 359, 366, 75 P. 1, 65 L. R. A. 47.

This act is sustainable as a valid health regulation under the police power. Ex Parte Kair, 28 Nev. 127. (113 A. S. 817, 80 P. 463.)

Paramount allegiance—Right of secession denied.

231. SEC: 2. All political power is inherent in the people. Government is instituted for the protection, security and benefit of the people; and they have the right to alter or reform the same whenever the public good may require it. But the Paramount Allegiance of every citizen is due to the Federal Government in the exercise of all its constitutional powers as the same have been or may be defined by the Supreme Court of the United States; and no power exists in the people of this or any other State of the Federal Union to dissolve their connection therewith or perform any act tending to impair subvert, or resist the Supreme Authority of the Government of the United States. The Constitution of the United States confers full power on the Federal Government to maintain and perpetuate its existence, and whensoever any portion of the States, or people thereof attempt to secede from the Federal Union, or forcibly resist the execution of its laws, the Federal Government may, by warrant of the Constitution, employ armed force in compelling obedience to its Authority.

T. C. C. pp. 6, 460.

The maxim that all political power originates with the people lies at the foundation of our political system; but after the organization of a government it is only through their representatives that the people can exercise it. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 283.

The people, and through them the legislature, have supreme power in all matters of government, where not restricted by constitutional limitation. Wallace v. Mayor of the City of Reno, 27 Nev. 71, 77. (103 A. S. 747, 63 L. R. A. 337, 73 P. 528).

The power of the great body of people as an organized body politic to amend or revise the constitution of the state is a fundamental principle of the governments of the states of the union. State v. Board of Examiners, 21 Nev. 70 (9 L. R. A. 385, 24 P. 614).

The direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198), is not unconstitutional as violating this section. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444, 447, 451).

Trial by jury secured.

232. SEC: 3. The right of trial by Jury shall be secured to all and remain inviolate forever; but a Jury trial may be waived by the parties in all civil cases in the manner to be prescribed by law; and in civil cases, if three-fourths of the Jurors agree upon a verdict it shall stand and have the same force and effect as a verdict by the whole Jury. Provided, the Legislature by a law passed by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each branch thereof may require a unanimous verdict, notwithstanding this provision.

T. C. C. pp. 9, 460.

It is the constitutional privilege of a person to stand upon his strict legal right, and he is entitled to a trial conducted in accordance with the legal formula prescribed. State v. McNamara, 3 Nev. 75.

The provisions of this section refer to the right of trial by jury as it existed at the time of the adoption of the constitution. State v. McClear, 11 Nev. 39, 44, 52.

The term "jury" and "trial by jury," as used in this section, means twelve competent men, disinterested and impartial, not of kin, nor personal dependents of either of the parties, having their homes within the jurisdictional limits of the court, drawn and selected by officers free from all bias in favor of or against either party, duly empaneled and sworn to render a true verdict according to the law and the evidence. State v. McClear, 11 Nev. 39, 44-48, 49, 52, 56, 60, 64, 68, 69.

If a juror is challenged for cause, that challenge is overruled, and he is then challenged peremptorily, there does not necessarily arise any inference that the challenging party is thereby injured. An injury can only arise in case the challenging party was compelled to exhaust all his peremptory challenges, and afterwards had an objectionable juror placed on the panel for want of another challenge. State v. Raymond, 11 Nev. 99.

A fair and impartial jury is the ultimate object to be secured by the constitutional right to challenge a juror. State v. Raymond, 11 Nev. 108.

A defendant indicted for a misdemeanor may be tried by a jury of eleven men, if he consents to such a jury, and his consent is not a waiver of a jury trial. State v. Borowsky, 11 Nev. 119.

It seems to be implied in the language of this section, that on the trial of an indictment a jury cannot be waived. State v. Borowsky, 11 Nev. 127.

In accordance with this section the supreme court will not determine questions of fact on which a verdict is based. State v. Preston, 30 Nev. 301, 308 (95 P. 918).

Provisions of an act providing for trial of infractions of police ordinances in an incorporated city shall be summary in character, without a jury, are not in violation of this section. State v. Ruhe, 24 Nev. 251 (52 P. 274).

Freedom of worship secured.

233. SEC: 4. The free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship without discrimination or preference shall forever be allowed in this State, and no person shall be rendered incompetent to be a witness on account of his Opinions on matters of his religious belief, but the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licentiousness or justify practices inconsistent with the peace, or safety of this State.

T. C. C. pp. 7, 460.

Habeas corpus suspended, when.

234. SEC: 5. The privilege of the writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended unless when, in case of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require its suspension.

T. C. C. pp. 8, 460.

When accused avers that the indictment does not allege an offense, and the state admits that the facts are stated therein, the court on habeas corpus will determine whether the indictment states an offense, and, if it does not, must discharge the accused. Ex Parte Rickey, 31 Nev. 82, 99 (100 P. 134, 135 A. S. 651).

Bail, fines and punishments limited.

235. SEC: 6. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor shall cruel or unusual punishments be inflicted, nor shall witnesses be unreasonably detained.

T. C. C. pp. 8, 461.

Upon proper showing on habeas corpus excessive bail will be reduced. Ex Parte Douglass, 25 Nev. 425 (62 P. 49).

236. SEC: 7. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties; unless for Capital Offenses when the proof is evident, or the presumption great.

T. C. C. pp. 8, 461.

In construing the above section, it was held that, as the petition for the writ of habeas corpus contained allegations, which, if true, showed the offense of petitioner to be manslaughter only, the petitioner was entitled to have the evidence of the witnesses before the grand jury reviewed for the purpose of enabling the court or judge to ascertain whether the proof is evident or the presumption great and thereby determine whether the offense committed—as shown by this and other testimony—is a bailable offense. Ex Parte Finlen, 20 Nev. 141, 144 (18 P. 827).

Trial on indictment secured—Not to be twice put in jeopardy—Private property for public use.

237. SEC: 8. No person shall be tried for a capital or other infamous crime (except in cases of impeachment, and in cases of the Militia when in actual service, and the land and naval forces in time of war, or which this State may keep with the consent of Congress in time of peace, and in cases of petit larceny under the regulation of the Legislature) except on presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury; and in any trial in any court whatever the party accused shall be allowed to appear and defend in person, and with counsel as in civil actions. No person shall be subject to be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense; nor shall he be compelled in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation having been first made or secured, except in cases of war, riot, fire, or great public peril, in which case compensation shall be afterward made.

T. C. C. pp. 12, 20, 36, 461.

This section does not restrict the legislature in prescribing the form of the indictment. It only requires that the grand jury should in some form express its approval of the prosecution before a party can be put on trial for such offense. State v. Millain, 3 Nev. 409, 433, 480, 481.

Where an indictment which omitted the essential allegation of venue, was amended in that respect: Held, it was no longer an "indictment of a grand jury" within the meaning of this section. State v. Chamberlain, 6 Nev. 257, 260.

Our constitution does not require formality of statement in the indictment. State v. Derst, 10 Nev. 445; State v. McClear, 11 Nev. 44.

When the people adopted this section they had in view a grand jury as it existed under the common law and the statutes at the time the constitution was adopted. State v. Hartley, 22 Nev. 342, 354 (28 L. R. A. 33, 40 P. 372).

Upon an indictment and trial for murder, and a verdict adjudging the defendant guilty of rape, the court has no jurisdiction to sentence and imprison defendant for such crime of rape, since this section requires presentment and indictment for the particular offense before conviction is had, and, further, because the defendant is thereby deprived of his liberty without due process of law. Ex Parte Dela, 25 Nev. 346, 354 (83 A. S. 603, 60 P. 217), cited Egan v. Jones, 21 Nev. 436.

When the verdict is so defective that no judgment can be entered upon it, the defendant, who might have had it perfected when rendered, is considered as consenting to it, and as waiving any objections to being put to answer before another jury. State v. Rover, 10 Nev. 399, 400 (21 A. R. 745).

Whenever the accused has been placed upon trial, on a valid indictment before a competent court, and a jury duly empaneled, sworn and charged with the case, his jeopardy attaches, and the discharge of the jury before a verdict, unless with the consent of the defendant, or the intervention of some unavoidable accident or some overruling necessity, operates as an acquittal. Ex Parte Maxwell, 11 Nev. 428, 434.

It will be admitted that jeopardy attaches when the jury is sworn to try the case. State v. Pritchard, 16 Nev. 106.

Where a defendant is convicted, and he asks for a second trial to relieve himself of the jeopardy in which he finds himself by reason of the conviction and judgment, and his prayer is granted, he is estopped from asserting a former acquittal on his second trial, and waives his constitutional right of pleading once in jeopardy, or that the right has been in any way infringed, because by his own voluntary assent, act and petition he has been relieved of a bar which prevented him from interposing this plea. In re Somers, 31 Nev. 531, 536 (103 P. 1073).

The provisions of this section guarantee to a person prosecuted for an offense before a court martial, organized under the laws of this state, the right to defend with counsel. State v. Crosby, 24 Nev. 115, 120 (77 A. S. 786, 50 P. 127).

Compelling a defendant, against his objection, to exhibit his arm, in such manner as to show the marks thereon to the jury is not a violation of this section. State v. Ah Chuey, 14 Nev. 79, 81, 83, 85, 86, 95, 98, 100, 103, 104, 114 (33 A. R. 530).

A witness not only cannot be compelled to testify against himself in a criminal case, but this exemption extends also to his private books and papers. Ex Parte Hedden, 29 Nev. 362, 363 (90 P. 737).

Where the defense in a homicide case was sadistic insanity, and accused was examined by a physician for the purpose of testifying for accused as to his physical condition as bearing upon the question of insanity, accused's examination upon an order of court by physicians appointed by it upon the state's request to enable them to testify as to the same facts did not compel him to become a witness against himself. State v. Petty, 32 Nev. 384 (108 P. 934, 935); cited, Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 932).

Under the 4th and 5th amendments to the Constitution of the United States, "The officer of a corporation having in his possession the books of the corporation, described in a subpoena duces tecum directed to the corporation, must produce the books or be held in contempt; and a corporation cannot resist, upon the ground of the constitutional protection against self-crimination, the compulsory production of its books and papers before the grand jury under a subpoena duces tecum." Wilson v. U. S., 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538; 220 U. S. Cent. Dig., secs. 19-27; Dec. Dig., sec. 16.

"Due process of law" requires that a party shall be properly brought into court, and when there, shall have a right to set up any lawful defense to any proceeding against him. The legislature, under pretense of regulating pleadings, cannot deprive a party of substantial rights. Wright v. Cradlebaugh, 3 Nev. 342, 349.

By "due process of law" is meant such general legal forms and course of proceedings as were known either to the common law, or were generally recognized in this country at the time of the adoption of the constitution. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284, 301-303.

The proceeds of sale under execution are the property of the judgment creditor to the extent of his judgment, and the judgment debtor is not only the owner of the surplus, but he has a right to insist that no part of the proceeds shall be applied to the payment of any claim against him that has not been ascertained and determined by due process of law. Cosia v. Kyle, 15 Nev. 397.

"Due process of law." It has been universally held, under a like constitutional restriction, that it does not mean "the process"—or otherwise expressed "the proceeding" shall be the same as pursued at common law, but that the mode and manner of their procedure may be regulated and prescribed by statute. State v. Millain, 3 Nev. 466.

The summary process provided by statute for the sale of property for delinquent taxes amounting to less than three hundred dollars does not deprive a person of property without due process of law. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 390 (32 P. 437).

Such summary proceedings do not deprive a person owning less than three hundred dollars of the equal protection of the laws; although, where the amount is more than that sum, there must be a regular action in court for its collection. This is only a reasonable exercise by the legislature of the right to classify the taxpayers. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 390 (32 P. 437).

This provision does not require that delinquent taxes shall be collected by an action in court under the form of legal procedure. If that method is adopted, the procedure is very much in the discretion of the legislature. All that is required under any system is that the substantial and fundamental rights of the taxpayers shall be protected. All defenses that savor of technicality only, or that do not show that he is being unjustly subjected to taxation, may be excluded. State v. C. P. R. R. Co., 21 Nev. 260, 264 (30 P. 689).

Although public policy demands that credence should be given to the findings and judgments of courts of general jurisdiction, yet it must not be carried to the extent of establishing conclusive presumptions which would have a tendency to deprive a citizen of these rights. Lonkey v. Keyes S. M. Co., 21 Nev. 321 (17 L. R. A. 351, 31 P. 57).

The privilege of admission to the common schools of the state is no more inherent in or connected with the status of citizenship than is the election franchise. This privilege is not embraced within any meaning which has ever been attributed to the words "life, liberty or property". State ex rel. Stoutmeyer v. Duffy, 7 Nev. 355, per Garber, J. dissenting (8 A. R. 713).

"Due process of law" not only requires that a party shall be properly brought into court, but that he shall have the opportunity in court to establish any facts, which, according to the usages of the common law or the provisions of the constitution, will be a protection to himself and property. Persing v. Reno Stock Brokerage Co., 30 Nev. 342, 349 (96 P. 1054).

The term, "life, liberty and property," embraces every right which the law protects. They include not only the right to hold and enjoy, but also the means of holding, enjoying, acquiring, and disposing of property. Branson v. I. W. W., 30 Nev. 295 (95 P. 354).

The unsworn motion of defendant's attorney to dismiss the complaint upon the allegations thereof was not sufficient to warrant the court in taking such judicial notice of such motion as to deprive plaintiff of its constitutional right, of being heard upon the merits of the motion, in a proper proceeding, as to whether it had complied with the law before doing business in the State. Symons-Kraussman Co. v. Reno Wholesale Liquor Co., 32 Nev. 241 (107 P. 96, 97).

The "Banking Act" of March 24, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 191), provided by section 2 that it should be unlawful under penalty for any corporation, partnership, firm or individual to engage in the banking business except by means of a corporation duly organized for such purpose under the laws of the state. Sections 5 and 6 created a state banking board to have general supervision of banks and banking. Section 12 provided that it should be unlawful to engage in banking without obtaining a license from such board, which license should issue only to corporations duly organized to do a banking business. Held, that such act was in conflict with this section. Marymont v. State Banking Board, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 295, 296).

Due process of law requires an orderly proceeding, adapted to the nature of the case, in which the citizen has an opportunity to be heard, and to defend, enforce, and protect his rights. A hearing and an opportunity to be heard is absolutely essential. State ex rel. Howell v. Wildes, 33 Nev. — (116 P. 595, citing to same effect Hettel v. Court, 30 Nev. 382 (96 P. 1062, 133 A. S. 730); Golden v. Court, 31 Nev. 250 (101 P. 1021)).

The legislature has an undoubted right to confer upon the county commissioners the power to open roads, upon a proper compensation being made to those whose property is taken for such purpose, but until such compensation is made, the state cannot legally appropriate the property of the citizen except in certain cases mentioned in this section. Champion v. Sessions, 1 Nev. 478, 484.

This provision does not, in any way, restrict the power of the state to seize, upon summary process, any property for taxes, and that, too, without securing or making compensation therefor. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 303.

The constitution secures a "just compensation," not a compensation to be regulated by the necessities which may compel its appropriation to the public use. The actual value in money, to be ascertained by its location, the price at which similar land may be or has been sold in its vicinity, or which it would sell at, is the measure of damage. Virginia and Truckee R. R. Co. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 367.

The manner in which private property shall be taken is not pointed out in the constitution, hence, it would seem the legislature has the power to prescribe any method which will produce a just and fair result. Virginia and Truckee R. R. Co. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 368.

The word "just" in this provision is evidently intended to intensify the meaning of the word "compensation"—to convey the idea that the equivalent to be rendered shall be real, substantial, full and ample. Virginia & Truckee R. R. Co. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165, 171, 174.

When the legislative power of appropriation of the private property of a citizen is attempted to be exercised, the true test of its validity is, whether or not the use for which the property is to be appropriated is a "public use" within the meaning of these words as used in this section. Dayton G. & S. M. Co. v. Seawall, 11 Nev. 394, 398-401, 412.

Stats. 1903, p. 190, c. 102, sec. 20, subdivision 9, providing that moneys received from licenses in cities shall be apportioned one-fourth to the state, one-fourth to the county in which the city is located, and the remainder to the city, is in contravention to this section. State v. Boyd, 27 Nev. 249, 257 (74 P. 654); cited, State v. Burns, 27 Nev. 292 (74 P. 983); cited, Bell v. District Court, 28 Nev. 296 (163 A. S. 854, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 843, 81 P. 875).

[ASSEMBLY JOINT AND CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 17, RELATIVE TO AMENDING SECTION EIGHT OF ARTICLE ONE OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEVADA PERTAINING TO INDICTMENTS IN CRIMINAL CASES.

Approved March 22, 1909, 346.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That section eight of article one of the Constitution of the State of Nevada be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 8. No person shall be tried for a capital or other infamous crime (except in cases of impeachment, and in cases of the militia when in actual service and the land and naval forces in time of war or which this State may keep, with the consent of Congress, in time of peace, and in cases of petit larceny, under the regulation of the Legislature) except on presentment or indictment of the grand jury, or upon information duly filed by a District Attorney or Attorney-General of the State, and in any trial, in any court whatever, the party accused shall be allowed to appear and defend in person, and with counsel, as in civil actions. No person shall be subject to be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense; nor shall he be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation having been first made, or secured, except in cases of war, riot, fire, or great public peril, in which case compensation shall be afterward made.]

[Proposed and passed at the Twenty-fourth Session of the Legislature, March 22, 1909, Stats. 1909, p. 346; agreed to and passed at the Twenty-fifth Session, February 20, 1911, Stats. 1911, p. 454. and is now subject to ratification by the people at the next general election to be held in 1912.]

Freedom of speech and press.

238. SEC: 9. Every citizen may freely speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right; and no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press. In all criminal prosecutions and civil actions for libels the truth may be given in evidence to the Jury; and if it shall appear to the Jury that the matter charged as libelous is true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the party shall be acquitted or exonerated.

T. C. C. pp. 13, 461.

Right of assembly and petition.

239. SEC: 10. The people shall have the right freely to assemble together to consult for the common good, to instruct their representatives and to petition the Legislature for redress of Grievances.

T. C. C. pp. 14, 462.

The direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198), is not unconstitutional as violating this section. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444, 451).

Military establishment limited.

240. SEC: 11. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power; no standing army shall be maintained by this State in time of peace, and in time of war, no appropriation for a standing army shall be for a longer time than two years.

T. C. C. pp. 19, 462.

Soldier quartered, how.

241. SEC: 12. No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of War, except in the manner to be prescribed by law.

T. C. C. pp. 19, 462.

Representation.

242. SEC: 13. Representation shall be apportioned according to population.

T. C. C. p. 462.

It is impracticable to apportion representation by any other method than by geographical lines, and it will be presumed that the lines have been fixed in conformity with the requirements of the constitution in the absence of a showing to the contrary. State v. Ruhe, 24 Nev. 263 (52 P. 274).

The constitution contains no restrictive nor mandatory provisions as to the time when, or how often, the legislature may make the representative apportionment. The legislature, therefore, may make such apportionment as often as it so wills. State v. Stoddard, 25 Nev. 452, 456 (51 L. R. A. 229, 62 P. 237).

Debtor's property exempt from execution.

243. SEC: 14. The privilege of the debtor to enjoy the necessary comforts of life shall be recognized by wholesome laws, exempting a reasonable amount of property from seizure or sale for payment of any debts or liabilities hereafter contracted; and there shall be no imprisonment for debt, except in cases of fraud, libel, or slander, and no person shall be imprisoned for a Militia fine in time of peace.

T. C. C. pp. 46, 463.

This section discussed, Elder v. Williams, 16 Nev. 423. This section does not prohibit the arrest and detention of a defendant for the fraudulent disposition of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, under a judgment in an action for tort. Ex Parte Bergman, 18 Nev. 332, 341, 342 (4 P. 209).

It is the policy of our constitution and laws to allow debtors, within reasonable limits, to retain those things that are necessary to enable them to enjoy the necessary comforts of life, and to carry on their usual employments.

Edgecomb v. Creditors, 19 Nev. 154 (7 P. 533), per Leonard, J., dissenting. Cited, State ex rel. Quinn v. District Court, 16 Nev. 77. Cited, Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 931).

Certain inhibitions.

244. SEC: 15. No bill of attainder, ex-post-facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall ever be passed.

T. C. C. pp. 46, 463.

When there are a number of warrants outstanding against a county, and payable out of the "general fund," and certain new statutes were passed providing that the revenues to be collected, which would otherwise have gone into such fund, shall constitute a "redemption fund" for the payment of such warrants as shall be offered at the lowest price; Held, that as the holders of such outstanding warrants never had any security for payment except the good faith of the state, and as the legislature had entire control over revenues to be raised, the statutes in question did not impair the obligation of any contract. Youngs v. Hall, 9 Nev. 212, 224.

The salary law (Stats. 1879, 133) authorizing the county commissioners to transfer money from the general fund to the salary fund of the county, is not in violation of the constitutional provisions against impairing the obligation of contracts. Esser v. Spaulding, 17 Nev. 289 (30 P. 896).

The constitutional prohibition against the passage of laws that impair the obligation of contracts has no application where the statute in question is a public law relative to a public subject within the domain of the general legislative power of the state, and involving the public right and public welfare of the entire community affected by it. Esser v. Spaulding, 17 Nev. 290, 304 (30 P. 896).

The certificates of indebtedness issued by the county auditor for allowances on the general fund of the county do not create a contract to pay the same out of the general fund in the order of presentation out of the first money in, or to come into, the treasury and apportioned to that fund. The only contract created by the certificate of indebtedness is that it shall be paid out of the general fund in the order of presentation or allowance. Esser v. Spaulding, 17 Nev. 289 (30 P. 896).

The constitution of this state does not forbid the passing of retrospective laws, and the inhibition contained in the constitution of the United States against any ex post facto law does not embrace civil laws of this character. Esser v. Spaulding, 17 Nev. 290 (30 P. 896).

No right can be considered a vested right unless it is something more than a mere expectation based upon an anticipated continuance of the present general laws; it must have become a title, legal or equitable, to the present or future enforcement of a demand, or a legal exemption from a demand, made by another. Esser v. Spaulding, 17 Nev. 290 (30 P. 896).

Section 20, subdivision 8, of the act incorporating the city of Reno, approved March 16, 1903, and sections 1 and 3 of the act empowering city and other boards to revoke and discontinue business licenses, approved March 10, 1903, are not repugnant to any provision of our state or federal constitution, and under them, a license may be revoked without notice to the licensee, where there is reason to believe that the business is a nuisance, a menace to public health, or detrimental to peace or morals. Wallace v. Mayor, etc. of the city of Reno, 27 Nev. 71, 77 (103 A. S. 747, 63 L. R. A. 337, 73 P. 528).

Where the remedy has attached itself to the right, and is being prosecuted by due course of law, to separate between them and to take away the remedy is to do violence to the right, and comes within that section of our constitution which prohibits laws from being passed impairing the obligation of contracts. State ex rel. Howell v. Wildes, 33 Nev. — (116 P. 595).

Rights of foreigners.

245. SEC: 16. Foreigners who are, or may hereafter become Bona-fide residents of this State, shall enjoy the same rights, in respect to the possession, enjoyment and inheritance of property, as native-born citizens.

T. C. C. pp. 54, 463.

A citizen and subject of the Chinese Empire, who is a bona fide resident of this state, is entitled, under the laws of this state, to locate and purchase any of the public lands belonging to this state. State v. Preble, 18 Nev. 251, 252, 253 (2 P. 754).

No act authorized by the constitution can be said to be against the public policy of the state. State v. Preble, 18 Nev. 251, 252, 253 (2 P. 754).

Slavery prohibited

246. SEC: 17. Neither Slavery nor involuntary Servitude unless for the punishment of crimes shall ever be tolerated in this State.

T. C. C. pp. 55, 463.

Search and seizure regulated.

247. SEC: 18. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable seizures and searches shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but on probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place or places to be searched, and the person or persons, and thing or things to be seized.

T. C. C. pp. 55, 463. Cited, Ex Parte Hedden, 29 Nev. 363.

Treason defined.

248. SEC: 19. Treason against the State shall consist only in levying war against it, adhering to its enemies or giving them aid or comfort. And no person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

T. C. C. pp. 56, 463.

Rights in general retained.

249. SEC: 20. This enumeration of rights shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

T. C. C. pp. 59, 464.

The powers reserved by the people from the federal government have never been, nor are they in any instance exercised by the people at large, but by the governments of the states, which are clothed with all the sovereign authority so reserved. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284.

The direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198), is not in derogation of this section. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444, 451).

The act of March 24, 1909 (Stats. 1908-09, c. 191), the "Banking Act," provided by section 2 that it should be unlawful under penalty for any corporation, partnership, firm, or individual to engage in the banking business except by means of a corporation duly organized for such purpose under the laws of the state. Sections 5 and 6 created a state banking board to have general supervision of banks and banking. Section 12 provided that it should be unlawful to engage in banking without obtaining a license from such board, which license should issue only to corporations duly organized to do a banking business. Held, that such act was in conflict with this section. Marymont v. State Banking Board, 33 Nev.— (111 P. 295, 296).

ARTICLE 2.

RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE

How and by whom the franchise may be enjoyed.

250. SECTION 1. Every male citizen of the United States (not laboring under the disabilities named in this Constitution) of the age of twenty-one years and upwards who shall have actually and not constructively, resided in the State six months, and in the district or county thirty days next preceding any election, shall be entitled to vote for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elected by the people, and upon all questions submitted to the electors at such election; Provided that no person who has been or may be convicted of Treason or Felony in any State or Territory of the United States, unless restored to civil rights, and no person who, after arriving at the age of Eighteen years shall have voluntarily borne arms against the United States, or held civil or military office under the So-called Confederate States, or either of them, unless an amnesty be granted to such by the Federal Government, and no idiot or insane person shall be entitled to the privilege of an elector.

[Amended by striking out the word white before the word male. Proposed and passed at the Eighth Session of the Legislature, January 15, 1877, Statutes of 1877, page 213; agreed to and passed at the Ninth Session of the Legislature, January 27, 1879, Statutes of 1879, page 149, and approved and ratified by the people at the general election of 1880.]

T. C. C. pp. 60, 464, 465.

[SUBSTITUTE FOR ASSEMBLY JOINT AND CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6, RELATIVE TO AMENDING SECTION ONE OF ARTICLE TWO OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, PERTAINING TO THE RIGHT OF ELECTIVE FRANCHISE.

Approved March 18, 1911, 457.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of Nevada be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 1. All citizens of the United States not laboring under the disabilities named in this constitution, of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, who shall have actually, and not constructively, resided in this state six months, and in the district or county thirty days next preceding any election, shall be entitled to vote for all officers that now or hereafter may be elected by the people, and upon all questions submitted to the electors at such election; provided, that no person who has been or may be convicted of treason or felony in any state or territory of the United States, unless restored to civil rights, and no idiot or insane person shall be entitled to the privilege of an elector. There shall be no denial of the elective franchise at any election on account of sex.]

[Proposed and passed at the Twenty-fifth Session of the Legislature, Stats. 1911, p. 457.]

An election can only be held by virtue of some constitutional provision or legal enactment, either expressly or by direct implication authorizing that particular election. Sawyer v. Hayden, 1 Nev. 75, 79, 80.

Enactment of a primary election law is an inherent right of the legislature under the constitution.

The direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198), is not unconstitutional as destroying political parties, nor as denying electors the right to determine the political principles their candidates must espouse, nor as enabling electors of opposite political faith to name the candidates of their political opponents.

The state has the right under the police power vested in its legislature to make reasonable regulations in the interest of public welfare for the nomination of candidates of the various parties.

The rights of political parties can be no greater than the rights of electors under the constitution.

The legislature can, in regulating primary elections, prescribe qualifying classifications for political parties who desire to be represented on official ballots. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444).

A person who was a qualified elector under the constitution of this state did not become disqualified by the failure to pay his poll tax and to have his name registered, until after the first week of October, A. D. 1865.

By the provisions of the registry law, all persons had until the last day in the first week of October, A. D. 1865, within which to have their names registered, no disqualification could result until after that time. An elector otherwise qualified would therefore be a competent juror until after the expiration of the first week in October. State v. Salge, 1 Nev. 450, 457.

The form of a law by which a person is deprived of a constitutional right is immaterial; it is a nullity, whatever be its form. Davies v. McKehey, 5 Nev. 369, 371.

Held, on application for registry by one who could not take the oath prescribed in the registry law (Stats. 1864-5, p. 382), but who was entitled under the constitution to the right of suffrage, that the oath required by the registry law was unconstitutional, and that as the registry agents could not alter or modify it so as to leave out the objectionable part, the entire oath must fall. Davies v. McKeedy, 5 Nev. 369, 371, 373, 374.

A statute which makes the enjoyment of a constitutional right depend upon an impossible condition, or upon the doing of that which cannot legally be done, is equivalent to an absolute denial of the right under any condition. The effect, and not the language of the statute in such case, must determine its constitutionality. Davies v. McKeedy, 5 Nev. 369, 372.

Any person possessing the qualifications of an elector as defined by this section is entitled to the right of suffrage. It is not within the power of the legislature to deny, abridge, extend or change the qualifications of an elector as prescribed in the constitution. State v. Findlay, 20 Nev. 198, 199, 201 (19 A. S. 346, 19 P. 241).

The act prescribing the qualifications of electors (Stats. 1887, 106) prohibiting Mormons from voting and requiring applicants for registration to take an oath that they are not members of the Mormon church is in direct violation of this section, and is not authorized by sec. 6, art. 2, requiring provisions to be made by law for registration. State v. Findlay, 20 Nev. 198, 199, 201 (19 A. S. 346, 19 P. 241).

The qualifications of an elector are those prescribed by the constitution, and they cannot be altered or impaired by the legislature. Registration is not an electoral qualification, but is only a means for ascertaining and determining in a uniform mode whether the voter possesses the qualifications required by the constitution, and to secure in an orderly and convenient manner the right of voting. State ex rel. Boyle v. Board of Examiners, 21 Nev. 67, 69, 70 (9 L. R. A. 385, 24 P. 614).

The right of suffrage shall be enjoyed by all persons, otherwise entitled to the same who may be in the Military or Naval service of the United States; provided, the votes so cast shall be made to apply to the County and Township of which said voters were bona-fide residents at the time of their enlistment; and provided further, that the payment of a poll tax or a registration of such voters shall not be required as a condition to the right of voting. Provision shall be made by law, regulating the manner of voting, holding elections, and making returns of such elections, wherein other provisions are not contained in this Constitution.

Section 34 of the act incorporating the town of Reno, requiring for the determination of certain questions, a majority of the votes cast by the qualified electors of a city, as shown by the last official registration, is not in violation of this section as being a disfranchisement of qualified electors who have become so since the last election. State v. Ruhe, 24 Nev. 251, 260 (52 P. 274).

Cited, State v. Sadler, 25 Nev. 170, 176 (83 A. S. 573, 58 P. 284).

The right to vote conferred by this section is a mere political privilege, and not an inherent, unqualified personal or political right. This section applies to the election of public officers, and not to the selection of party nominees. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444).

This section defines the qualifications of an elector, but the legislature may prescribe reasonable qualifications for an elector who may desire to become a candidate, providing such qualifications are not in conflict with some constitutional provisions. The qualifications required by the primary law are not, as we view the constitution, violative of any such requirement. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 455, 456).

Under the provisions of the constitution of this state, all necessary state, county and township officers must be elected by the people of the locality immediately concerned. State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 412 (4 P. 735).

The constitutionality of the direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198), can be questioned on the ground that it precludes a qualified elector and candidate from appearing on the official ballot, or precludes any qualified elector from voting for any qualified candidate only by one deprived of such right. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444, 445).

entitled to the right of suffrage, as hereby established, to preserve the purity of elections, and to regulate the manner of holding and making returns of the same; and the Legislature shall have power to prescribe by law any other or further rules or oaths as may be deemed necessary, as a test of electoral qualification.

T. C. C. pp. 66, 502.

The oath required by section 5 of the registry law (Stats. 1865, 141) "being in terms in addition to the qualifications of an elector, which are now or hereafter may be prescribed by law," cannot be regarded as "a test of electoral qualification" within the meaning of this section, and is therefore unconstitutional. Clayton v. Harris, 7 Nev. 64, 67.

Under this section, the legislature can prescribe what oath or oaths may be necessary as a test of electoral qualifications, but it cannot impede or trammel the right of suffrage by adding new qualifications. Clayton v. Harris, 7 Nev. 64, 67, 68.

This section required the legislature to make provision for the registration of electors so as "to preserve the purity of elections," the provisions of the registry law when necessary to accomplish this purpose should be strictly pursued. Stinson v. Sweeney, 17 Nev. 314 (30 P. 997).

Where a non-compliance with the provisions of the registry or election laws, upon the part of the registry agent or officers of the elections, are not essential "to preserve the purity of elections," the courts recognizing the fact that the will of the people, when fairly expressed, should be the law of the land, have universally declared that the qualified electors should not, on that account, be deprived of their votes. Stinson v. Sweeney, 17 Nev. 315 (30 P. 997).

The act prescribing the qualifications of electors (Stats. 1887, 106) prohibiting Mormons from voting and requiring applicants for registration to take an oath that they are not members of the Mormon Church is in direct violation of section 2, article 2 of the constitution, and is not authorized by the above section. State v. Findlay, 20 Nev. 198, 201 (19 A. S. 346, 19 P. 241).

While the legislature cannot directly deprive the elector of his privilege of voting, this section specially authorizes it to enact laws for the registration of electors, to preserve the purity of elections, and to regulate the manner of holding and making returns of the same. Such laws will necessarily sometimes have the effect of preventing the elector from voting. For instance, a law for the registration of voters, to be effectual, must provide that one not registered, shall not vote; and to guard the purity of elections, it may require him to make his ballot in a certain way, and to comply with many other conditions. But in all these matters the voter had the privilege of voting, by a compliance with the law, and his failure to do so is somewhat owing to his own negligence or misfortune. Lynip v. Buckner, 22 Nev. 438 (30 L. R. A. 354, 41 P. 762).

The constitution has committed the subject of registration of electors to the legislature for the purpose of determining who are qualified voters, and laws of this description must be calculated to facilitate and secure, rather than to subvert or impede, the exercise of the right to vote. The adoption by the legislature of the registry lists of the general election of 1888 for the special election held three months later in 1889 is not obnoxious to constitutional requirements, but on the contrary is commendable as being calculated to facilitate, rather than impede, the exercise of the right to vote. State ex rel. Boyle v. Board of County Commissioners, 21 Nev. 68 (9 L. R. A. 385, 24 P. 614).

The great constitutional right of an elector, of voting and having the vote counted, is not to be taken from him upon any doubtful construction of a statute. Lynip v. Buckner, 22 Nev. 439.

This section authorizes and requires the legislature to provide by law for the registration of all persons who possess the prescribed qualifications of electors, but it does not authorize the legislature to impose any condition on the right of registration, other than the prescribed qualifications of electors. And when the legislature does so, it exceeds its authority. State v. Wilson, 24 Nev. 308, 309.

The legislature can add qualifications to electors desiring to become candidates for specified offices if the qualifications are reasonable. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 445).

In these provisions of our constitution, we find full authority granted the legislature to pass all necessary legislation for general elections; and a further examination of our constitution will disclose no prohibition to enact a direct primary law so long as the act conforms in other respects to our constitution. As to the inherent right of the legislature under our constitution to enact a primary election law there can be no question. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 p. 448).

256. SEC. 7. The Legislature shall provide by law for the payment of an annual poll tax of not less than two, nor exceeding four, dollars from each male resident in the State between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years (uncivilized American Indians excepted),¹ to be expended for the maintenance and betterment of the public roads.

T. C. C. p. 375.

[As amended. Proposed and passed at the Twenty-third Session of the Legislature, March 29, 1907, Statutes of 1907, page 450; agreed to and passed at the Twenty-fourth Session of the Legislature, March 16, 1909, Statutes of 1909, page 344, and approved and ratified by the people at the general election of 1910.]

The revenue laws of the state imposing a capitation tax of one dollar on all passengers carried out of the state is not a poll tax, and does not conflict with the constitutional provision limiting the poll tax to four dollars. Ex Parte Crandell, 1 Nev. 294, 313.

This case was reversed upon other grounds by the Supreme Court of the United States, which held that the taxation by the state of passengers running through or out of the state would be inconsistent with the objects for which the federal government was established. 6 Wall. 35.

As this section provides specifically what poll tax may be levied, such indication excludes from legislative power any other. Hassett v. Walls, 9 Nev. 387, 392, 393.

The highway act of 1873, in so far as it provides for a road tax upon individuals, is obnoxious to this section and is void. Hassett v. Walls, 9 Nev. 387, 392.

The act providing for the payment of a commission by the state of ten per cent of all poll taxes collected in the county (Stats. 1885, 62) does not violate this section; such commission being an allowance for the expenses of collection, and the state being liable for its share. State v. Donnelly, 20 Nev. 214, 215 (19 P. 680).

The road tax of four dollars annually, or two days' labor, imposed upon individuals by the highway act of 1873, whether required as a levy in money or service, is a capitation or poll tax. Hassett v. Walls, 9 Nev. 387, 393.

The legislature may, by the enactment of a proper bill, add to the electoral qualifications prescribed by this section the payment of an annual poll tax, and when it does, the payment of such tax may be made one of the conditions of registration, and not before. State ex rel. Wilson v. Stone, 24 Nev. 308, 309, 310 (53 P. 497).

[SENATE SUBSTITUTE FOR ASSEMBLY' JOINT AND CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 8, PROPOSING THAT SECTION NINE BE ADDED TO ARTICLE TWO OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEVADA.]

Approved March 22, 1909.

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That section nine be added to article two of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, to read as follows:

SECTION 9. Every public officer in the State of Nevada is subject, as herein provided, to recall from office by the qualified electors of the State, or of the county, district, or municipality, from which he was elected. For this purpose not less than twenty-five per cent (25%) of the qualified electors who vote in the State or in the county, district, or municipality electing said officer, at the preceding election, for Justice of the Supreme Court, shall file their petition, in the manner herein provided, demanding his recall by the people; they shall set forth in said petition, in not exceeding two hundred (200) words, the reasons why said recall is demanded. If he shall offer his resignation, it shall be accepted and take effect on the day it is offered, and the vacancy thereby caused shall be filled in the manner provided by law. If he shall not resign within five (5) days after the petition is filed, a special election shall be ordered to be held within twenty (20) days after the issuance of the call therefor, in the State, or county, district, or municipality electing said officer, to determine whether the people will recall said officer. On the ballot at said election shall be printed verbatim as set forth in the recall petition, the reasons for demanding the recall of said officer, and in not more than two hundred (200) words, the officer's justification of his course in office. He shall continue to perform the duties of his office until the result of said election shall be finally declared. Other candidates for the office may be nominated to be voted for at said special election. The candidate who shall receive the highest number of votes at said special election shall be deemed elected for the remainder of the term, whether it be the person against whom the recall petition was filed, or another. The recall petition shall be filed with the officer with whom the petition for nomination to such office shall be filed, and the same officer shall order the special election when it is required. No such petition shall be circulated or filed against any officer until he has actually held his office six (6) months, save and except that it may be filed against a Senator or Assemblyman in the Legislature at any time after ten (10) days from the beginning of the first session after his election. After one such petition and special election, no further recall petition shall be filed against the same officer during the term for which he was elected, unless such further petitioners shall pay into the public treasury from which the expenses of said special election have been paid, the whole amount paid out of said public treasury as expenses for the preceding special election. Such additional legislation as may aid the operation of this section shall be provided by law.]

[Proposed and passed at the Twenty-fourth Session of the Legislature, March 22, 1909, Statutes of 1909, p. 345; agreed to and passed at the Twenty-fifth Session, February 2, 1911, Statutes of 1911, p. 448, and is now subject to ratification by the people at the general election to be held in 1912.]

ARTICLE 3.

DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS

Powers of government.

258. SECTION 1. The powers of the Government of the State of Nevada shall be divided into three separate departments—the Legislative, the Executive and the Judicial; and no persons charged with the exercise of powers properly belonging to one of these departments shall exercise any functions appertaining to either of the others, except in the cases herein expressly directed or permitted.

T. C. C. pp. 68, 465.

Each department of the state government—legislative, executive, and judicial—is supreme within its respective sphere. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284; State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. — (113 P. 106).

Under the constitution of this state, the naming in the act of incorporation of the persons who were to constitute a provisional or initiatory board of trustees was not the exercise of a power intrinsically executive. Clarke v. Irwin (5 Nev. 111) affirmed. State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 128.

The action of a judicial officer in regard to matters which are exclusively executive or administrative in their nature, even when the act of the legislature requiring such duties to be performed is in violation of a constitutional provision, cannot be reviewed by certiorari. Esmeralda County v. District Court, 18 Nev. 438 (5 P. 64).

Under the laws of this state, the supreme court is only authorized to review the record and proceedings of inferior court officers or tribunals acting in a judicial capacity and exercising judicial functions. Esmeralda County v. District Court, 18 Nev. 438 (5 P. 64).

This article, dividing the state government into three great departments, does not prohibit one department from exercising powers of the nature of those belonging to one of the other departments unless that power is either expressly or impliedly conferred upon the other department by the constitution. This article only refers to the state government as created by the constitution. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 390, 396 (32 P. 437).

The contention of the lieutenant and acting governor that the acceptance as directed by the statute of repudiated bonds of a sister state, tendered to this state as a donation, would disturb the harmonious relations existing between the two states, and that for certain legal reasons the bonds cannot be collected, raises a question for the legislature in the first instance and for the judiciary in the second, neither of which is within the functions of the executive or justifies his refusal to accept the bonds. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev.— (113 P. 106, 108).

Cited, State ex rel. Josephs v. Douglass, 33 Nev. — (110 P. 180).

The act of March 4, 1871 (Stats. 1871, 129) said to be a clear encroachment of the legislature upon the judicial function. Per Whitman, J., dissenting. In re Estate of Sticknoth, 7 Nev. 236.

The exercise of the functions of the board of county commissioners in the discharge of a supplemental assessment under the statutes providing therefor (Stats. 1867, 111) is not obnoxious to this article. State v. County Commissioners of Ormsby County, 7 Nev. 392, 396.

Where a statute provided for gift concerts and distribution of prizes among ticket holders by raffle, and especially provided that "nothing in this act contained shall be construed as authorizing a lottery in this state or as allowing the sale of lottery tickets contrary to the provisions of the constitution" (Stats. 187, 110); Held, that the construction of such act was for the courts alone and that the attempted exercise of this power by the legislature was an unconstitutional assumption of the functions of the judiciary. Ex Parte Blanchard, 9 Nev. 101, 104.

The act incorporating Carson City (Stats. 1875, 87) is not in conflict with this article, or sections 1 and 8 of article 4, or section 10 of article 15 of the constitution. State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 128.

In construing the provisions of the act providing for the payment of outstanding indebtedness of Virginia City (Stats. 1864-5, 325); Held, that said act, in so far as it undertakes to definitely fix the amount due to the persons therein named, is an attempt upon the part of the legislature to exercise judicial powers, and is therefore repugnant to this article. State v. Hampton, 13 Nev. 439, 442.

Held, that the state prison act (Stats. 1881, 109) in so far as it attempts to commute any portion of the sentence imposed by the courts prior to the time the act took effect, is inoperative and void, because it interferes with the judiciary. Ex Parte Darling, 16 Nev. 98, 99, 100 (40 A. R. 495); Ex Parte Woodburn, 32 Nev. 136 (104 P. 245).

The acts required by section 6 (Stats. 1883, 99) relating to the annexation of a part of Esmeralda County to Lyon County to be performed by the district judge in the event of a board of county commissioners failing to agree, are not of such a judicial nature and character as to authorize the supreme court to review them upon certiorari. Esmeralda County v. District Court, 18 Nev. 438 (5 P. 64).

The act of March 27, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 241, c. 125) relates to the incorporation of cities, section 2 providing for a petition for such incorporation by the majority of the qualified voters, and section 3 (p. 242) conferring on the district court authority to determine whether a majority of the qualified electors and taxpayers have made this application sufficiently describing the territory to be embraced in the city or corporate town with a map thereof containing the streets and alleys and the proposed name, and whether it is accompanied with satisfactory proof of the number of inhabitants. Held, that such act is not unconstitutional as delegating legislative powers to the judicial department. State ex rel. Williams v. District Court, 30 Nev. 225, 227, 228, 229, 234 (94 P. 70).

The act of March 26, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 232 c. 119), sec. 10, providing that on the determination by the bank commissioners that it is unsafe for a bank to continue business, they shall order the bank examiner to take possession of its property until the attorney-general shall begin action to enjoin it from transacting business and, if, on a hearing, the court finds it solvent, the court may dismiss the action and order the bank restored to the possession of its property, does not confer judicial functions on an executive board. State ex rel. v. State Bank and Trust Co., 31 Nev. 456, 465, 471, 472, 473 (103 P. 407).

Banking act, Stats. 1911, 291, sec. 79, examined, and the provisions of this section held to be a clear invasion of the judicial powers in favor of the executive department and consequently this section is unconstitutional. State ex rel. Howell v. Wildes, 33 Nev. — (116 P. 595).

The provision in the act entitled "An act to require the acceptance and collection of grants, devises, bequests, donations and assignments to the State of Nevada," approved February 26, 1901 (Stats. 1901, c. 19), that "whenever any grant, devise, bequest, donation or gift or assignment of money, bonds, or choses in action shall be made to this state, the governor is directed to receive and accept the same, so that the right and title to the same shall pass to the state," imposes a ministerial duty upon the governor which could have been conferred as well upon any other officer or person, and which in no way conflicts with or pertains to the constitutional powers or prerogatives of the governor. He is nowhere empowered to set aside the law because he may not agree with its policy. He is as much unauthorized to prevent the reception of the bonds as if the legislature had directed the state treasurer instead of the governor to accept them for the state. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. — (113 P. 105, 106).

ARTICLE 4.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT

Legislative authority vested.

259. SECTION 1. The Legislative authority of this State shall be vested in a Senate and Assembly, which shall be designated "The Legislature of the State of Nevada" and the sessions of such Legislature shall be held at the seat of Government of the State.

T. C. C. pp. 74, 466.

The federal government was organized by the concession to it of such certain specified powers as were deemed necessary to secure and promote the general welfare of all the states, the residuum being retained by the people; and these reserved powers are supreme and absolute over life, liberty and property, except as restrained or limited by their own concessions through the federal constitution. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284.

The state legislature possesses legislative power unlimited except by the federal constitution, and such restrictions as are expressly placed upon it by the state constitution; it is within the sphere of legislation the exponent of the popular will, endowed with all the power in this respect which the people themselves possessed at the time of the adoption of the constitution. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284, 292, 293, 294, 295, 298; State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 416 (4 P. 735).

The people, and through them the legislature, have supreme power in all matters of government where not restricted by constitutional limitations. Wallace v. Mayor and City Council of the City of Reno, 27 Nev. 71 (103 A. S. 747, 63 L. R. A. 337, 13 P. 528); Ex Parte Boyce, 27 Nev. 299, 352 (65 L. R. A. 47, 75 P. 1).

The power to make the law must necessarily carry with it the right to judge of its expediency and justice. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284.

The possible abuse of legislative power is no argument against either its existence or appropriate exercise. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 112, 127, 128, 130, 131.

Since the legislature can pass any act not expressly prohibited by the state or the national constitution, an act is presumed to be constitutional until declared otherwise by a court of competent jurisdiction. Questions of the wisdom, policy, or expediency of a law are for the legislature's determination, with which courts cannot interfere. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444, 445).

Courts will presume statutes to be valid and will not consider a question affecting their validity, unless essential to a determination of the case. The legislature, in the absence of special authorization in the constitution, may not abolish a constitutional office, or change, alter, or modify its constitutional powers and functions. State ex rel. Josephs v. Douglass, 33 Nev. — (110 P. 177).

The legislature, representing the people of the state, has the sole authority to enact and repeal statutes, and in this regard its power is supreme in all matters of government, where not prohibited by constitutional limitations, state or federal. Questions relating to the wisdom, policy, and expediency of statutes are for the people's representatives in legislature assembled, and not for the governor or the courts to determine. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. — (113 P. 105, 106).

Under the guise of changing remedies the legislature cannot destroy the right. State ex rel. Howell v. Wildes, 33 Nev.— (116 P. 595).

T. C. C. pp. 96, 471.

It was held that this was not intended to be confined in its effect to officers connected with the legislative department of the government. State ex rel. Nourse v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 569.

A person holding the office of United States district attorney, on the day of election, is incapable of being chosen to the office of attorney-general of the state. This section is not confined to members of the legislature, but is applicable to all officers of state. A person holding a civil office under the United States, can resign such office without the consent of the appointing power, or the acceptance by it of such resignation. It is not in the power of the executive to compel any civil officer to remain in office. State ex rel. Nourse v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 566-571.

The office of notary public is a civil office of profit under this state, within the meaning of this section, and the receiver of public money in a United States land office is ineligible to the office of notary. This section applies to appointive as well as to elective officers. State ex rel. Summerfield v. Clarke, 21 Nev. 333, 335, 338 (37 A. S. 517, 18 L. R. A. 313, 31 P. 545).

Under this section a state senator, by accepting appointment as paymaster in the army, became incapable of legally holding the office of state senator, and such acceptance operated as a resignation of the state office and created a vacancy therein. State ex rel. McMillan v. Sadler, 25 Nev. 132, 173 (83 A. S. 573, 58 P. 284).

Disqualified from office holding.

268. SEC: 10. Any person who shall be convicted of the Embezzlement or defalcation of the public funds of this State or who may be convicted of having given or offered a bribe to procure his election or appointment to Office, or received a bribe to aid in the procurement of Office for any other person, shall be disqualified from holding any Office of profit or trust in this State; and the Legislature shall, as soon as practicable, provide by law for the punishment of such defalcation, bribery, or Embezzlement as a felony.

T. C. C. pp. 97, 136, 406, 471, 502.

Section 37, act of March 12, 1873, p. 197, authorizes a contest of election "when the person whose right to the office is contested was not at the time of his election eligible to such office." Held, under above section, that a complaint to contest the election of a district attorney which alleged that the contestee offered before election to make a bond conditioned that, if elected, he would return to the county treasury each month a portion of his salary, but does not allege that the contestee had been "convicted" of offering such bribe, does not show that the contestee was disqualified to hold the office, and is fatally defective on demurrer. Embrace but one subject.

275. SEC. 17. Each law enacted by the Legislature shall embrace but one subject, and matter properly connected therewith, which subject shall be briefly expressed in the title; and no law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title only; but, in such case, the act as revised, or section as amended, shall be re-enacted and published at length.

T. C. C. pp. 101, 472.

Cited and held inapplicable in Bowers v. Beck, 2 Nev. 155.

The second section of the amendatory act of 1869, concerning counties, providing for the payment of $3,000 a year for five years by Churchill County to Humboldt County (Stats. 1869, 88), does not conflict with this section. Humboldt County v. County Commissioners of Churchill County, 6 Nev. 30, 35.

It is only necessary to express in the title the principal subject embodied in the law, while the matters properly connected therewith are not required to be mentioned. Humboldt County v. County Commissioners of Churchill County, 6 Nev. 31, 35.

The design of this provision is to prevent improper combinations to secure passage of laws containing subjects having no necessary or proper relation and which as independent measures could not be carried; also to prevent the legislature and the public from being misled by the title.

The details of a statute need not be specifically stated in the title; but matters germane to the subject and adapted to the accomplishment of the object in view may properly be included.

The provision in relation to the unlawful killing of stock making it a felony, contained in the statute regulating marks and brands (Stats. 1873, p. 99, sec. 10) bears no proper relation to the subject of the statute as expressed in the title, and is therefore unconstitutional.

Section 143 of the crimes act, making the malicious killing of cattle a misdemeanor, is unaffected by the provision in the act regulating marks and brands, making it a felony (Stats. 1873, p. 99, sec. 10)—the latter provision being unconstitutional. State v. Silver, 9 Nev. 227, 231.

This court has recognized and enforced this section as being mandatory (State v. Silver, 9 Nev. 230), and we see no valid reason for adopting a different rule in this case. State ex rel. Chase v. Rogers, 10 Nev. 253 (21 A. R. 728).

Cited, State v. California Mining Company, 13 Nev. 219.

The act supplementary to an act entitled "An act concerning crimes and punishments, approved November 26, 1861," does, in its title, express the subject embraced therein, as required by this section. State v. Davis, 14 Nev. 439, 442, 443 (33 A. R. 563).

The "Opium Act" (Stats. 1879, p. 121) embraces but one subject, and its title is not too restrictive to cover the provisions of section 6 of said act. This constitutional provision is mandatory, but should be liberally construed. State v. Ah Sam, 15 Nev. 27, 29, 30, 31, 32 (37 A. R. 454).

Held, that the general purpose of this section is accomplished when a law has but one general object which is fairly indicated by its title.

The "act to provide for the taking care of the insane of Nevada," provides for the construction of an asylum; that the money appropriated for that purpose shall be taken from the state school fund, and in its place there shall be deposited state bonds, bearing interest, etc., and provides for the levy and collection of a tax to meet the payment of said bond: Held, that the act embraces but one subject, the care of the insane, which is fairly expressed in its title.

The different steps by which the result is to be accomplished are not different subjects, but minor parts of the same general subject. Klein v. Kinkaid, 16 Nev. 194, 201, 204.

Held, that the statute authorizing county commissioners to transfer certain funds (Stats. 1879, p. 45) embraced but one subject—the transfer of surplus moneys from one fund to another—and that it does not violate the provisions of this section. State ex rel. Board of School Trustees v. County Commissioners of Storey County, 17 Nev. 96, 101, 102 (28 P. 122).

Section 23 of the salary law (Stats. 1879, p. 133), is not in conflict with this section. Esser v. Spaulding, 17 Nev. 290, 308 (30 P. 896).

The act to redistrict the state (Stats. 1885, p. 60), so as to make but one judicial district, is constitutional.

The title of the act, "An act to redistrict the State of Nevada, prescribe the number and salaries of district judges, and fix the places of holding courts, does not contravene this section. State ex rel. Coffin v. Atherton, 19 Nev. 332, 344, 345 (10 P. 901).

The "Act to amend an act reducing and regulating the salaries and compensation of certain state officers, justices of the supreme court and attaches of the state government," (Stat. 1885, p. 99) is in violation of the provisions of this section, and is absolutely null and void. State ex rel. Drury v. Hallock, 19 Nev. 384, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390 (12 P. 832).

The act entitled "An act fixing the time for the opening and closing of saloons and gaming-houses" (Stats. 1889, p. 71), is not repugnant to this section.

The word "saloon" clearly refers only to places where intoxicating liquors are kept, and is not misleading. Ex Parte Livingston, 20 Nev. 282, 284, 289 (4 L. R. A. 732, 21 P. 322).

In construing the provisions of the "act defining the duties of the state controller" which imposes penalties upon other officers for delinquencies in making settlements with the controller: Held, (1) that the title of the act is misleading; (2) that the act contains two subjects—one relating to the duties of the controller and the other to the imposition of penalties against other officers—and that it, in both respects, conflicts with the provisions of this section, and that the act, in so far as it undertakes to impose a penalty upon other officers, is unconstitutional. State v. Hoadley, 20 Nev. 317, 318, 319, 320 (22 P. 99). Hawley, C. J., dissenting.

The act of February 23, 1887, entitled "An act relating to and consolidating certain county offices in the State of Nevada," provided that after the first Monday in January, 1889, district attorneys shall be ex officio superintendents of schools in their counties without additional compensation. The act of March 11, 1885, fixing the compensation of officers of Elko county, was amended by the act of March 5, 1887, so far as it fixed the compensation of sheriff, so as to give him a salary of $4,000 per annum in lieu of fees, and that portion of the act fixing the salary of the district attorney at $2,000 per annum and the superintendent of schools at $600 per annum, was reenacted. Held, that the amendatory act was passed for the sole purpose of changing the compensation of the sheriff, and did not repeal the act of February 23, 1887. State ex rel. Love v. County Commissioners, 21 Nev. 19, 22 (23 P. 935).

An act does not embrace more than one subject, because while fixing the salaries and compensation of the officers of a county, it also provides for the consolidation of the offices of superintendent of schools and district attorney, and provides that the latter officer shall, for the salary provided, also discharge the duties formerly appertaining to the superintendent's office.

The act of March 9, 1891 (Stats. 1891, p. 30), embraces but one subject and matter properly connected therewith.

Where a portion of a statute is complete in itself and capable of being executed wholly independent of that which may be rejected, and there is no reason to suppose that the legislature would not have passed the act except as a whole: Held, that the courts will affirm the validity of such independent part, without considering whether the other is or is not unconstitutional. State ex rel. Dunn v. County Commissioners of Humboldt County, 21 Nev. 235, 237, 240 (29 P. 974).

The statutes of 1887, page 81, is entitled "An act to further define and punish embezzlement." Section one defines embezzlement, and section two fixes the penalty for a violation of section one. Held, that as the act is complete within itself, and does not conflict with the other existing statutes relating to embezzlement and its punishment, it does not amend such statutes, and therefore does not violate this section. State v. Trolson, 21 Nev. 419, 428, 432 (32 P. 930).

Where the title states that the subject of an act is to amend one section of a former statute, the act cannot be extended to the amendment of other sections.

Where the sections of an act are so separate and independent that one section can be made to operate in accordance with the intention of the legislature without the aid of the others, and the invalid section could not have constituted any inducement for the first, the courts will sustain that section, although the other sections are unconstitutional. Ex Parte Hewlett, 22 Nev. 333, 334 (40 P. 96).

The act of March 16, 1895 (Stats. 1895, p. 107), to amend an act concerning the purchase and preservation of newspapers, in so far as it attempts to regulate the matter of legal advertising and printing, is in conflict with the provisions of this section.

The purpose of this provision was to prevent the combination in one act of incongruous and distinct subjects, and also imposition upon the members of the legislature and the public, by covering up, under innocent titles, vicious and harmful provisions.

Where, by the title, the subject of an act is restricted to a certain purpose, the purview of the act cannot be extended to other purposes not indicated in the title. The act can be no broader than the subject expressed in the title. State ex rel. Norcross v. Commissioners of Washoe County, 22 Nev. 399.

While this section should be liberally construed, to the end that there may be no unnecesary hampering of legislation, this liberal construction should not go to the extent of nullifying the constitution. Where an act clearly embraces two distinct and independent subjects, or the real subject of the act is not expressed in the title, it is the duty of the courts to declare the act void. State ex rel. Norcross v. Commissioners of Washoe County, 22 Nev. 399, 409, 415 (41 P. 145).

The act incorporating the town of Reno (Stats. 1897, p. 50) is not in violation of this section. State ex rel. Fletcher v. Ruhe, 24 Nev. 251, 258 (52 P. 274).

The act of 1897, making the payment of the annual poll tax a condition to the right of voting, is unconstitutional, as its title, "An act to require the payment of poll tax by all legal voters under sixty years of age," does not comply with this section. State ex rel. Wilson v. Stone, 24 Nev. 308, 310 (53 P. 497).

Where a certain section of an act is complete and independent in itself, its validity is not affected on account of the subject of other sections of the act not being expressed in the title. State ex rel. Osburn v. Beck, 25 Nev. 68, 81 (56 P. 1008). Cited, Ex Parte Boyce, 27 Nev. 352, 353 (65 L. R. A. 47, 75 P. 1).

Act of March 12, 1873, p. 209, c. 121, sec. 59-62, is entitled "An act relating to elections," but provides that, in case any officer shall be guilty of malfeasance, he may be removed by summary proceedings on complaint of a private prosecutor, whereupon his successor shall be appointed, and, in case an appeal shall be taken, the officer removed shall not exercise the rights of his office pending the appeal. Held, that since the trial of an officer after his election for malfeasance in office, his removal, and the appointment of his successor, has no proper connection with the subject of elections, such sections were in violation of the provisions of this section. Bell v. First Judicial District Court, 28 Nev. 280, 296 (163 A. S. 854, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 843, 81 P. 875).

The title of the act of March 4, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 59, c. 32), entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of stenographers on the hearing of preliminary examinations, before committing magistrates, and to regulate the compensation therefor," is not sufficiently broad to include a provision for the subsequent use of the testimony on the trial.

The above act, providing in section 2 that the report of the stenographer shall be admissible in evidence on the trial of the case, as prescribed by Crim. Prac. Act, sec. 151, providing that, by consent of the parties, the testimony may be reduced to writing, and used by either party when the witness is sick, out of the state, dead, or when his personal attendance cannot be had in court, is repugnant to this section. State v. Gibson, 30 Nev. 353, 356, 357, 360 (96 P. 1057).

The act of March 26, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 229, c. 119), entitled "An act creating a board of bank commissioners, defining their duties, providing for the appointment of a bank examiner, prescribing his duties, fixing his compensation, providing penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act, and other matters relating thereto," though providing by section 10 for action by the attorney-general against a banking corporation, on the decision by the bank examiner and commissioners that it is unsafe for it to continue business, and that if the court shall find it unsafe, it shall appoint a receiver, does not contravene this section. State ex rel. Sparks v. State Bank and Trust Co., 31 Nev. 456, 465, 472, 473, 474 (103 P. 407).

Act of February 27, 1883, entitled "An act to regulate fees and compensation for official and other services in the state, and to repeal all other acts in relation thereto," and regulating the fees of officers in the state, including sheriffs and constables, contains but one general subject and matter properly connected therewith, and is not in conflict with this section. Russell v. Esmeralda County, 32 Nev. 304 (107 P. 890, 891).

Bills, reading and passage.

276. SEC: 18. Every bill shall be read by sections on three several days, in each House, unless in case of emergency, two-thirds of the House where such bill may be pending, shall deem it expedient to dispense with this rule; but the reading of a bill by sections, on its final passage, shall in no case be dispensed with, and the vote on the final passage of every bill or joint resolution shall be taken by yeas and nays, to be entered on the journals of each House; and a majority of all the members elected to each House, shall be necessary to pass every bill or joint resolution, and all bills or joint resolutions so passed, shall be signed by the presiding officers of the respective Houses, and by the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the Assembly.

T. C. C. p. 90.

Where an act has been passed by the legislature, signed by the proper officers of each house, approved by the governor, and filed in the office of the secretary of state, it constitutes a record which is conclusive evidence of the passage of the act as enrolled. Neither the journals kept by the legislature, nor the bill as originally introduced, nor the amendments attached to it, nor parol evidence, can be received in order to show that an act of the legislature, properly enrolled, authenticated and deposited with the secretary of state, did not become a law. This court, for the purpose of informing itself of the existence or terms of a law, cannot look beyond the enrolled act certified to by those officers who are charged by the constitution with the duty of certifying and with the duty of deciding what laws have been enacted. State ex rel. George v. Swift, 10 Nev. 176, 180, 181-185, 187-189, 192, 196, 199, 200 (21 A. R. 721).

Cited, State ex rel. Chase v. Rogers, 10 Nev. 250 (21 A. R. 738); State ex rel. Cardwell v. Glenn, 18 Nev. 35, 38, 39 (1 P. 186).

An enrolled bill, signed by the proper officers and deposited with the secretary of state, is conclusively presumed to have been regularly enacted; and the courts cannot look to memoranda endorsed on the bill, or to the legislative journals, to determine whether the bill was read on three several days in each house, as required by this section. State ex rel. Osburn v. Beck, 25 Nev. 68, 79 (56 P. 1008); State ex rel. Sutherland v. Nye, 23 Nev. 99, 101 (42 P. 866).

Section 35, article 4, provides that, when a bill is received by the governor, within five days of the final adjournment of the legislature, he may prevent it from becoming a law by returning it to the secretary of state, with his objection, within ten days after the adjournment, but that such bill shall be referred to the succeeding legislature, which may pass it over the veto by a two-thirds vote. A bill was passed by both houses of the legislature, and signed by the presiding officers, who transmitted it to the governor, who returned it, with his objections, to the secretary of state after the adjournment of the session. Held, that the failure of the presiding officers of the succeeding legislature to sign the bill, which was passed over the veto, rendered the law invalid, since this section is mandatory, and applies to the passage of bills over the governor's veto. State ex rel. Coffin v. Howell, 26 Nev. 93, 99, 101, 102, 105 (64 P. 466), Fitzgerald, J., dissenting.

Public moneys, how disbursed and accounted for.

277. SEC: 19. No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law. An accurate statement of the receipts and expenditures of the public money shall be attached to and published with the laws at every regular session of the Legislature.

T. C. C. pp. 97, 471.

The legislature has power to appropriate money as it sees fit except when limited by the constitution. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 17, 31.

Section 1 of the statutes of 1897 (page 82) provides that the following sums are appropriated "for the purposes hereinafter named, and for the support of the state government for the fiscal years 1897 and 1898. For the salary of the governor, $8,000." Forty other sums are named for as many purposes, without designating any fund. Section 34 reads: For the salary of one teacher and one assistant teacher at the state orphans' home, $2,400, payable out of the general school fund." Held, that, though the last clause of section 34 is in conflict with the constitution and void, the remainder of the section is not affected by such fact, and makes a valid appropriation out of the "general fund" in the state treasury. State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 468 (20 P. 119).

It will be observed that it is not required that the fund out of which the appropriations are to be made shall be named in the appropriation act. Usually, if not always, other acts, or the constitution, show what fund the money appropriated is to be drawn from. State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 473 (49 P. 119).

Since Statutes 1901, p. 60, sec. 38, which makes appropriations for the fiscal years 1901 and 1902 for the current and contingent expenses of the supreme court, etc., appropriates money to pay for the furniture for the supreme court room, the question of the court's power, notwithstanding this section, to order furniture for its court room and require the state to pay therefor, in the absence of an appropriation act, does not arise. State ex rel. Kitzmeyer v. Davis, 26 Nev. 373, 380 (68 P. 689).

Statutes 1907 (p. 408, c. 185) created a state industrial and publicity commission, and provided (sec. 3, p. 409) that the chairman should receive from the state treasury the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars a year in monthly installments, and that the members of the commission should be allowed necessary mileage and traveling expenses on affidavit of the members claiming the same that the mileage and expenses were actually and necessarily incurred in official business. Held, that the act constituted a sufficient appropriation of the salary of the chairman; but, as it failed to prescribe any maximum expenditure for traveling expenses, the act was void in so far as it authorized payment of such expenses by the state. State ex rel. Davis v. Eggers, 29 Nev. 469, 473, 485 (16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 630, 91 P. 519).

Legislative powers restricted.

278. SEC: 20. The Legislature shall not pass local or special laws in any of the following enumerated cases—That is to say:

Regulating the jurisdiction and duties of Justices of the Peace and of Constables:

For the punishment of crimes and misdemeanors:

Regulating the practice of courts of justice:

Providing for changing the Venue in civil and criminal cases:

Granting divorces:

Changing the names of persons:

Vacating roads, town plots, streets, alleys and public Squares:

Summoning and empanneling grand and petit juries, and providing for their compensation:

Regulating county and township business:

Regulating the election of county and township officers:

For the assessment and collection of taxes for State, County, and Township purposes:

Providing for opening and conducting elections of State, County, or Township officers, and designating the places of voting:

Providing for the sale of real estate belonging to Minors or other person [laboring]¹ under legal disabilities:

²[Giving effect to invalid deeds, wills, or other instruments:

Refunding money paid into the State Treasury, or into the treasury of any county:

Releasing the indebtedness, liability or obligation of any corporation, association, or person to the State, or to any county, town or city of this State; But nothing in this section shall be construed to deny or restrict the power of the Legislature, to establish and regulate the compensation and fees of county and township officers; to establish and regulate the rates of freight, passage toll, and charges of railroads, toll roads, ditch, flume and tunnel companies incorporated under the laws of this State or doing business therein.]

T. C. C. pp. 110, 472.

[As amended. Proposed and passed at the Twelfth Session of the Legislature, February 23, 1885, Statutes of 1885, page 152; agreed to and passed at the Thirteenth Session of the Legislature, March 3, 1887, Statutes of 1887, page 166, and approved and ratified by the people at a special election held February 11, 1889.]

Section two of the act of 1869, providing for the transfer of certain records and suits from the county-seat of Lander County to the county-seat of White Pine County (Stats. 1869, 137), though local and special in its nature, does not provide for changing the venue in any case, and is therefore not in conflict with this section.

To change the venue in a case is to direct the trial to be had in a different county from that where the venue is laid; but if a new county be created out of a portion of an old one, an act directing suits relating to property in the new one to be tried in the new county is not an act changing the venue of such suits.

Where the County of White Pine was created out of a portion of the County of Lander, and certain records and suits relating to property in the new county were directed by legislative act to be transferred from the county-seat of Lander County to the county-seat of White Pine County, and to be tried in the district court of the eighth instead of the sixth judicial district: Held, that such act was not an act changing venue within the meaning of the constitutional prohibition of a legislative change of venue. This act is not an act regulating the practice of courts of justice. State ex rel. Hooten v. McKinney, 5 Nev. 194, 198, 201.

The venue is the county from which the jury are to come who are to try the issue. That is, it is the county wherein the action is brought and the jury are to be obtained. State ex rel. Hooten v. McKinney, 5 Nev. 199.

This section, so far as it forbids local or special laws "for the assessment and collection of taxes," was intended simply to inhibit local or special laws respecting or regulating the manner or mode of assessing and collecting taxes, and does not prevent the legislature from authorizing or directing county commissioners from levying a special tax by the passage of a local law. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284, 304, 305.

The word "for" in this section which inhibits local or special laws "for the assessment and collection of taxes," means "with respect to," or "with regard to." Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284, 304.

The act creating the County of White Pine and providing for its organization (Stats. 1869, 108) is not in conflict with sections twenty, twenty-one, or thirty-two, of this article.

² Added to original section by this amendment.

A "local" act is one operating over a particular locality instead of over the whole territory of the state; a "special" act is one operating upon one or a portion of a class instead of upon all of a class.

The above act as it refers to only one new county and its organization, instead of to all new counties, and to those only of a class or whole, occupying or proposing to occupy such county, is a local and special act.

The word "elected" in its ordinary signification carries with it the idea of a vote, generally popular, but sometimes more restricted, and cannot be held the synonym of any other mode of filling a position.

This act does not regulate the election of county and township officers, and is therefore not repugnant to this section. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 111, 119, 121.

The legislature has full and complete control of the entire subject of counties and county-seats, save where prohibited by constitutional provisions.

The act of February 17, 1871, fixing the county-seat of Washoe County at Reno (Stats. 1871, 59) is not obnoxious to the constitutional provision against special and local legislation.

As the legislature has no authority to enact a local or special law when a general one can be made applicable, it is competent for the courts, in case of a special or local act properly presented to them, to inquire whether or not a general law could have been made applicable.

It appearing that the constitutional provision against special and local legislation was borrowed from Indiana, and that previous thereto the Indiana courts had decided that a special or local law could not be enacted when a general one could be made applicable, and that a general law could be made applicable to the subject of the removal of county-seats: Held, that the construction of the Indiana courts as to the meaning of the provision was adopted, but not their application of it to the subject of county-seats.

The decision as to whether a special or local law can be passed, or in other words, whether or not a general law can be made applicable, is primarily in the legislature; and its decision, though subject to review by the courts, will be presumptively correct.

Where, notwithstanding the existence of a general statute in relation to the removal of county-seats, the legislature passed a special act in reference to the removal of a particular county-seat: Held, that the presumption was that the general act was not and could not be made applicable. Hess v. Pegg, 7 Nev. 23, 27, 30.

The act of February 16, 1871, directing the issuance and payment of county warrants for the relief of James Leffingwell (Stats. 1871, 57) is a special law regulating county business, and therefore in violation of this section.

Under the constitutional provision against the passage of local or special laws regulating county or township business: Held, that a special act, auditing and allowing a preexisting claim against a county, appointing the mode and manner of its payment, directing the drawing of county warrants and fixing the rate of interest they should bear, was unconstitutional.

The policy of the constitution is local management of local affairs, regulated by general laws of uniform application throughout the state. Williams v. Bidleman, 7 Nev. 68, 70, 73.

Sections 20 and 21 of this article were intended to prohibit the legislature from passing any local or special law in any of the cases enumerated in section 20 and in all other cases where a general law would be applicable—that is, adapted to the wants of the people, suitable to the just purposes of legislation or to effect the object sought to be accomplished.

These provisions recognize the fact that cases would arise in the ordinary course of legislation requiring local or special laws to be passed—cases where a general law might be applicable to the general subject but not applicable to the particular case.

A general law should always be construed to be "applicable" in the constitutional sense, where the entire people of the state have an interest in the subject, such as regulating interest, the statutes of frauds and limitations, but where only a portion of the people are affected, as in locating a county-seat, it will depend upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case whether such a law would be applicable.

Where a local or special law has been passed in reference to a matter affecting a portion only of the people, it will be presumed to be valid until facts are presented showing beyond any reasonable doubt that a general law is applicable.

The mere fact that a general law has been passed providing for the removal of county-seats is not proof that it is applicable to a particular case; and if a special act be passed for the particular case, the presumption of the applicability of the general law is overcome by the presumption, in favor of the special act, that the general act was not applicable in that case.

If, when an unconstitutional portion of a statute is stricken out, that which remains is complete in itself and capable of being executed wholly independent of that which was rejected, it must be sustained. Evans v. Job, 8 Nev. 322, 333, 334.

The statutes of 1867 and 1869, creating a fund and providing for the redemption in a certain manner of outstanding indebtedness of Esmeralda County (Stats. 1867, 76; 1869, 58), are not in violation of this constitutional provision against "special and local laws regulating county business"; nor do they impair the obligation of contracts.

A statute prescribing the manner in which the payment of the indebtedness of a county shall be conducted is a law regulating county business.

The words "public or general" on the one hand, and "private or special" on the other, as applied to statutes, are convertible terms; so that the word "special" when used is as much the antithesis of "public" as it is of "general."

A statute, to be general, must be operative alike upon all persons similarly situated; but it need not be applicable to all counties in the state.

The above statutes are applicable to all persons sustaining the relation of creditors to Esmeralda County, and are therefore general as contradistinguished from special laws.

As in expounding a constitutional provision such construction should be employed as will prevent any clause, sentence or word from being superfluous, void or insignificant: full and distinct meaning should be given to each of the words "local" and "special" in the constitutional provision against "local and special laws regulating county business."

A statute may be special and not local, or it may be local and not special.

A local law is one relating, belonging or confined to a particular place as distinguished from general, personal or transitory.

The said statutes, as they embrace all persons holding a certain species of property irrespective of locality, and operate as to such property as well without as within Esmeralda County, are not local laws. Youngs v. Hall, 9 Nev. 212, 217, 222, 223, 224.

The constitutionality of the act funding the indebtedness of Lincoln County (1873, 54) sustained upon the authority of Youngs v. Hall (9 Nev. 212). Odd Fellows Savings and Commercial Bank v. Quillen, 11 Nev. 109, 115.

The provision of the act creating the office of city recorder has no reference to the jurisdiction of justices of the peace. The offices are distinct, though under the act of incorporation both offices may be held by the same person. State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 128, 140.

A law which applies only to an individual or to a number of individuals selected out of the class to which they belong, is a special law. State v. California M. Co., 15 Nev. 234, 248, 249.

Sections 2 and 4 of the "Act to discontinue litigation touching inequitable claims for taxes and penalties" (Stats. 1879, 143) are unconstitutional, being a special law for the "collection of taxes for state, county, and township purposes" in violation of this section.

The "Act prescribing an additional penalty for the non-payment of taxes in certain cases after suit" (Stat. 1873, 169), is constitutional, it being a general law imposing the same burdens upon all persons similarly situated and belonging to the same class. State v. Con. Virginia M. Co., 16 Nev. 432, 438, 443, 444, 445, 447, 448.

Section 2 of the statute of 1883, 123, extending the terms of county assessors beyond the time for which they were elected, is unconstitutional and void. State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 412, 418, 419 (4 P. 735).

The act regulating the compensation of county officers (Stat. 1885, 85) is not in violation of this section prohibiting the legislature from passing local or special laws "for the assessment and collection of taxes for state, county and township purposes." It is within the power of the legislature to pass local or special laws regulating the compensation of county officers.

The said statute, in so far as it relates to Washoe County, is constitutional. State ex rel. Williams v. Fogus, 19 Nev. 247, 249, 251, 252 (9 P. 123).

The legislature has the power to make a classification of counties, based upon a voting population. The validity of such an act is not dependent upon the number of counties coming within the designated class. If in its operation and effect the act is so framed as to apply in the future to all counties coming within the class mentioned and is based upon real and substantial grounds—not illusory or odious in their character—it is neither local nor special within the meaning of this section.

An act to restrict gaming providing that certain games should not be carried on in any room of the first floor or story of any building, nor a license issued therefor in any county where more than 1,500 votes were cast at the general election last preceding the application, is not in violation of this section, although at the time the application was made there was only one county in the state to which the law could apply. State ex rel. Patterson v. Donovan, 20 Nev. 75, 78, 80 (15 P. 783).

The act of the legislature (Stats. 1887, p. 126) regulating the fees and compensation of the officers of Ormsby County is not unconstitutional as being local or special legislation. The Comstock Mill and Mining Co. v. Allen, 21 Nev. 325, 330 (31 P. 434).

The act of 1891, page 56, is simply an exercise of the right of the legislature to classify property for the purpose of taxation, and as in authorizing the board to assess property it applies to all railroads in the state, it is a general law, and not in conflict with this section forbidding special laws for the assessment and collection of taxes. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 391, 398 (32 P. 437).

A law, though not applicable to all counties in the state, may be of a general nature by reason of the fact that localities and objects upon which it acts are distinguished from others by a peculiar relation to the legislative purpose. Singleton v. Eureka County, 22 Nev. 91, 94 (35 P. 833).

The act of the legislature entitled "An act fixing the salary of the justice of the peace in and for Eureka township, Eureka County, State of Nevada" (Statutes, Nevada, 1891, p. 35), by terms of which the justice of the peace in the township named was allowed a salary of $60 per month in lieu of fees from the county, though a special and local act, is not unconstitutional and is therefore valid.

The former constitutional restriction upon the legislature concerning the subject of compensation of county and township officers was, prior to the year 1891, removed in terms by the amendment of this section by the exception to the provision restricting the legislature concerning the passing of special and local laws regulating county and township business (as amended February 11, 1889). State ex rel. McNamee v. Spinner, 22 Nev. 213, 217 (37 P. 837).

The act of the legislature of March 15, 1895 (Stats. 1895, p. 73), entitled "An act to incorporate Storey County and to provide for the government thereof," is a local and special act regulating county business, and consequently in conflict with this section. Schweiss v. First Judicial District Court, 23 Nev. 226, 230, 232 (34 L. R. A. 602, 45 P. 289).

The act approved March 6, 1897 (Stats. 1897, p. 47) providing for the payment of the indebtedness of Lincoln County, is not in violation of the constitutional provision against "special and local laws regulating county business."

A general law to be "applicable," in the sense in which the word is used in this section, must answer the just purpose of legislation, that is, best subserve the interest of the people of the state, or such class or portion as the particular legislation is intended to affect. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 111, 119, 120, 121.

The legislative fund, act of 1869 (Stats. 1869, 54), does not violate this section, because no general law could be made applicable to its subject-matter. State ex rel. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 15, 23.

The statute providing for the admission to probate of the unattested will of Henry Sticknoth (Stats. 1871, 129) was held not objectionable as a special act in case where a general law could be made applicable. In re Sticknoth, 7 Nev. 224, 233.

In construing section 6 of the act of 1875, p. 47, which provides that it shall not apply "to those who have practiced medicine or surgery in this state for a period of ten years next preceding the passage of this act": Held, that said provision is not in violation of this section.

Held, that there is some reason for requiring ten years' practice in this state as a qualification for the continued practice of medicine or surgery; but there is no sort of reason for requiring that practice to have extended over passed a number of acts of the same character, and it having been the recognized law of the state for a number of years, the question must be considered as settled. Thompson v. Turner, 24 Nev. 292, 298 (53 P. 178).

This section prohibits the legislature from passing local or special laws for the assessment and collection of taxes. As held by this court in Ex Parte Robinson, 12 Nev. 263, 28 Am. Rep. 794, and Ex Parte Cohn, 13 Nev. 427, these limitations apply to taxes, and not to licenses, leaving the legislature to regulate the latter with a free hand where they do not encroach and discriminate in relation to taxes as properly and ordinarily understood, and without other restraint except the responsibility of the legislators to their constituents. Wallace v. Mayor of Reno, 27 Nev. 71, 77 (103 A. S. 747, 63 L. R. A. 337, 73 P. 828).

The act of March 29, 1907, making it a crime to receive bank deposits knowing the bank to be insolvent, is not unconstitutional, as being a special law for the punishment of offenses. Neither is the law objectionable as class legislation. Ex Parte Pittman, 31 Nev. 44, 47 (22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 266, 99 P. 700).

The act of March 26, 1907, authorizing a particular county to issue bonds to build a court-house and a jail, is not unconstitutional under this section, which inhibits local or special laws regulating county business, nor under sections 21 and 25 requiring the county government system to be uniform, and all laws to be general and of uniform operation throughout the state, where general laws can be made applicable. State ex rel. Henderson Banking Co. v. Lytton, 31 Nev. 67, 68, 69 (99 P. 853).

The act of March 26, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 232, c. 119), section 10, is not open to the objection of being special legislation because providing for appointment of receivers for insolvent banks only; banks being a subject which may be legislated on alone. *State ex rel. Section 21 provides that "in all cases enumerated in the preceding section and in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable, all laws shall be general and of uniform operation throughout the state." An act of the legislature provided that after May 1, 1911, the county commissioners of Lyon County should remove the offices and archives and other movable property from Dayton to Yerington. The general act of 1877 (Stats. 1877, c. 84), provides for the removal of county-seats by a majority of the voters at an election called on petition of three-fifths of the taxpayers who are electors. Prior to the last general election the courthouse at Dayton was destroyed by fire. Held, that the special act was justified on the ground that an emergency existed, calling for prompt action.

If a special act be passed for a particular case, the presumption of the applicability of the general law is overcome by the presumption in favor of the special act that the general act was not applicable.

The legislature in the first instance is the judge as to whether a law on any subject not enumerated in the constitution can be made general and applicable to the whole state, and the judgment of the legislature as to whether a general law is applicable or special, or local laws are required regarding subjects not so enumerated, is presumed to be correct, but is subject to review by the courts.

tem of public schools. In carrying out these provisions, they may abolish any county offices other than those specially created by the constitution. State v. Tilford, 1 Nev. 240, 245.

It was the intention of the legislature to classify the counties by a voting population at the general election, and to give to each county polling four thousand or more votes five commissioners, and all other counties three, for a period of two years, commencing on the first Monday in January after the general election, in pursuance of the provisions of this section. State ex rel. Copeland v. Woodbury, 17 Nev. 338, 340, 344 (30 P. 1006).

The act fixing the salaries of county officers in certain counties (Stats. 1883, 73), is illusory, because some of its provisions are applicable only to Washoe County and others only to Esmeralda County, and the basis of the classification as made in section 10 is unconstitutional, because in its practical operation it is applicable only to two counties and can never affect any other county.

In order to observe the uniformity required by this section, the classification of counties must be based upon reasonable and actual differences; the legislation must be appropriate to the classification, and embrace all within the class.

The requirement that the system of county government shall be uniform, is not considered to impart universality to the operation of the law. State ex rel. Attorney-General v. Boyd, 19 Nev. 43, 44, 46 (5 P. 735).

The constitution and the law have given the wife certain rights; the failure of the legislature to point out the particular manner in which she shall assert them is immaterial. She may come into a court of equity according to the established forms and usages of that court, and obtain any equitable relief to which she is entitled. Goldman v. Clark, 1 Nev. 607, 610.

It is clearly the intention of the constitution to protect a debtor's homestead from forced sale. It is equally clear the legislature intended to effectuate that intention. This being the policy of the law, creditors will not be allowed to defeat its object unless the statute clearly gives that right, or clearly points out the contingency upon the transpiring of which the debtor will lose his exemption.

Property which possesses the characteristics of a homestead may be selected and recorded as such at any time before actual sale under execution. The levy of an attachment will not prevent such selection. Hawthorne v. Smith, 3 Nev. 182, 186, 187, 188 (93 A. D. 397).

The act of March 6, 1865 (Statutes of 1864-5, 224), to exempt the homestead and other property from forced sale in certain cases, in so far as it provides that no valid mortgage, for the purpose of securing a loan or indebtedness, can be made by husband and wife upon their homestead, is unconstitutional.

The proviso of this section expressly prohibits the legislature from exempting the homestead from forced sale upon a lien created by husband and wife for a loan or indebtedness. Dunker v. Chedic, 4 Nev. 378, 381, 382, 383.

There can be no homestead right acquired in property as against the purchase money unless the lien therefor, whether created by mortgage or existing by way of vendor's lien, has been relieved in some lawful way.

In a foreclosure suit on a mortgage given by a husband to secure the purchase money of land, and made contemporaneously with the deed of the land to him, the wife, being admitted to defend, set up a homestead right: Held, that neither husband nor wife could acquire any homestead right as against the mortgage debt. Hopper v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 233, 237.

In construing the homestead law of 1865: Held, that a town lot upon which is erected a dwelling-house, two other buildings used as stores, and a stone house for storing goods, the buildings being separate from each other, can be claimed and held as a homestead; that the law exempts from execution a tract of land in which the homestead is located, to the extent of five thousand dollars in value, without limiting the other uses to which the land is put, as long as it is used and claimed as a homestead. Smith v. Stewart, 13 Nev. 65.

In construing the homestead law of this state: Held, that when a declaration of homestead is filed, the property is held by the husband and wife as joint tenants, and that upon the death of either the homestead property vests absolutely in the survivor. (Beatty, J., dissenting.)

When no declaration has been filed upon the homestead property, no joint tenancy is created; in such case if it was common property, one-half vested in the wife upon the death of the husband, and the other half vested in the minor children of said deceased and his wife. Smith v. Shrieves, 13 Nev. 303, 329.

A homestead, in fact, in the absence of a recorded declaration that it has been selected as such, can be mortgaged by the husband alone without the consent of his wife. Child v. Singleton, 15 Nev. 461, 463.

A homestead duly filed upon while husband and wife were residing thereon, remains a homestead in his hands after her death, and as such is exempt from levy and sale for his debts where he continues to reside upon it, although he has no children or other dependent relatives residing with him. Roberts v. Greer, 22 Nev. 318, 329 (58 A. S. 755, 40 P. 6).

Separate property of wife.

289. SEC. 31. All property, both real and personal, of the wife owned or claimed by her before marriage, and that acquired afterward by gift, devise or descent, shall be her separate property; and laws shall be passed, more clearly defining the rights of the wife in relation, as well to her separate property, as to that held in common with her husband. Laws shall also be passed providing for the registration of the Wives separate property.

T. C. C. pp. 405, 502.

Power of Legislature over county officers.

290. SEC. 32: The Legislature shall have power to increase, diminish, consolidate, or abolish the following county officers: County Clerks, County Recorders, Auditors, Sheriffs, District Attorneys, County Surveyors, Public Administrators and Superintendents of Schools. The Legislature shall provide for their election by the people, and fix by law their duties and compensation. County Clerks shall be ex officio Clerks of the Courts of Record and of the Boards of County Commissioners in and for their respective counties.

[As amended. Proposed and passed at the Thirteenth Session of the Legislature, March 3, 1887, Statutes of 1887, page 161; agreed to and passed at the Fourteenth Session of the Legislature, January 17, 1889, Statutes of 1889, page 151, and approved and ratified by the people at a special election held February 11, 1889.]

T. C. C. pp. 210, 483, 490.

[SEC. 32. The Legislature shall provide for the election by the people of a Clerk of the Supreme Court, County Clerks, County Recorders who shall be ex-officio County Auditors, District Attorneys, Sheriffs, County Surveyors, Public Administrators and other necessary officers, and fix by law their duties and compensation. County Clerks shall be ex-officio Clerks of the Courts of Record, and of the Boards of County Commissioners in and for their respective Counties.]

The county recorders who, under this section, become ex officio auditors, are those only who are elected under a legislative enactment passed after the adoption of the constitution. The fact that a recorder is elected after the adoption of the constitution, but not under a law passed after its adoption, will not entitle him to the position of auditor. *Brown v. The constitutional provision requiring county and township officers to be elected by the people, does not apply in cases of emergency or special occasion, such as the creation of a new office or a vacancy. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 111, 112, 119, 121.

County assessors are necessary officers within the meaning of this section, and must be elected by the people. The legislature has no power to extend the terms of such officers beyond the time for which they were elected, except temporarily in cases of emergency.

Section 2 of the Statutes of 1883, 123, extending the terms of county assessors beyond the time for which they were elected, is unconstitutional and void. State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 412 (4 P. 735).

This section, as it formerly stood, requiring the legislature to provide for the election of certain state and county officers, "and other necessary officers," referred by the words quoted to officers ejusdem generis with those enumerated, and not to other classes of officers. *State ex rel. Compensation, expenses.

291. SEC: 33. The members of the Legislature shall receive for their services, a compensation to be fixed by law and paid out of the Public treasury, but no increase of such compensation shall take effect during the term for which the members of either house shall have been elected. Provided, that an appropriation may be made for the payment of such actual expenses as members of the Legislature may incur for postage, express charges, news papers and Stationery, not exceeding the sum of Sixty dollars, for any general or Special Session, to each member: and Furthermore Provided, that the Speaker of the Assembly, and Lieutenant Governor, as President of the Senate, shall each, during the time of their Actual Attendance as such presiding Officers receive an additional allowance of two dollars per diem.

T. C. C. pp. 101, 471.

The law making the lieutenant-governor ex officio warden of the state prison, and allowing him a salary for such services, does not conflict with this section. The lieutenant-governor in office at the time of the passage of the law may, therefore, draw the salary allowed to him as warden. Crosman v. Nightingill, 1 Nev. 323, 325, 326.

The legislative fund act of 1869 (Stats. 1869, 54) in so far as it provides for interest on warrants drawn for the pay of legislators, is not repugnant to this section, for the reason that the interest, if any accrues, is to be paid

Elections of U. S. Senators.

292. SEC: 34. In all elections for United States Senators, such elections shall be held in joint convention of both Houses of the Legislature. It shall be the duty of the Legislature which convenes next preceding the expiration of the term of such Senator, to elect his successor. If a vacancy in such Senatorial representation from any cause occur, it shall be the duty of the Legislature then in Session, or at the succeeding Session thereof, to supply such vacancy. If the Legislature shall at any time as herein provided, fail to unite in a joint convention within twenty days after the commencement of the Session of the Legislature, for the Election [of] such Senator, it shall be the duty of the Governor, by proclamation to convene the two Houses of the Legislature in joint convention, within not less than five days, nor exceeding ten days, from the publication of his proclamation, and the joint convention when so assembled shall proceed to elect the Senator as herein provided.

This section prior to amendment of 1889, provided that the legislature should provide for election of a clerk of supreme court and certain county officers. Provision for the election of such clerk was made. This section, as amended in 1889, requires that the legislature shall provide for the election of certain county officers, omitting mention of the clerk. Sections 8 and 12 of article 15 of the constitution provide that the clerk shall have his office at the seat of government, and that opinions of the supreme court must be filed therein before its judgments become operative: Held, that the office of clerk of the supreme court was not abolished by its omission from the amendment of 1889 and the failure of the legislature to reestablish it, but continued as a constitutional office under the provision made pursuant to the original constitution; and hence Statutes 1893, page 32, providing that the secretary of state shall be ex officio clerk of the supreme court, was effective. State ex rel. Howell v. La Grave, 23 Nev. 374, 383, 384, 385 (48 P. 674).

This section provides, as amended in 1889, that the legislature shall have power to increase, diminish, consolidate or abolish certain county officers: Held, that by expressly designating certain offices which might be consolidated, the constitution intended to exclude all other offices, and hence the act of February 20, 1893 (Stats. 1893, p. 32, c. 35), providing that the secretary of state shall be ex officio clerk of the supreme court and ex officio state librarian, while sufficient to confer color of authority on the secretary of state acting ex officio clerk of the supreme court, it is without force as an amendment or repeal, by implication, of the statute (Comp. Laws, sections 1782, 1790, and 1793) providing for the election of a clerk of the supreme court in the manner other state officers are elected. State ex rel. Joseph v. Douglass, 33 Nev. —(110 P. 177, 178, 181).

not as compensation for services but as damages for delay. State ex rel. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 16, 28.

The legislature passed an act in favor of relator, for payment of his services as president pro tem. of the senate, in addition to his regular pay as senator. Held, that this was in effect an attempt to increase his compensation as a senator, and hence, unconstitutional. State ex rel. King v. Hallock, 16 Nev. 152, 153.

Governor's veto powers.

293. SEC: 35. Every bill which may have passed the Legislature, shall, before it becomes a law be presented to the Governor. If he approve it, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it with his objections, to the House in which it originated, which House shall cause such objections to be entered upon its Journal, and proceed to reconsider it; If after such reconsideration it again pass both Houses, by Yeas and Nays, by a vote of two thirds of the members elected to each House, it shall become a law notwithstanding the Governor's objections. If any bill shall not be returned within five days after it shall have been presented to him (Sunday excepted) exclusive of the day on which he received it, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Legislature by its final adjournment prevent such return, in which case it shall be a law, unless the Governor within ten days next after the adjournment (Sundays excepted) shall file such bill with his objections thereto, in the Office of the Secretary of State, who shall lay the same before the Legislature at its next Session, in like manner as if it had been returned by the Governor, and if the same shall receive the vote of two thirds of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature, upon a vote taken by Yeas and Nays to be entered upon the Journals of each House, it shall become a law.

T. C. C. pp. 91, 469.

Without the express approval of the governor, an act of the legislature can only become a law in two cases. First: When it is passed over his objections by a two-thirds' vote of each house. Second: When he fails to return a bill with his objections within the time prescribed by the constitution.

When the governor in due time sends back a bill which has been submitted to him, stating that he cannot act on it because of some supposed informality in its passage, this is in effect an objection to the bill, and it can only become a law by further action of the legislative branch, although the governor may have been mistaken as to the supposed defect in the bill. Birdsall v. Carrick, 3 Nev. 154, 156, 157.

A bill was passed by both houses of the legislature, and signed by the presiding officers, who transmitted it to the governor, who returned it, with his objections, to the secretary of state after the adjournment of the session: Held, that the failure of the presiding officers of the succeeding legislature to sign the bill, which was passed over the veto, rendered the law invalid, since section 18 is mandatory, and applies to the passage of bills over the governor's veto. (Fitzgerald, J., dissenting.) State ex rel. Coffin v. Howell, 26 Nev. 93, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105 (64 P. 466).

An enrolled bill, signed by the proper officers, approved by the governor, and filed with the secretary of state, is conclusive evidence of the passage of the act as enrolled. (See citations under section 18 of this article.)

ARTICLE 5.EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.*Executive power vested.

294. SECTION 1. The supreme executive power of this State, shall be vested in a Chief Magistrate who shall be Governor of the State of Nevada.

T. C. C. pp. 139, 475.

The act incorporating Carson City (Stats. 1875, 87) is not in conflict with this section. Naming, in the act of incorporation, the persons who were to constitute the provisional or initiatory board of trustees was not the exercise of a power intrinsically executive. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 111, affirmed; State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 128, 135.

Cited, State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 416 (4 P. 735).

The governor may recommend the passage of laws, and may veto bills passed by the senate and assembly; but when an act not in conflict with the constitution passes both houses of the legislature, and is approved by him or passes over his veto, it becomes binding, and no person is above a law so enacted. As he cannot prevent its passage over his veto, he is powerless to set aside a statute after it has become a law.

Neither the legislature nor the courts can compel the governor to perform acts which would be in conflict with the powers and prerogatives conferred upon him by the constitution. As to these he is absolute. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. — (113 P. 105, 106).

Governor elected.

295. SEC. 2: The Governor shall be elected by the qualified electors at the time and places of voting for members of the Legislature, and shall hold his office for four years from the time of his installation, and until his Successor shall be qualified.

T. C. C. pp. 140, 475.

Who eligible to office of Governor.

296. SEC: 3. No person shall be eligible to the Office of Governor, who is not a qualified elector, and who, at the time of such election, has not attained the age of twenty five years; and who, except at the first election under this Constitution, shall not have been a citizen resident of this State for two years next preceding the election.

T. C. C. pp. 140, 476.

This section requires that a party, to be eligible to the office of governor, shall possess certain qualifications as to age and length of residence beyond those provided for a mere elector. State ex rel. Nourse v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 569.

Canvass of returns.

297. SEC: 4. The returns of every election for Governor, and other State Officers voted for at the general election, shall be sealed up and transmitted to the Seat of Government directed to the Secretary of State, and on the third Monday of December succeeding such election, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Associate Justices or a majority thereof, shall meet at the office of the Secretary of State, and open and canvass the election returns for Governor, and all other State Officers, and forthwith declare the result and publish the names of the persons elected. The persons having the highest number of votes for the respective offices shall be declared elected, but in case any two or more have an equal, and the highest number of votes for the same Office, the Legislature shall by joint vote of both Houses, elect one of said persons to fill said Office.

T. C. C. pp. 140, 476.

Military authority of Governor.

298. SEC: 5. The Governor shall be Commander in Chief of the military forces of this State except when they shall be called into the service of the United States.

T. C. C. pp. 141, 476.

Duties of Governor.

299. SEC: 6. He shall transact all executive business with the Officers of the Government Civil and Military; and may require information in writing, from the Officers of the Executive Department, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective Offices.

T. C. C. pp. 141, 476.

Idem.

300. SEC: 7. He shall see that the laws are faithfully executed.

T. C. C. pp. 141, 477.

The provision in the act entitled "An act to require the acceptance and collection of grants, devises, bequests, donations, and assignments to the state of Nevada," approved February 26, 1901 (Stats. 1901, c. 19), that "whenever any grant, devise, bequest, donation or gift or assignment of money, bonds, or choses in action shall be made to this state, the governor is directed to receive and accept the same, so that the right and title to the same shall pass to the state," imposes a ministerial duty upon the governor which could have been conferred as well upon any other officer or person, and which in no way conflicts with or pertains to the constitutional powers or prerogatives of the governor, excepting that this section makes it his duty to enforce this and other statutes. He is nowhere empowered to set aside the law because he may not agree with its policy. He is as much unauthorized to prevent the reception of the bonds as if the legislature had directed the state treasurer instead of the governor to accept them for the state. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. — (113 P. 105, 106, 111, 114).

May fill vacancies.

301. SEC: 8. When any Office shall, from any cause become vacant, and no mode is provided by the Constitution and laws for filling such vacancy, the Governor shall have the power to fill such vacancy by granting a commission, which shall expire at the next election and qualification of the person elected to such Office.

T. C. C. pp. 141, 477.

Where a new office is created, and no person appointed to fill it, there is a vacancy.

There is no technical or peculiar meaning in the word "vacant" as used in this section; it means empty, unoccupied, without an incumbent; and it applies to new offices never filled, as well as to old ones vacated by death, resignation or otherwise.

Though the constitution provides in some instances what shall operate a vacancy in office, such as absence of judicial officers, etc., this does not prohibit the legislature from enumerating other causes. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 112.

The act incorporating Carson City (Stats. 1875, 87) is not in conflict with this section.

See State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 123, 135, under section 1 of this article.

May convene Legislature.

302. SEC: 9. The Governor may on extraordinary occasions, convene the Legislature by proclamation and shall state to both houses when organized, the purpose for which they have been convened, and the Legislature shall transact no legislative business, except that for which they were especially convened, or such other legislative business as the Governor may call to the attention of the Legislature while in session.

T. C. C. pp. 145, 477.

The legislature of this state, when convened in special session, can only legislate over those subjects for which they were specially convened, and such others as may be called to their attention during the session by the governor.

The secretary of state may transmit to the legislature in extra session the bills vetoed by the governor after the expiration of the regular session; but unless the governor call attention to these vetoed bills and require action thereon, the legislature is powerless to act until the next regular session. Jones v. Theall, 3 Nev. 233, 235, 236, 237, 238.

Message to Legislature.

303. SEC: 10. He shall communicate by Message to the Legislature, at every regular Session, the condition of the State and recommend such measures as he may deem expedient.

T. C. C. pp. 145, 477.

May adjourn Legislature.

304. SEC: 11. In case of a disagreement between the two Houses, with respect to the time of adjournment, the Governor shall have power to adjourn the Legislature to such time as he may think proper; Provided, it be not beyond the time fixed for the meeting of the next Legislature.

T. C. C. pp. 145, 477.

Certain persons ineligible.

305. SEC: 12. No person shall, while holding any office under the United States Government, hold the office of Governor, except as herein expressly provided.

T. C. C. pp. 146, 478.

The mere fact that this section repeats a prohibition against the governor of the state holding that office whilst he holds one under the general government is not entitled to much weight. The different articles of the constitution were drawn under the superintendence of distinct committees. The attention of each committee was called particularly to the article immediately under its supervision. The draft of the whole instrument, from necessity, was not in the hands of one person or one committee. Hence, there is a liability to unnecessary repetitions. State ex rel. Nourse v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 568.

Duties of Governor as to fines and forfeitures.

306. SEC: 13. The Governor shall have the power to suspend the collection of fines and forfeitures and grant reprieves for a period not exceeding sixty days dating from the time of conviction, for all offenses, except in cases of impeachment. Upon conviction for treason he shall have power to suspend the execution of the sentence until the case shall be reported to the Legislature at its next meeting, when the Legislature shall either pardon, direct the execution of the sentence, or grant a further reprieve. And if the Legislature shall fail or refuse to make final disposition of such case, the sentence shall be enforced at such time and place as the Governor by his order may direct. The Governor shall communicate to the Legislature, at the beginning of every Session, every case of fine or forfeiture remitted, or reprieve, pardon, or commutation granted, stating the name of the convict, the crime of which he was convicted, the sentence, its date, and the date of the remission, commutation, pardon or reprieve.

T. C. C. pp. 221, 478.

In view of constitution, article 5, section 14, providing that the governor, justices of the supreme court, and attorney-general or a majority of them, of whom the governor shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, commute punishments, and grant pardons, this section authorizes the governor to suspend the collection of fines for only sixty days, and not indefinitely. Otherwise there would be a conflict between the two sections. Ex parte Shelor, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 292, 293, 294 295).

Personnel of the Board of Pardons.

307. SEC: 14. The Governor, Justices of the Supreme Court and Attorney-General, or a major part of them, of whom the Governor shall be one, may upon such conditions and with such limitations and restrictions as they may think proper, remit fines and forfeitures, commute punishments and grant pardons after convictions, in all cases, except treason and impeachments, subject to such regulations as may be provided by law, relative to the manner of applying for pardons.

The governor of the Territory of Nevada had the right to pardon absolutely or conditionally, but no right to commute one punishment for another. He could not issue an order to confine a man in the penitentiary who had been sentenced to be hung.

The governor of the State of Nevada could not pardon

Seal of State.

308. SEC: 15. There shall be a Seal of this State, which shall be kept by the Governor, and used by him officially, and shall be called "The Great Seal of the State of Nevada."

T. C. C. pp. 146, 478.

Grants in name of State.

309. SEC: 16. All grants and commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the State of Nevada, sealed with the Great Seal of the State, signed by the Governor and countersigned by the Secretary of State.

T. C. C. pp. 146, 478.

Lieutenant-Governor.

310. SEC: 17. A Lieutenant Governor shall be elected at the same time and places, and in the same manner as the Governor, and his term of Office, and his Eligibility, shall also be the same. He shall be President of the Senate, but shall only have a casting vote therein. If during a Vacancy of the Office of Governor, the Lieutenant Governor shall be impeached, displaced, resign, die, or become incapable of performing the duties of the Office, or be absent from the State, the President pro-tempore of the Senate shall act as Governor until the vacancy be filled or the disability cease.

T. C. C. pp. 146, 479.

This section requires the same qualifications to make a party eligible to the office of lieutenant-governor as are required for governor. State ex rel. Nourse v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 569.

Cited, State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 416 (4 P. 735).

This section contemplates that upon the governor's death his office is to remain vacant. State ex rel. Sadler v. La Grave, 23 Nev. 223 (35 L. R. A. 233, 45 P. 243).

Under the provisions of these sections, if a vacancy occurs in the office of governor, the powers and duties

Lieutenant-Governor to succeed Governor.

311. SEC: 18. In case of the impeachment of the Governor, or his removal from office, death, inability to discharge the duties of the said Office, resignation or absence from the State, the powers and duties of the Office shall devolve upon the Lieutenant Governor for the residue of the term, or until the disability shall cease. But when the Governor shall, with the consent of the Legislature be out of the State, in time of War, and at the head of any military force thereof, he shall continue Commander in Chief of the military forces of the State.

T. C. C. pp. 147, 479.

See State ex rel. Hardin v. Sadler, 23 Nev. 356, 357, under section 17 of this article (47 P. 450).

Under this section, the lieutenant governor, upon the State officers, terms of office.

312. SEC: 19. A Secretary of State, a Treasurer, a Controller, a Surveyor-General, and an Attorney-General shall be elected at the same time and places and in the same manner as the Governor. The term of Office of each shall be the same as is prescribed for the Governor. Any elector shall be eligible to either of said offices.

T. C. C. pp. 148, 480, 481.

The last sentence in this section seems as plainly to dispense with any qualification for the office of attorney-general other than those pertaining to any elector, as section 9 of article 4 imposes the disqualification arising from holding a federal office. In language, there is a complete contradiction between the two sections. Usually, where there is one section in a statute or constitution general in its terms and another section special and limited, but in direct conflict with the general provisions, the special one should be construed as an exception to the general rule. An examination of this section, without the concurrence of at least two other members of the board in whom the pardoning power is vested by the constitution. Ex Parte Janes, 1 Nev. 319, 322.

of the office devolve upon the lieutenant-governor, but there is no vacancy created in the office of lieutenant-governor thereby. The officer remains lieutenant-governor, but invested with the powers and duties of governor.

If a vacancy exists in both the offices of governor and lieutenant-governor, the president pro tempore of the senate becomes acting governor until the vacancy be filled or disability cease. State ex rel. Hardin v. Sadler, 23 Nev. 356, 357 (47 P. 450).

death of the governor, becomes acting governor and entitled to receive the salary attached to that office. State ex rel. Sadler v. LaGrave, 23 Nev. 216, 218 (35 L. R. A. 233, 45 P. 243).

in connection with other portions of article 5, leads to the conclusion that it was not intended to make an exception to the general rule laid down in section 9 of the preceding article. State ex rel. Nourse v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 567, 568, 569.

It is the right and duty of the state controller to audit all claims under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1869 (Stats. 1869, 158).

The official name of "state controller," as used in the constitution, implies recognized duties appurtenant thereto, and means a supervising officer of revenue—among whose duties is the final auditing and settling of all claims against the state.

That said act neither takes anything away from the constitutional powers of the board of examiners, nor adds anything to those of the controller, and is not unconstitutional.

Where a member of a board of state printing commissioners had a claim for his services passed upon and allowed by the board of examiners, but omitted to have it audited by the controller; and the latter for that reason refused to issue his warrant upon the treasury for the amount so allowed: Held, that it was necessary to show a presentation of the claim for allowance to the controller, and that without such showing the controller would not be compelled by mandamus to issue his warrant. State ex rel. Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 399, 407, 408, 409, 410, 413.

Where a sum has been appropriated by the state legislature providing for the payment to the lieutenant-governor of a salary in solido as ex officio adjutant-general and ex officio state librarian, and another is appointed, the state controller is justified in refusing to audit a compensation allowed such substituted official by the board of examiners, as the appropriation has become inoperative. State ex rel. Gallup v. Hallock, 19 Nev. 371, 374 (12 P. 48).

Duties of Secretary of State.

313. SEC: 20. The Secretary of State shall keep a true record of the Official acts of the Legislative and Executive Departments of the Government, and shall, when required, lay the same, and all matters relative thereto, before either branch of the Legislature.

T. C. C. pp. 149, 480.

Personnel of Board of State Prison Commissioners and Board of Examiners.

314. SEC: 21. The Governor, Secretary of State and Attorney-General shall constitute a Board of State Prison Commissioners, which board shall have such supervision of all matters connected with the State Prison as may be provided by law. They shall also constitute a Board of Examiners, with power to examine all claims against the State (except salaries or compensation of officers fixed by law), and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law, and no claim against the State (except salaries or compensation of officers fixed by law) shall be passed upon by the Legislature without having been considered and acted upon by said "Board of Examiners."

T. C. C. pp. 239, 240, 241.

The constitutional power of the controller to examine "claims against the state" must be exercised subject to such examination by the examiners.

The examining powers of the board of examiners and of the controller are, with reference to the legislature, only advisory.

So far as the examination of claims against the state is concerned, the board of examiners assist the controller, acting concurrently; but they do not deprive him of his constitutional power, or any part of it. Each moves in a designated sphere, all tending to the desired result; the protection of the revenues of the state. State ex rel. Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 399, 407-410, 413.

The legislative act of 1869 (Stats. 1869, p. 54) is not repugnant to this constitutional provision, nor do the claims therein provided for require action by such boards.

The institution of the board of examiners was not intended as a check on legislative extravagance, but to secure, as a prerequisite to legislative action, an examination of such claims as require such action upon them as claims—not creative action but adoptive or rejective action.

"A claim against the state," is a demand by some one other than the state against it for money or property; but when a claim originates with the state or in its behalf, and contemporaneously with its origin, means and manner of payment are provided, as in case of a bond, it does not then constitute a claim proper against the state but a liquidated and legalized demand against the treasury.

Incidental expenses of the legislature to accrue cannot be held to constitute "claims against the state," nor do they require action by the board of examiners as such.

This constitutional provision has been treated by contemporaneous legislation as inapplicable to legislative expenses.

There is a reasonable doubt as to whether the incidental expenses of the legislature already accrued, constitutionally require examination by the board of examiners; and on the question of the constitutionality of a statute providing for the payment of such expenses without such examination, it cannot on the ground of not providing for such examination be pronounced unconstitutional. State ex rel. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 16, 17, 30, 32, 33, 34.

See citation from State ex rel. Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 400, 407, 408, 410, 411, 413, 414, under section 19 of this article.

By this section, the board of state prison commissioners are to have only such supervision over matters connected with the prison as may be provided by law. It is to the statutes, therefore, that we must look for a definition of their powers. State ex rel. Fox v. Hobart, 13 Nev. 420.

This section does not direct or permit the legislature, under the pretense of regulating the discipline of the prison, to wipe out and destroy the previous sentences, or any portion thereof, imposed upon the prisoners by the courts. The legislature can pass only such acts as are authorized by the constitution. It can not infringe upon any of its provisions. Ex Parte Darling, 16 Nev. 100 (40 A. R. 495).

In construing the provisions of section 8 of the act providing for a special election (Stats. 1889, p. 14), and the act to provide for the payment of such election by the state (Stats. 1889, p. 21), the provisions of this section, and the statute in relation thereto (Gen. Stats. 1885-6): Held, that it was the duty of the state board of examiners to audit the claims of the respective counties against the state on account of the special election, and that it was not within the power of the legislature to confer this authority elsewhere: Held, that mandamus would not lie against the state controller to compel him to issue a warrant in any greater amount than audited and allowed by the board of examiners. State ex rel. County of Lyon v. Hallock, 20 Nev. 326, 328 (22 P. 123).

"An act to provide relief for H. C. Cutting" (Stats. 1897, p. 21) appropriated a sum of money to said Cutting for services rendered to the state as ex officio curator of the state museum. It was contended that, as the claim for services was not presented to the board of examiners prior to the passage of the enactment by the legislature, it was in violation of this section: Held, that the act appropriates the sum of money for services rendered as ex officio curator of the state museum and is, therefore, compensation of an officer fixed by law and is expressly exempted by the terms of the constitution. State ex rel. Cutting v. La Grave, 23 Nev. 387, 389 (48 P. 370).

Officers to perform prescribed duties.

315. SEC. 22: The Secretary of State, State Treasurer, State Controller, Surveyor-General, Attorney-General, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE 6.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT

Judicial power vested.

316. SECTION 1. The Judicial power of this State shall be vested in a Supreme Court, District Courts, and in Justices of the Peace. The Legislature may also establish Courts, for municipal purposes only, in incorporated cities and towns.

T. C. C. pp. 152, 481, 486.

We see no constitutional objection to members of the executive branch being charged with the duty of assessing property, or of acting upon the board of equalization, for neither of these functions has been, expressly or impliedly, placed by the constitution upon either of the other departments; for certainly, although in equalizing valuations a board may act in a judicial capacity, the constitution nowhere contemplates that the judicial department, as organized by this article, shall discharge that duty. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 396 (32 P. 437).

This section restricts section 9 of this article, by which the jurisdiction of municipal courts cannot be extended beyond municipal purposes. Meagher v. County of Storey, 5 Nev. 244, 249.

The words "municipal purposes only," restrict the jurisdiction to be exercised by municipal courts to such matters as relate to the affairs of the incorporated cities or towns, where alone they are authorized to be established.

The authority sought to be conferred on city and town recorders by section 38 of an act concerning courts of justice (Stats. 1864-5, 116) to "exercise the duties of committing magistrates," etc., is completely judicial in its character, and said section, in so far as it authorizes city and town recorders "to possess the powers and exercise the duties of committing magistrates," etc., is unconstitutional and void. Meagher v. County of Storey, 5 Nev. 244, 249.

Cited, State ex rel. Coffin v. Atherton, 19 Nev. 336, 343 (10 P. 901).

This section vests the judicial power in a supreme court, district courts, and justices' courts. Section 6 gives the district courts original jurisdiction in all criminal cases not otherwise provided for by law, and gives them appellate jurisdiction in cases arising in justices' courts, etc. Section 8 authorizes the creation of justices' courts by the legislature, and provides that such courts shall have such criminal jurisdiction as may be prescribed by law.

The act of January 26, 1865 (Stats. 1864-65, p. 110, c. 194) gives justices' courts jurisdiction of all misdemeanors punishable by fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both. Relator was indicted in the district court for a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $200, or imprisonment not exceeding three months, or both, and brings prohibition to prevent the district court from taking original jurisdiction of the offense, claiming that it has only appellate jurisdiction. Held, that under section 6, giving the district court jurisdiction in all criminal cases not otherwise provided for by law, where the legislature gave justices' courts jurisdiction of the class mentioned, the district court was deprived of original jurisdiction in such cases, and had only appellate jurisdiction, so that it could not try such a case by indictment. Moore v. Orr, 30 Nev. 458, 460 (98 P. 398).

Supreme Court, how constituted.

317. SEC: 2. The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum; Provided, that the Legislature by a majority of all the members elected to each branch thereof, may provide for the election of two additional Associate Justices, and if so increased three shall constitute a quorum. The concurrence of a Majority of the whole court shall be necessary to render a decision.

T. C. C. pp. 155, 482, 486.

Justices, election, term, Chief Justice.

318. SEC: 3. The Justices of the Supreme Court, shall be elected by the qualified electors of the State at the general election, and shall hold office for the term of Six Years from, and including, the first Monday of January next succeeding their election; Provided, that there shall be elected, at the first election under this Constitution, Three Justices of the Supreme Court who shall hold Office from, and including the first Monday of December A. D. Eighteen hundred and sixty four, and continue in office thereafter, Two,

Four and Six Years respectively, from and including the first Monday of January next succeeding their election. They shall meet as soon as practicable after their election and qualification, and at their first meeting shall determine by lot, the term of Office each shall fill, and the Justice drawing the shortest term, shall be Chief Justice, and after the expiration of his term, the one having the next shortest term shall be Chief Justice, after which the Senior Justice in Commission shall be Chief Justice; and in case the commission of any two or more of said Justices shall bear the same date, they shall determine by lot, who shall be Chief Justice.

T. C. C. pp. 160, 482, 483, 486.

Cited, State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 416 (4 P. 735).

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court.

319. SEC: 4. The Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction in all cases in Equity; also in all cases at law in which is involved the title, or right of possession to, or the possession of, real estate or Mining claims, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll or municipal fine, or in which the demand (exclusive of interest) or the Value of the property in controversy, exceeds Three Hundred Dollars; also in all other civil cases not included in the General subdivisions of law and Equity, and also on questions of law alone in all criminal cases in which the offence charged amounts to felony. The Court shall also have power to issue writs of Mandamus, Certiorari, prohibition, Quo Warranto, and Habeas Corpus and also all writs necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. Each of the Justices shall have power to issue writs of Habeas Corpus to any part of the State, upon petition by, or on behalf of any person held in actual custody, and may make such writs returnable, before himself or the Supreme Court, or before any District Court in the State or before any Judge of said Courts.

T. C. C. pp. 161-168, 482, 487.

The constitution gives this court the trial of cases on appeal, and the legislature could not, if it would, deprive the court of the power of examining such portions of the record as are necessary to determine all appeals.

The legislature never intended to deprive this court of the power to examine bills of exception and other parts of the record which are not mentioned in section 284 of the Practice Act.

We must look to the record to see if there is any foundation for a judgment appealed from. As the filing of a cost bill is the only thing that gives jurisdiction to enter up a judgment for costs, we must look to the record to see if any such bill has been filed, and if an examination of the cost bill shows error in the judgment for costs, that error must be corrected.

Section 284 of the Practice Act directs that certain papers shall be brought up on appeal; it does not in express terms prohibit other papers from being brought up. Howard v. Richards, 2 Nev. 129.

The phrase "appellate jurisdiction" was intended to be used in a broad and comprehensive sense. It was intended to confer jurisdiction upon the district courts to hear cases on appeal either in the strictest sense, which would require a trial de novo, or review them as all cases are reviewed at common law. We think the language of section eight of this article clearly confers on the legislature the power to regulate the manner of appeals to the district court. It might require in one class of cases that upon appeal the trial should be de novo, and in other cases a simple review of the proceedings of the court below. Cavanaugh v. Wright, 2 Nev. 168.

The jurisdiction of this court on appeal is limited "in all criminal cases, in which the offense charged amounts to felony, to questions of law alone." State v. Millain, 3 Nev. 467.

The language of this section conferring jurisdiction upon the supreme court in cases of money demands is identical with that respecting the district courts and whenever the district court has jurisdiction in the first instance, the supreme court has jurisdiction to review its action on appeal. Klein v. Allenbach, 6 Nev. 159, 161, 162.

Is it within the jurisdiction of the supreme court under this section to review the evidence in a criminal case and decide that it does not sustain the verdict? State v. Van Winkle, 6 Nev. 340 and 349.

Where a suit to foreclose a lien is brought in a justice court and appealed to the district court: Held, that an appeal lies from the district court to the supreme court. Dickson v. Corbett, 10 Nev. 439, 440.

An order of a justice's court imposing costs against a garnishee that had refused to make a statement, is not a "tax, impost, assessment, or municipal fine," within the meaning of those words as used in this section. Wearne v. Haynes, 13 Nev. 103-105.

The jurisdiction of the supreme court in a criminal case is limited to questions of law alone. No judgment of conviction will ever be reversed upon the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence if there is any substantial evidence to support it. State v. Mills, 12 Nev. 403, 404, 406.

The trial of a party charged with violation of a town ordinance is a criminal case. The charge does not amount to a felony, and this court has no jurisdiction in such a case. Town of Gold Hill v. Brisacher, 14 Nev. 52, 53.

Defendant was indicted for the crime of an assault with intent to kill, and was tried and found "guilty of an assault." The judgment imposed a fine of $500 and taxed the costs against defendant. From this judgment an appeal was taken. Held, that this court had no jurisdiction. Appeal dismissed. State v. McCormick, 14 Nev. 347, affirmed (Belknap dissenting). State v. Quinn, 16 Nev. 89, 90.

A contempt of the character alleged in this proceeding is a specific, substantive and distinct criminal offense, and under the constitution and laws of this state, judgment of conviction, if within the jurisdiction of the inferior court, is final and conclusive. Phillips v. Welch, 12 Nev. 159, 178.

In construing this section: Held, that the right of appeal in criminal cases is restrained to cases where the punishment adjudged is a felony. State v. McCormick, 14 Nev. 3, 47349.

The court granted a decree of divorce, with alimony of $150 per month, in favor of the plaintiff, and decreed the property in controversy to be the separate property of defendant. An appeal was taken by the plaintiff from the portion of the decree "respecting the property rights of the respective parties." Held, that the supreme court had jurisdiction on appeal to make an allowance of counsel fees to appellant so as to enable her to properly present her case by counsel in the supreme court.

The exercise of such authority is based upon the presumption that jurisdiction in divorce cases carries with it by implication the incidental power to make such allowances. The power is indispensable to the proper exercise of jurisdiction in guarding the rights of wives. Lake v. Lake, 17 Nev. 230, 238 (30 P. 878).

The court, under the Practice Act, has jurisdiction only in cases commenced in and tried by a court. The legislature may enjoin upon a judge the performance of judicial functions, in matters outside of actions or proceedings in court; but, in such cases, there is nothing in the statutes authorizing an appeal from his orders.

No appeal lies to the supreme court from an order of the district judge requiring the county assessor of Esmeralda County to file in the district court a statement of taxes, as required by section 6 of the act of March 1, 1883 (Stats. 1883, 100). The proceedings required by the statute were in no sense court proceedings, as such, and the fact that the order was made by the court instead of the judge, does not change its character. Lyon County v. Esmeralda County, 18 Nev. 166, 169 (1 P. 839).

Substantial compliance with statutes regulating criminal appeals is essential to the supreme court's jurisdiction of an appeal.

Under the constitution, providing that the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction on questions of law alone in criminal cases, and that the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, the supreme court will not determine questions of fact on which a verdict is based.

The statutory appeal from a judgment of conviction and from an order denying a new trial clothes the supreme court with power to review every question affecting the rights of accused, provided substantial compliance is had with the statutes.

An "appeal" is a statutory right, and is the continuation of the original suit; while a "writ of error" is an independent action, in the nature of a new and original suit.

Whether one convicted of crime is entitled to have the judgment reviewed on writ of error cannot be determined on a petition for a rehearing after the dismissal of his appeal, but only on appropriate proceedings for the writ, when all parties interested can be heard. State v. Preston, 30 Nev. 301, 308-310 (95 P. 918).

CERTIORARI.

Certiorari lies to annul a justice court judgment, void because in excess of the jurisdiction of a justice court, since there is no right of appeal.

The court, on appeal from an order dismissing a writ of certiorari to annul a justice court's judgment, void because beyond the justice court's jurisdiction, cannot on the offer of respondent remit a part of the judgment and limit it to a sum within the jurisdiction of a justice court. Pitchett v. Henley, 31 Nev. 327 (102 P. 865).

In certiorari cases the judgment roll is preserved in the court granting the writ, as in a court of original jurisdiction in an ordinary action, and a copy only of the judgment is sent to the inferior tribunal.

If proceedings of an inferior court are annulled on certiorari there is no further positive or affirmative action to be taken by the inferior tribunal. Leonard v. Peacock, 8 Nev. 157.

Proceedings upon certiorari for the review of the action of an inferior tribunal are of an appellate nature, though not pursued in the ordinary and technical form of appeal.

Where the supreme court on certiorari annuls the proceedings of a district court, under which the relator had been turned out of possession of certain property: Held, that in addition to annulling the proceedings of the court below, the supreme court could properly issue a writ of restitution to restore relator to possession, such writ being necessary and proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. Peacock v. Leonard, 8 Nev. 247, 251.

Certiorari does not lie where there is an appeal. Leonard v. Peacock, 8 Nev. 157, 161.

As a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of an action of forcible entry, a district court has no jurisdiction thereof on appeal; and its proceedings and a judgment to the contrary will be annulled on certiorari. Peacock v. Leonard, 8 Nev. 84, 88.

See Andrews v. Cooke, 28 Nev. 265, 269, under section 4 of this article (81 P. 303).

The inquiry on a writ of certiorari will not be extended further than to determine whether the inferior tribunal has jurisdiction to make the orders complained of; and, if the record discloses that it has complete jurisdiction, any error in an order will not be considered.

Where the court has jurisdiction of divorce action, and has discretion to make such an allowance to the wife as the circumstances warrant pendente lite, the supreme court will not annul such an order by writ of certiorari.

Kapp. v. District Court of Seventh Judicial District, 32 Nev. 264 (103 P. 235).

See National Mines Co. v. District Court, 33 Nev. — (116)P. —.)

MANDAMUS.

If the district court refuses to try a cause on the ground that it has no jurisdiction, and it appears that the court has jurisdiction, the writ of mandamus will be issued to compel the court to hear and decide the cause upon the merits. Floral Springs Water Company v. Rives, 14 Nev. 431.

The writ of mandamus will not be issued to compel a district judge to try an action for malicious injury to real estate, transferred from a justice court, because the district court has no jurisdiction of the offense. State ex rel. Murphy v. Rising, 10 Nev. 97.

The writ of mandamus will not be issued in any case where petitioner has a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law. Mayberry v. Bowker, 14 Nev. 336, 340, from opinion of Beatty, C. J., dissenting, on p. 340.

QUO WARRANTO.

Where the attorney-general refuses to bring an action under the provisions of section 3342, General Statutes, authorizing such officer to proceed against any person he has reason to believe unlawfully holds a public office, a person claiming election to a state office may, by leave of court, bring quo warranto on his own relation, where he has no other remedy.

Quo warranto is the only remedy a person, who may be duly elected to a state office, has to oust one unlawfully holding the same, and have himself instituted. State ex rel. McMillan v. Sadler, 25 Nev. 131, 165 (83 A. S. 573, 58 P. 284).

As the supreme court is authorized to finally construe the laws, and is empowered by the constitution and statute to issue writs of mandamus "to compel the performance of an act which the law specifically enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust or station," and as the lieutenant and acting governor is in no way excepted from these provisions or empowered to abrogate the statute, a writ of mandamus will issue directing him to comply with the requirement of the act of the legislature and accept the bonds, the same as a writ would issue requiring any other officer or person to perform in compliance with the statute, a ministerial act, where no discretion is imposed and no constitutional provision is infringed.

The constitution authorizes the issuance of writs of mandamus regardless of the value involved. Value need not be proven in advance by the petitioner in order to entitle him to a writ of mandate.

Doubtful questions relating to the legality or validity of, or right of recovery upon bonds, or to their repudiation, or the statute of limitations, and which may be properly tried and adjudicated in an action between the holder and the obligor, need not be determined in the absence of the obligor in a proceeding for a writ of mandate requiring their acceptance by the chief executive preliminary to the bringing of a suit for the recovery of a judgment upon them against the obligor. It is not the duty of the chief executive, nor of the courts upon application for writ of mandate to determine these questions in advance and possibly adversely to the acceptance of the bonds by the state and to their validity so as to set aside the statute and will of the legislature, prevent a suit, and deprive the proper tribunal, the Supreme Court of the United States, from passing upon the objections made to the legality of the bonds.

If the court has any jurisdiction to refuse the writ of mandate relating to a matter concerning the public interest, where a party is clearly entitled to it, it ought not to exercise that discretion by refusing the writ when such refusal would abrogate the plain language of the statute. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. — (113 P. 106, 109, 111, 115, 117).

PROHIBITION.

The order of prohibition may issue from this court in a proper case to arrest the progress of a trial. But such order should not issue where there is other and adequate remedy.

The office of such writ is not to correct errors, but to prevent courts transcending the boundaries of their jurisdiction.

Upon a writ of prohibition we cannot review an interlocutory order made in the court below. That can only be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment. Low v. Crown Point Mining Co., 2 Nev. 75, 77.

If the district court did not have power to proceed originally by indictment in a criminal case, prohibition is the proper remedy to prevent it from taking jurisdiction. Moore v. Orr, 30 Nev. 458 (90 P. 398).

A writ of prohibition will not issue to prevent an inferior court from trying an action once properly before it, but claimed to have been afterwards dismissed, as the question of dismissal was a proper one for the inferior court to decide; nor will the writ issue upon the claim that the action has been transferred to the circuit court of the United States, as that question is also a proper one for the inferior court to decide, subject to appeal, and for the further reason that the decision of this court would not be final should the United States court decide otherwise and remand the action to the state court for trial, and in either event error in the inferior court is only reviewable on appeal or by petition to the United States court. Walcott v. Wells, 21 Nev. 47 (37 A. S. 478, 9 L. R. A. 59, 24 P. 367).

A writ of prohibition cannot ordinarily be used to correct errors by inferior tribunals, and will not issue either in civil or criminal proceedings, where there is an adequate remedy by appeal or writ of certiorari.

Where an action was brought to recover possession of certain mining ground on an agreement containing a provision for plaintiff's taking possession of and working the mines, and the court had original jurisdiction to hear and determine the issues, if it erred in ordering judgment for plaintiff for possession and for an accounting, or for damages for defendant's refusal to deliver possession under the agreement, its decision was reviewable by appeal only, and not on a writ of prohibition.

Where defendants, in an action to recover a mining claim, contended that a provision of the decree in favor of plaintiff and directing an accounting was not within the issues, whether the court had jurisdiction to decree such an accounting was reviewable by appeal, and not by a writ of prohibition. Silver Peak Mines et al. v. Second Judicial District Court, 33 Nev. — (110 P. 503).

While the great function of the writ of prohibition is to restrain courts and judicial tribunals from exceeding their jurisdiction, nevertheless, the writ has not been restricted exclusively to such class of cases, but it has run to other officers exercising or attempting to exercise judicial or quasi-judicial functions beyond their powers, where no other adequate remedy existed. State ex rel. Schloss v. Stevens, 33 Nev. — (116 P. 105).

The power conferred upon the supreme court to issue writs of mandamus, quo warranto, and other writs is an original jurisdiction, and not merely auxiliary to its appellate jurisdiction. Curtis v. McCullough, 3 Nev. 202, 214, 215, 216.

Judicial districts.

320. SEC: 5. The State is hereby divided into Nine Judicial Districts of which the County of Storey shall constitute the First; The County of Ormsby the Second; the County of Lyon the Third; The County of Washoe the Fourth; The Counties of Nye and Churchill the Fifth; The County of Humboldt the Sixth; The County of Lander the Seventh; the County of Douglas the Eighth; and the County of Esmeralda the Ninth. The County of Roop shall be attached to the County of Washoe for judicial purposes until otherwise provided by law. The Legislature may, however, provide by law for an alteration in the boundaries or divisions of the Districts herein prescribed, and also for increasing or diminishing the number of the Judicial Districts and Judges therein. But no such change shall take effect, except in case of a vacancy, or the expiration of the term of an incumbent of the office. At the first general election under this Constitution there shall be elected in each of the respective Districts (except as in this Section hereafter otherwise provided) one District Judge, who shall hold Office from and including the first Monday of December A. D. Eighteen hundred and Sixty four and until the first Monday of January in the Year Eighteen hundred and Sixty seven. After the said first election, there shall be elected at the general election which immediately precedes the expiration of the term of his predecessor, one District Judge in each of the respective Judicial Districts (except in the First District as in this Section hereinafter provided). The District Judges shall be elected by the qualified electors of their respective districts, and shall hold Office for the term of four Years (excepting those Elected at said first election) from and including the first Monday of January, next succeeding their election and qualification; Provided, that the First Judicial District shall be Entitled to, and shall have Three District Judges, who shall possess co-extensive and concurrent jurisdiction, and who shall be elected at the same times, in the same manner, and shall hold office for the like terms as herein prescribed, in relation to the Judges in other Judicial Districts, any one of said Judges may preside on the Empanneling of Grand Juries and the presentment and trial on indictments, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by law. T. C. C. pp. 198, 483, 488.

The act of March 12, 1867, constituting Lincoln County, the Ninth Judicial District (Stats. 1867, p. 129), is not in conflict with this section. State ex rel. Leake v. Blasdel, 6 Nev. 40, 41.

The said act in so far as it provided that the district judge to be elected in 1868 should hold his office for two years from January 1, 1869, did not violate the provisions of this section. The constitution contemplates that the election of district judges throughout the state shall all occur at the same time; and it is competent for the legislature to provide that a judge to be elected at another time shall hold until the time of such general election of judges, though it may not give him a full term of four years.

Where a full term of the office of district judge is to be filled, the failure to give notice of election (such as is required when a vacancy is to be filled) will not vitiate an election. State ex rel. Hubbard v. Gorin, 6 Nev. 276, 277, 278, 279.

In construing the provisions of this section, held, that the legislature had the power to reduce the number of district judges in the first judicial district.

By Stats. 1865 (p. 60) the State of Nevada was made one judicial district, with but one judicial officer in connection therewith, to wit: The office of district judge, and three district judges, each having equal and coextensive jurisdiction and powers throughout the state to hold district court in any county and to exercise all duties pertaining to the office of district judge. The constitutionality of this statute was affirmed by the supreme court in State ex rel. Coffin v. Atherton, 19 Nev. 332. While this statute was in operation the legislature by statute of 1889, p. 122, increased the number of district judges to four, and directed the governor to immediately appoint an additional district judge to hold office until the next general election, when four district judges should be elected. Under the latter statute the governor appointed respondent district judge, who, at the time of the commencement of this proceeding, has held such office and exercised the functions thereof for more than a year with the acquiescence and recognition of the state, county officers and the people generally. Held, that irrespective of the question of the constitutionality of the statute of 1889, respondent is a de facto district judge and that his official acts are valid so far as the rights of third persons or the public are concerned. Jurisdiction of District Courts.

321. SEC: 6. The District Courts in the several Judicial Districts of this State shall have original jurisdiction in all cases in Equity; also in all cases at law which involve the title or the right of possession to, or the possession of real property, or mining claims, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll or municipal fine, and in all other cases in which the demand (exclusive of interest) or the value of the property in controversy exceeds Three Hundred Dollars, also in all cases relating to the estates of deceased persons, and the persons and Estates of Minors and insane persons, and of the action of forcible entry and unlawful detainer; and also in all criminal cases not otherwise provided for by law; They shall also have final appellate jurisdiction in cases arising in Justices Courts, and such other inferior tribunals as may be established by law. The District Courts, and the Judges thereof shall have power to issue writs of Mandamus, Injunction, Quo-Warranto, Certiorari, and all other writs proper and necessary to the complete exercise of their jurisdiction; And also shall have power to issue writs of Habeas Corpus on petition by, or on behalf of any person held in actual custody in their respective districts.

T. C. C. pp. 179, 483, 488.

Though the constitution of the state confers the jurisdiction of cases of forcible entry and unlawful detainer on the district courts, the courts of justices of the peace continue their jurisdiction of such cases until the organization of the district courts under the state authority.

The purpose of this section was not to suspend the operation of the laws of the territory. The former judiciary system was intended to be, and was continued in existence until the new one should be in a condition to exercise its functions. Armstrong v. Paul, 1 Nev. 134, 137, 138, 139.

The appellate jurisdiction of the district court on appeal from a justices' court is final, and no appeal lies from its action as such appellate court.

Cited, Paul v. Beegan, 1 Nev. 329, 331; Leonard v. Peacock, 8 Nev. 157, 161.

The constitution confers jurisdiction on the district court to hear and determine actions of forcible entry and detainer without any special legislative enactment on the subject.

The forcible entry act, so far as it defines forfeitures, is in force. That part of it which directs what court shall assume jurisdiction is suspended and altered by the constitution. Hoopes v. Meyer, 1 Nev. 433, 440, 441.

Where a district court, acting under this section, dismissed an appeal from a justices' court, the action having been in the exercise of jurisdiction, it could not be reviewed on certiorari. Andrews v. Cooke, 28 Nev. 265, 269 (81 P. 303).

This section vests in the district court jurisdiction in all cases relating to the persons and estates of minors; and its judgment cannot be successfully resisted until reversed or modified by some proceeding impeaching it. It is conclusive, not only against the guardian himself, but also against the sureties upon his official bond. Whatever binds and concludes the guardian equally binds and concludes his sureties.

In guardianship matters where the judgment of the district court is collaterally attacked, the jurisdiction of the court is conclusively presumed and evidence to the contrary is not admissible. Deegan v. Deegan, 22 Nev. 185, 197 (58 A. S. 742, 37 P. 360).

A suit for the recovery of money may be brought in a district court by simply claiming $300 or upwards, although less may be actually due; but if less than $300 is recovered, the plaintiff is not entitled to costs.

The test of the jurisdiction of the district courts in cases of money demands is the amount claimed in the complaint—the demand in controversy being the sum sought to be recovered by plaintiff, and not that for which he actually recovers judgment.

The language of the constitution conferring jurisdiction upon the supreme court in cases of money demands is identical with that of this section, respecting the district courts, and whenever the district court has jurisdiction in the first instance, the supreme court has jurisdiction to review its action on appeal. Klein v. Allenbach, 6 Nev. 159, 162.

An action for "wrongfully, unlawfully, and forcibly breaking and entering into real estate and unlawfully and forcibly ousting the possessor and ever since said forcible ouster unlawfully and forcibly holding possession thereof," is an action of forcible entry and unlawful detainer within the meaning of this section and is not within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace.

As a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of an action of forcible entry, a district court has no jurisdiction thereof on appeal; and its proceedings and judgment to the contrary will be annulled on certiorari. Peacock v. Leonard, 8 Nev. 84, 88.

Terms of court.

322. SEC: 7. The times of holding the Supreme Court and District Courts shall be as fixed by law. The terms of the Supreme Court shall be held at the seat of Government; and the terms of the District Courts shall be held at the County seats of their respective counties; Provided, that in case any county shall be hereafter divided into two or more districts, the Legislature may, by law, designate the places of holding Courts in any such Districts.

T. C. C. pp. 484, 491.

Prior to Stats. 1895, p. 60, sec. 5, the terms of the district courts had been differently fixed. That section provided that they should always be open for the transaction of business; and section 9 provides that courts shall be held in every county at least once in every six months. Section 9 was repealed by Stats. 1895, p. 56, which, however, retained the proviso that court should be held in each county at least once in every six months; Held, that there are no terms of the district court; the courts being always open and sessions had at the convenience of the judges and as the business may require. State v. Jackman, 31 Nev. 511, 516, 517 (104 P. 13).

The proviso to this section does not prove, it has no tendency to prove, that the convention intended to deprive the legislature of the power to assign more than one judge to a district. That was a provision for the benefit of counties of large area, with populations gathered about different centers. It could have no application to a small county with its whole population at the county-seat. State ex rel. Aude v. Kinkead, 14 Nev. 117, 122.

The provision in section 9 of the act to redistrict the state (Stats. 1885, p. 60), that the court shall be held in each county at least once in every six months is in compliance with this section. State ex rel. Coffin v. Atherton, 19 Nev. 332, 347 (10 P. 901).

Under this section (Stats. 1903, p. 198, c. 104), directing that the sittings of the district court shall be held at a certain town whenever the people of that portion of the county lying nearer or more conveniently situated to that town than to the county-seat shall be accommodated thereby, is void. Ex parte Wonacott, 27 Nev. 102, 105 (73 P. 661).

Justices of the Peace—Jurisdiction limited—Regulating appeals—What are Courts of Record.

323. SEC: 8. The Legislature shall determine the number of Justices of the Peace to be elected in each city and township of the State, and shall fix by law, their powers, duties and responsibilities, Provided, that such Justices Courts shall not have jurisdiction of the following cases, viz: First, of cases in which the matter in dispute is a money demand, or personal property; and the amount of the demand (exclusive of interest) or the value of the property exceeds Three Hundred Dollars; Second, of cases wherein the title to real estate, or mining claims, or questions of boundaries to land, is or may be involved; or of cases that in any manner shall conflict with the jurisdiction of the Several Courts of Record in this State; and Provided further, that Justices Courts shall have such criminal jurisdiction as may be prescribed by law; and the Legislature may confer upon said courts, jurisdiction concurrent with the District Courts, of actions to enforce mechanics liens, wherein the amount (exclusive of interest) does not exceed Three hundred dollars; and also of Actions for the possession of lands and tenements where the relation of Landlord and Tenant exists, or when such possession has been unlawfully or fraudulently obtained or with-held. The Legislature shall also prescribe by law, the manner, and determine the cases in which appeals may be taken from Justices and other Courts. The Supreme Court, the District Courts, and such other Courts, as the Legislature shall designate, shall be Courts of Record.

T. C. C. pp. 204, 209, 485, 490.

Courts of justices of the peace being the mere creatures of statute, have no jurisdiction except that which is expressly granted to them by law.

This provision does not extend the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, but only restricts the power of the legislature, and justices courts could not by virtue of the constitution alone, and without an act of the legislature, take jurisdiction of cases where the demand was $300.

The constitution merely confers power upon the legislature, and does not in this respect define the jurisdiction of those courts. Paul v. Began, 1 Nev. 327, 329, 330.

Under the provisions of this section the legislature may prescribe the mode of proceeding on appeal from a justice's court to the district court. That mode may be by trial de novo, or a mere review of the justice's proceedings, as the legislature choose to direct. Cavanaugh v. Wright, 2 Nev. 166, 167.

Under this section the legislature alone can determine the number of justices of the peace for each township, and the office must be filled by popular election; so that the act of March 5, 1867 (Stats. 1867, p. 87) providing for the appointment of additional justices of the peace by the county commissioners in certain cases is unconstitutional.

Although the power may exist in the legislature to provide otherwise than by election for the filling of the office of justice of the peace in case of emergency or special occasion, such as a vacancy, or the creation of a new office, it cannot delegate the power to determine the number of justices for the townships, nor can it provide that the office is to be filled under general laws otherwise than by popular election. State ex rel. Bull v. Snodgrass, 4 Nev. 524-526.

Our statute does not provide for or create any such offense as an "unlawful" as distinguished from a "forcible entry," within the meaning of the term "unlawful" as employed in this section. Peacock v. Leonard, 8 Nev. 84, 88.

Justices of the peace have jurisdiction to try an action for malicious injury to real estate in cases where the defendant claims an adverse title to the property. State ex rel. Murphy v. Rising, 10 Nev. 97, 100-103.

Possible municipal courts.

324. SEC: 9. Provision shall be made by law prescribing the powers, duties and responsibilities of any Municipal Court that may be established in pursuance of Section One, of this Article; and also fixing by law the jurisdiction of said Court, so as not to conflict with that of the several courts of Record.

T. C. C. p. 209.

The power which may be conferred upon municipal courts is restricted by section one of this article, by which the jurisdiction of courts cannot be extended

In an action in the justice's court for trespass on plaintiff's land defendant testified that, so far as he knew, the title to the land was in plaintiff. There was a failure to prove that plaintiff had the patent right to a particular eighty acres of land, but it was not shown that she did not have a prior possession thereto, nor did it appear whether the trespass was committed on all the lands claimed by plaintiff, or only on lands other than the eighty acres. Held, not to show that the right to real property was necessarily involved within this section. State ex rel. Launiza v. Justice Court, 29 Nev. 191, 197, 201 (87 P. 1).

See Moore v. Orr, 30 Nev. 458, 461 (98 P. 398).

Under this section, and Comp. Laws, 3835, authorizing actions in justice's courts against a tenant unlawfully holding over, etc., a justice court has jurisdiction to render judgment for plaintiff for the restitution of real estate, for rent due, and for damages for deprivation of the premises, where defendant in his answer admits the execution of the lease and the payment of rent under it, as such admission establishes the relation of landlord and tenant.

Under this section, a judgment in a justice court for $396 treble damages for a tenant wrongfully withholding possession of the premises, and for $100 rent due, is void because beyond the jurisdiction of the court. Fitchett v. Henley, 31 Nev. 326, 327, 332, 335 (102 P. 865).

The prohibition contained in this section, against the judges receiving to their own use, "any fees or perquisites of office," does not apply to "the necessary expenses actually paid by them for traveling by public conveyance, in going to and from the place of holding court." State ex rel. Coffin v. Atherton, 19 Nev. 333, 346 (10 P. 901).

The compensation allowed the trustee under Stats. 1869, 68, sec. 7, is not a fee or perquisite of the office of

The Justices of the Supreme Court and the District Judges shall be ineligible to any Office, other than a Judicial Office, during the term for which they shall have been elected; and all elections or appointments of any such Judges by the people, Legislature or otherwise, during said period, to any Office other than Judicial, shall be void.

T. C. C. pp. 214, 485, 492.

The trusteeship of a federal townsite as provided in Stats. 1869, 68, is not an office within the meaning of this section. State ex rel. Jennet v. Stevens, 33 Nev. — (116 P. 601).

Judges not to charge as to matters of fact.

§27. SEC: 12. Judges shall not charge juries in respect to matters of fact, but may state the testimony and declare the law.

T. C. C. pp. 214, 485, 492.

It is error for the judge to give his opinion to the jury as to the weight or sufficiency of testimony. In a trial for murder a judge should not give it as his opinion to the jury that they should find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, or acquit. The grade of the offense is a question of fact which should be left entirely to the jury.

When a killing has been shown, the presumption arises that murder has been committed. But there is no presumption that it is murder in the first degree in a case of this kind. If the defendant claims that it is only manslaughter, the proof devolves on him to show the circumstances, thus reducing the grade of offense. If the prosecution claims that it is murder in the first degree, it devolved upon the state to show the aggravating facts.

An instruction in the following language is erroneous: "The testimony in this case tends to show the property of the deceased, or some portion of the same, in the possession of the defendant at the time subsequent to the alleged murder, and at quite a recent date." This instruction assumes that the property found was, or had been the property of deceased. The expression "tends to prove" only applies to the tendency of the evidence to show when the property was found, but does not apply to question of ownership. State v. Millain, 3 Nev. 409, 447, 468, 472, 475, 476, 481.

See dissenting opinion of Lewis, J., p. 468.

This provision was intended to prevent judges from charging that facts testified to are or are not established; but was not intended to prevent, and does not prevent, them from charging what would be the legal effect of facts if found to be established. State v. Anderson, 4 Nev. 266.

A charge in a criminal case that "it is the duty of the jury to candidly consider whether in the eye of sound reason these sufficient facts and circumstances detailed in the evidence, pointing beyond reasonable doubt to the existence of the acts and intent as charged in the indictment; and if you so conclude in your minds you must, as jurors upon your oath, so declare," amounts to a charge that the facts detailed in the evidence are sufficient to establish the offense, and that the evidence points to the existence of the acts and intent beyond a reasonable doubt, and is error sufficient for reversal.

Any ambiguity in the charge in a criminal case which may have a tendency to mislead the jury should entitle the accused to a new trial; for every person charged with a public offense has the right to have the evidence weighed by the jury uninfluenced by the opinion of the judge respecting it—in all respects to have a fair and impartial trial, free from every prejudicial irregularity, and from everything which may so involve the case as to render it difficult or impossible for the jury to arrive at an intelligent conclusion. State v. McGinnis, 5 Nev. 337, 339.

Where, in charging the jury in a criminal case the court used the expression "the guilt of the defendant rests upon what is known as circumstantial evidence"; Held, that there was a direct assumption of the guilt of defendant and therefore manifest error.

The assumption by a judge in his charge in a criminal case, that any material fact upon which there is any conflict of evidence is proved, is error.

The provisions of this section, whether it be wise and wholesome or not, must be fully enforced both in letter and spirit.

Where in a criminal case, the court in charging the jury said, "the guilt of the defendant rests upon circumstantial evidence"; Held, that although evidently what was intended to be said was that the charge of guilt rested on circumstantial evidence, yet the words expressed a totally different meaning and constituted fatal error. State v. Duffy, 6 Nev. 138, 139, 140.

On a murder trial the judge instructed the jury that under the law and evidence it would not be justified in finding a verdict for any higher grade of offense than manslaughter; Held, on appeal by defendant, not necessarily a charge that the state had made out a case of manslaughter.

Where a jury in a murder case was charged that it would not be justified under the law and evidence, in finding a verdict for any higher grade of offense than manslaughter; Held, that though the instruction (which was authorized by section 376 of the Criminal Practice Act) might be repugnant to this section, yet it was not to defendant's prejudice, and he could not complain. State v. Little, 6 Nev. 281, 282.

Where the court in a criminal case instructed the jury that "circumstantial evidence is more satisfactory than the testimony of a single individual, who swears he has seen a fact committed"; Held, error. State v. Van Winkle, 6 Nev. 340, 349.

Where, in a murder case, the judge, after giving the statutory definition of the crime, used the following language: "Such is the law which you as jurors are called upon to vindicate," etc. Held, that, though the instruction might have been only meant to enjoin the jury to assert and maintain the law, it would have been better to have told the jury so, and still better to have omitted that portion of the charge altogether.

A judge in a criminal case has no right to intimate an opinion upon the facts, either directly or by innuendo; and the effect of such an opinion, expressed or indicated, cannot be obviated by announcing the jury's independence of him in all matters of fact.

A defendant in a criminal case has the right to the deliberate, independent, voluntary and unbiased judgment of the jury upon the truth of his theory or hypothesis of the case, without having the force of his position weakened by an instruction or intimation that even if they convict him they will not greatly err. State v. Ah Tong, 7 Nev. 148, 152.

In a murder case where it appeared that defendant had kicked deceased in the face, but the prosecution contended that the killing was by a kick upon the breast, and offered testimony to show bruises there; and the judge, in overruling objections to such testimony, remarked, in the hearing of the jury, "that there was as much testimony that defendant had kicked deceased upon the chest as upon the face"; Held, error, as charging in respect to matter of fact.

The opinion of a judge in respect to a matter of fact in a criminal case can be as effectively conveyed to the jury by expressing it in their hearing while ruling upon an objection to evidence, as by embodying it in an instruction to them; and he has no more right to volunteer such an opinion in one case than in the other.

Where a judge, in the course of a murder trial, in overruling an objection to testimony tending to show that defendant had kicked deceased fatally in the breast, remarked, "that there was as much testimony that defendant had kicked deceased upon the chest as upon the face," and afterward took occasion to state to the jury that in making the remark he was simply ruling upon an objection to testimony, and addressing himself more directly to counsel, and that he did not wish to be understood as saying how much or how little testimony there was upon any particular point, and that the whole matter was for them to pass upon; Held, that the error of the remark, if curable at all, was not cured by the caution—there being no retraction of his opinion, but merely a disclaimer of opinion as to the absolute weight of such testimony.

If a judge, in the course of a criminal trial expresses in the hearing of the jury his opinion as to a matter of fact, the injury to defendant demands redress as imperatively in the case of a mere inadvertence on his part as in case of a wilful evasion of the law. State v. Harkin, 7 Nev. 377, 383.

The district judge, upon the trial of a criminal case, has the right to state to the jury, upon their request, the testimony of any witness. State v. Smith, 10 Nev. 106, 114.

An instruction of the court, assuming as a fact that A. was a creditor of B., where this was a fact in issue in the case, was clearly erroneous.

The evidence being clear that A. was a creditor, and it appearing that if that question had been submitted to the jury as a special issue and they had found otherwise it would have been the duty of the court to set aside the verdict: Held, that under such circumstances, the inadvertent assumption of the fact by the court was not such an error as justified a reversal of the case. Gaudette v. Travis, 11 Nev. 149, 161.

The court, in referring to the testimony of the defendants, as witnesses in their own behalf, told the jury that they could not believe them both, because they were wholly inconsistent, as to the principal fact in the case: Held, that this was not an infringement upon the constitutional prohibition against charging juries as to matters of fact. State v. McLane, 15 Nev. 345, 366.

On trial of defendant for grand larceny, the court instructed the jury that if satisfied, beyond a reasonable doubt, "that defendant killed, or had the calf killed, by the witnesses, and that she then cut out the brand and cut off the ears of the calf, and burned up the ears and part of the hide so cut out, this would be a circumstance to be considered by you, indicating that the defendant was not the owner of the calf, and of her knowledge that she was not the owner," etc. Held, that the word "indicating," as used in the instruction, would be understood by the jury as tending to show a certain result, and that

In the payment of a debt, legal tender notes are in contemplation of law equal to coin; an act of the legislature, therefore, making the salary of a state officer payable in legal tender notes after it had previously made it payable in coin, is not rendered unconstitutional by this section.

This provision only prohibits the legislature from increasing or decreasing the number of dollars in lawful money at which the salary of the language of the instruction is not in violation of this constitutional provision. State v. Loveless, 17 Nev. 424, 426 (30 P. 1080).

In a prosecution for murder where the defendant relies upon a justification, and evidence tending to establish such defense is given, it is error for the judge, in refusing to give certain instructions concerning the law of self-defense, to remark to counsel, in the presence of the jury, that he did not give the instructions for the reason that he does not "remember of any testimony given in this case tending to show that the deceased ever made an assault upon the defendant, or that there was any attempted assault made by deceased at the time of the killing; but the jurors are the exclusive judges of the facts in the case." (Hawley, C. J., dissenting).

The provision allowing mileage in the former law was intended as a part of the compensation of commissioners for their services. The language of the salary act that the salaries fixed "shall be in full for all services," excludes the idea that the legislature intended to allow the former provision upon that subject to stand. State ex rel. Scott v. Trusdale, 16 Nev. 357, 360.

It is not in contravention of this section, to provide that the judges' salaries shall be paid quarterly out of the county treasuries into the state treasury, and by the state treasurer paid to the judges in monthly installments. State ex rel. Coffin v. Atherton, 19 Nev. 333, 346 (10 P. 901).

Costs advanced.

331. SEC: 16. The Legislature at its first Session, and from time to time thereafter shall provide by law, that upon the institution of each civil action, and other proceedings, and also upon the perfecting of an appeal in any Civil Action or proceeding, in the several Courts of Record in this State, a special Court fee, or tax shall be advanced to the Clerks of said Courts, respectively by the party or parties bringing such action or proceeding, or taking such appeal and the money so paid in shall be accounted for by such Clerks, and applied towards the payment of the compensation of the Judges of said Courts, as shall be directed by law.

Leave of absence of judicial officers limited.

332. SEC: 17. The Legislature shall have no power to grant leave of absence to a Judicial Officer, and any such Officer who shall absent himself from the State for more than Ninety consecutive days, shall be deemed to have vacated his Office.

T. C. C. p. 202.

No officer superseded until election of successors.

333. SEC: 18. No Judicial Officer shall be superceded nor shall the Organization of the several Courts of the Territory of Nevada be changed until the election and qualification of the several Officers provided for in this article.

T. C. C. pp. 475, 492.

It will be seen upon examination of this section, that no judicial officer was superseded, nor the organization of any court of the territory changed, until the several officers provided for in that article should be elected and qualified. Armstrong v. Paul, 1 Nev. 138.

ARTICLE 7.

IMPEACHMENT AND REMOVAL FROM OFFICE

Powers of impeachment conferred.

334. SECTION 1. The Assembly shall have the sole power of impeaching. The concurrence of a majority of all the members elected, shall be necessary to an impeachment. All impeachments shall be tried by the Senate, and when sitting for that purpose, the Senators shall be upon Oath or Affirmation to do justice according to Law and Evidence. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, shall preside over the Senate while sitting to try the Governor or Lieutenant Governor upon impeachment. No person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two thirds of the Senators elected.

T. C. C. pp. 93, 470.

Officers liable to impeachment, judgment in.

335. SEC: 2. The Governor and other State and Judicial Officers, except Justices of the Peace shall be liable to impeachment for Misdemeanor or Malfeasance in Office; but judgment in such case shall not extend further than removal from Office and disqualification to hold any Office of honor, profit, or trust under this State. The party whether convicted or acquitted, shall, nevertheless, be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law.

T. C. C. pp. 94, 470.

Judicial officers, how impeached.

336. SEC: 3. For any reasonable cause to be entered on the journals of each House, which may, or may not be sufficient grounds for impeachment, the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court and Judges of the District Courts shall be removed from Office on the vote of two thirds of the Members elected to each branch of the Legislature, and the Justice or Judge complained of, shall be served with a copy of the complaint against him, and shall have an opportunity of being heard in person or by counsel in his defense, Provided, that no Member of either branch of the Legislature shall be eligible to fill the vacancy occasioned by such removal.

T. C. C. p. 203.

This section, providing for the removal from office of judges in a certain manner by the legislature, is exclusive and prohibitory upon the legislature of other means for such removal. State ex rel. O'Neale v. McClinton, 5 Nev. 329, 333.

Cited, Bell v. District Court, 28 Nev. 298 (163 A. S. 854, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 843, 81 P. 875).

Other officers, removal from office.

337. SEC: 4. Provision shall be made by law for the removal from Office of any Civil Officer other than those in this Article previously specified, for Malfeasance, or Nonfeasance in the performance of his duties.

T. C. C. p. 470.

ARTICLE 8.

MUNICIPAL AND OTHER CORPORATIONS

Special act prohibited, exception.

338. SECTION 1. The Legislature shall pass no Special Act in any matter relating to corporate powers except for municipal purposes; but corporations may be formed under general laws; and all such laws may from time to time, be altered or repealed. T. C. C. pp. 254, 320, 330, 473.

This section clearly recognizes the authority of the legislature to create municipal corporations by special enactment. This interpretation is not inconsistent with the provisions of section 8 of this article. City of Virginia v. Chollar-Potosi G. & S. M. Co., 2 Nev. 86 (affirmed); State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 129, 142.

The said act of 1897 (p. 50) incorporating the city of Reno, having been passed pursuant to this section, section 34 of said act, granting to the city the right within a certain limit to borrow money for procuring water and erecting water works, is not in violation of article 8, section 8. State ex rel. Fletcher v. Ruhe, 24 Nev. 251, 261 (52 P. 274).

This section, by much stronger implication, seems to reserve to the legislature the power to pass special laws in regard to municipal corporations; that is, to create them; or, at least, to confer special and additional powers after they are in existence.

The city of Virginia was a municipal corporation when the constitution was adopted, and has never ceased to be a corporation. The law amending the charter is, therefore, unconstitutional.

The expression "in any manner relating to corporate powers," is a rather ambiguous phrase, but we think the framers of the constitution meant by that language to prohibit the formation of corporations by special acts. The subsequent language "but incorporations may be formed under general laws," shows that was the meaning intended to be conveyed. Then, to use more appropriate language, the section would read in this way: "the legislature shall pass general laws for the formation of corporations; but no corporations (except corporations for municipal purposes) shall be created by special act."

The act of February 9, 1865 (Stats. 1864-5, 144) attempts to give a right to Birdsall and his associates to exercise corporate powers not provided for in a general law. It is an attempt upon the part of the legislature to grant a special privilege to one corporation that could not be enjoyed by any other and is in violation of this section. State of Nevada ex rel. Keith v. Dayton Road Co., 10 Nev. 155, 161.

Cited, State ex rel. Williams v. District Court, 30 Nev. 225, 227 (94 P. 70).

Property of corporations taxed.

339. SEC: 2. All real property, and possessory rights to the same, as well as personal property in this State, belonging to corporations now existing or hereafter created shall be subject to taxation, the same as property of individuals: Provided, that the property of corporations formed for Municipal, Charitable, Religious, or Educational purposes may be exempted by law.

As the act of 1891, p. 56, provides that all railroads, however owned, are to be assessed by the state board, and all other property by the county assessors, it is not in conflict with this section. It makes no improper discrimination between the corporations and individuals. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 391, 397 (32 P. 437).

Dues, corporators not liable.

340. SEC: 3. Dues from corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law; Provided, that corporators in corporations formed under the laws of this State shall not be individually liable for the debts or liabilities of such corporation. T. C. C. pp. 323, 474.

Credit of cities and towns limited.

345. SEC: 8. The Legislature shall provide for the Organization of Cities and Towns by general laws; and restrict their powers of taxation, assessment, borrowing money, contracting debts, and loaning their credit, except for procuring supplies of water.

T. C. C. p. 475.

This section is inoperative until acted upon by the legislature.

Such section, if standing alone, and not qualified by any other sections of the constitution, might raise a strong implied prohibition against the legislature passing any special laws on the same subject. City of Virginia v. Chollar-Potosi G. & S. M. Co., 2 Nev. 86, 89, 90.

State forbidden to speculate.

The legislature has power to appropriate money as it sees fit except when limited by the constitution. State ex rel. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 17, 31.

Limitation of county indebtedness.

347. SEC: 10. No county, city, town, or other Municipal corporation shall become a stockholder in any joint Stock Company, Corporation, or association whatever, or loan its credit in aid of any such Company, Corporation or Association, except, railroad corporations, companies, or associations.

T. C. C. p. 129.

In the very section preceding this, the state is prohibited not only from becoming a stockholder in any company or association, but also from donating money to them. Now, if it were the purpose to make the same prohibition respecting counties and towns, why were they not, like the state, expressly forbidden to donate? The failure to make the prohibition in express terms, under such circumstances, warrants the conclusion that it was not the intention to do so. Counties and towns, therefore, are not prohibited by this section from donating money to such railroad companies, if to any kind of company or association. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284, 301.

The act authorizing the issuance of the bonds of Ormsby County to the Virginia and Truckee Railroad Company (Stats. 1869, p. 43) is not unconstitutional.

This section, though it does not confer any right upon such organizations, does not prevent the legislature from authorizing a county to aid a railroad, either by loaning its credit, donation, or otherwise.

To allow a county to loan its credit to a railroad company is virtually allowing a donation, because the right to loan its credit must involve the right to pay any liabilities which may be incurred by that means. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 284, 299, 301.

ARTICLE 9.

FINANCE AND STATE DEBT

Fiscal year.

348. SECTION 1. The fiscal year shall commence on the first day of January in each Year.

T. C. C. pp. 404, 501.

Annual tax.

349. SEC: 2. The Legislature shall provide by law, for an annual tax sufficient to defray the estimated expenses of the State for each fiscal year; and whenever the expenses of any Year shall exceed the income, the Legislature shall provide for levying a tax sufficient with other sources of income, to pay the deficiency, as well as the estimated expenses of such ensuing Years or two Years.

The levy of state taxes by the board of county commissioners, though provided for in the revenue laws, is an idle ceremony, for the reason that the levy is made by the legislature. Cited, State v. Manhattan Silver Mining Co., 4 Nev. 318, 330, 333.

See Klein v. Kinkead, 16 Nev. 194, 204-206, under section 3 of the article.

The constitution of this state declares that all property shall be taxed, except mines and other property for certain enumerated purposes. The legislature cannot exempt any taxable property not enumerated. Money at interest, secured by mortgage, is taxable.

Held, upon a full review of the authorities, that the taxing of money at interest secured by mortgage, when the property mortgaged is taxed is not double taxation, and is not in violation of the constitution of this state. State v. Carson City Savings Bank, 17 Nev. 146 (30 P. 703).

State may contract debts, limitation, exception.

350. SEC: 3. For the purpose of enabling the State to transact its business upon a cash basis from its organization, the State may contract public debts; but such debts shall never in the aggregate, exclusive of interest, exceed the sum of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars; except for the purpose of defraying extraordinary expenses as hereinafter mentioned; Every such debt shall be authorized by law for some purpose or purposes, to be distinctly specified therein, and every such law shall provide for levying an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest Semi-Annually, and the principal within twenty years from the passage of such law, and shall specially appropriate the proceeds of said taxes to the payment of said principal and interest; and such appropriation shall not be repealed, nor the taxes be postponed or diminished until the principal and interest of said debts shall have been wholly paid. Every contract of indebtedness entered into or assumed by or on behalf of the State, when all its debts and liabilities amount to said sum beforementioned, shall be void and of no effect. Except in cases of money borrowed to repel invasion, suppress insurrection, defend the State in time of War, or if hostilities be threatened, provide for the public defense.

T. C. C. pp. 385, 493.

This section discussed and commented on. It does not qualify the 24th section of the 17th article.

Tax levied under the law in question is illegal and void, but the bonds authorized to be issued are legal and valid debts against the state if negotiated. State ex rel. Nightingill v. Board of Commissioners of Storey County, 1 Nev. 264, 267-271.

The legislative fund act of 1869 was not in violation of the constitutional provision against contracting a public debt exceeding three thousand dollars, though then there was a public debt to that amount, for the reason that the act did not create a debt within the meaning of the constitution.

Where language is employed in the constitution similar to the language in the constitution of other states; which had previously received judicial interpretation, the legal presumption arises that the language is used with reference to such interpretation.

If, as is now decided, warrants issued under the legislative fund act of 1869, create no debt against the state within the meaning of this section, the addition of an interest clause to such warrants cannot make them unconstitutional.

Interest constitutes no part of the original demand; it is simply a statutory allowance for delay.

With the question of the policy or expediency of a statute the judicial department has nothing to do; in that regard the legislature is supreme.

That a power may be abused is no argument against either its existence or its exercise. State ex rel. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 15, 16, 23, 24, 27, 28.

In construing sections 2 and 3 of this article: Held, that the object in authorizing a bonded indebtedness was to enable the state to maintain its business upon a cash basis, and that the legislature has the power to direct the issuance of bonds at any time, so long as it does not conflict with the limitation as to the amount.

In construing the various statutes relative

Not assume debts.

351. SEC. 4: The State shall never assume the debts of any county, town, city or other corporation whatever, unless such debts have been created to repel invasion, suppress insurrection or to provide for the public defense.

ARTICLE 10.

TAXATION.

[SECTION 1. The Legislature shall provide by law for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation and shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, real, personal and possessory, excepting Mines and Mining claims, the proceeds of which alone shall be taxed, and also excepting such property as may be exempted by law for Municipal, Educational, Literary, Scientific, religious or charitable purposes.]

Original section as above.

TAXATION

Taxation to be uniform.

352. SECTION 1. The Legislature shall provide by law for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation, and shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property, real, personal and possessory, except mines and mining claims, when not patented, the proceeds alone of which shall be assessed and taxed, and, when patented, each patented mine shall be assessed at not less than five hundred dollars ($500) except when one hundred dollars ($100) in labor has been actually performed on such patented mine during the year, in addition to the tax upon the net proceeds; and, also excepting such property as may be exempted by law for municipal, educational, literary, scientific or other charitable purposes.

[As amended. Proposed and passed by the Twenty-first Session of the Nevada Legislature, March 16, 1903, Statutes of 1903, page 240; passed and agreed to by the Twenty-second Session of the Nevada Legislature, March 3, 1905, Statutes of 1905, page 277, and approved and ratified by the people at the general election of 1906.]

T. C. C. pp. 346, 360, 501.

The constitution requires that all ad valorem taxes shall be as nearly equal as may be. We cannot see that the mode of assessing the products of mines violates that principle of equality. Mayor of the City of Virginia v. Chollar-Potosi Gold and Silver Mining Company, 2 Nev. 86.

The products of mines are personal property, and as such subject to taxation for municipal purposes.

All property within the municipality is subject to one annual taxation, and it makes no difference that it is removed beyond the corporate limits before the amount of tax is specified or the mode of collecting established.

The municipal authorities of the city of Virginia may add a penalty for refusing to give the assessor proper information to enable him properly to assess the products of a mine. Mayor of the City of Virginia v. Chollar-Potosi G. & S. M. Co., 2 Nev. 86, 92, 93.

This provision requires that all ad valorem taxes shall be at a uniform rate of percentage. One species of property cannot be taxed at a higher rate than another.

The products of mines being subjected by constitutional provision to taxation, in lieu of the body of the mine, the entire annual product must be subject to taxation at the same rate or percentage as other property.

The first section of the revenue law levies a state tax of one dollar and twenty-five cents, and authorizes a county tax not exceeding one dollar and fifty cents on each hundred dollars' worth of taxable property in the state. This is clearly in accordance with the constitution.

Section 99 imposes on the products of the mines an annual ad valorem tax of one per cent for state and county purposes—say, one-half per cent for each. Whether this be held as a substitute for the tax levied in the first section, or as an addition thereto, it is equally void and unconstitutional. Products of the mines can neither be taxed more nor less than other taxable property.

The legislature may direct the manner of assessing property, so as to obtain a fair valuation. This court could only declare such a law unconstitutional where it was manifestly intended to evade the provisions of the constitution rather than to effect a fair valuation.

That portion of section 99 declaring that three-fourths of the value shall be subject to taxation, is manifestly unconstitutional. The value once being ascertained, the whole is liable to taxation.

If section 99 was the only section providing for the taxation of the products of the mines, the whole law would fall with that section; but as section 1 provides for the taxation of all taxable property (of course including products of mines) the law is complete, leaving out section 99.

The tax collector and other revenue officers should have disregarded the unconstitutional portions of this act, and proceeded to collect the tax equally from all property under those provisions which are constitutional. Any taxpayer, by a proper proceeding in court, could have compelled such a proceeding. One taxpayer cannot be allowed to escape payment because the collector has improperly failed to collect from another from whom taxes are due. State v. Eastabrook, 3 Nev. 173, 177-181.

This article means that the entire annual proceeds of mines are subject to taxation, and not the mere proceeds on hand when the assessor happens to visit the mines.

All ad valorem taxes, whether on the proceeds of mines or other property, must be equal.

The provisions of the revenue law of 1865, (Stats. 1865, p. 271) for quarterly assessments on the proceeds of mines and quarterly payment of taxes do not impose more than a regular pro rata of taxation on the proceeds of mines, nor require the same property to be paid for more than once.

The quarterly payment of taxes on the proceeds of mines, provided for by the revenue laws, are so arranged that the annual proceeds of mines do not pay a larger pro rata, even as to interest account, than if one annual tax for the annual proceeds were imposed, payable at the time other taxes are payable. State v. Kruttschnitt, 4 Nev. 178, 200, 202, 203.

Ordinarily the state has the right to tax all property situate within its territorial limits; but it has no power, by taxation or otherwise, to retard, impede, burden, or in any manner control the operation of constitutional laws enacted by Congress.

Congress having pointed out a method by which the real estate of national banks within any state may be taxed, and also the method of taxing their stock, the states are excluded from all other methods of taxation on the bank property.

The state may impose a tax upon the real estate and shares of national banks within its limits; but Congress has reserved to itself the exclusive power over the taxation of the banks and bank property of other descriptions.

The notes, bills, bonds, etc., of the national banks are the commodity in which those banks deal in the ordinary course of their business; state taxes upon them are state taxes upon the business of the banks, and such taxes the state cannot impose. State v. First National Bank of Nevada, 4 Nev. 348, 350, 351.

So far as the extent of taxation is concerned, or the purposes for which taxes may be levied, provided such purposes are public in their nature, there is no limit or restriction placed upon the legislative power. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 285, 306.

Principles of valuation and taxation elaborately discussed and explained. State v. C. P. R. R. Co., 10 Nev. 48, 64.

The power to tax all the property and business within the state is an essential attribute of its sovereignty; there is no restraint upon its exercise, when within constitutional limits, except the responsibility of the members of the legislature to their constituents.

In construing this article: Held, that it refers particularly to the levy of ad valorem taxes on all property, real and personal, and does not apply to licenses imposed for conducting any business or profession. Ex Parte Robinson, 12 Nev. 263, 268, 269 (28 A. R. 794).

In construing the provisions of the act to regulate and tax foreign insurance companies: Held, that the imposition of the percentage on premiums is a tax upon the business of the insurance companies, and is not repugnant to the provisions of this article. As all property is to be assessed at its actual cash value, the fact that the act (Stats. 1891, p. 56) provides that different kinds of property shall be assessed by different assessors, does not make it conflict with this article. estates shall escheat, or from asserting or waiving a claim to derelict goods. In re Sticknoth, 7 Nev. 223, 229.

The act of February 13, 1867, is not in violation of this section of the constitution; there is nothing in the act which attempts to make any disposition of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections for any other than educational purposes. (Beatty, J., dissenting.) Haydenfeldt v. Daney G. & S. M. Co., 10 Nev. 290, 291. (Affirmed, 93 U. S. 634.)

In construing this section: Held, that its object was to prevent the legislature from passing any law that would appropriate the proceeds received by the State from the sale of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections to any other than educational purposes.

Under this section, the legislature is commanded to invest certain moneys received for educational purposes in United States bonds or the bonds of this state: Held, that the issuance of the bonds provided for in the act in question is not an evasion of the investment directed by the constitution. Klein v. Kinkead, 16 Nev. 195.

The provisions of this section providing that all fines collected under the penal laws of the state shall be pledged to educational purposes, has no application to fines recoverable for violations of city ordinances, but applies to fines recoverable under the general laws of the state. State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 129, 141.

See State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 468, 470, 472, under section 2 of this article (49 P. 119).

This section prohibits the legislature from using the funds arising from the sale of the public lands, which were granted for educational purposes, for any other branch of state expenditure except that immediately connected with the educational system; but it does not prohibit the use of a part of the trust estate for the purpose of making the rest available. State ex rel. Greenbaum v. Rhoades, 4 Nev. 312, 314, 316, 317.

The state, through the legislature, may waive the right to insist upon a technical informality in the execution of a will as against the just and equitable claims of the legatee; in other words, it may waive its right to an escheat by ordering that an unattested will may be admitted to probate; and there is nothing in this section to prevent it.

The statute providing for the admission to probate of the unattested will of Henry Sticknoth, deceased (Stats. 1871, p. 129): Held, not to transfer to another fund, besides the school fund, the proceeds of an escheated estate. In re Sticknoth, 7 Nev. 223, 229.

An appropriation of money for the payment of the salary of the superintendent of public instruction out of the general school fund, is not in violation of this section providing that the interest received from the investment of the state school fund "shall from time to time, be apportioned among the several counties as the legislature may provide by law"; there being no such restriction on the disposition of that portion of the fund derived from taxation, as provided for by section 6 of this article, and the superintendent being immediately connected with the common schools. State ex rel. Cutting v. Westerfield, 24 Nev. 29, 35 (49 P. 554).

Cited, State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 471 (49 P. 119).

Cited, State ex rel. Stoutmeyer v. Duffy, 7 Nev. 346 (89 P. 713).

In the apportionment of the school fund as required by this section, the wards of the state at the orphans' home should not be counted as a part of the children of Ormsby County, as their education is provided for by the state at the orphans' home, and they have not the right to attend the public schools. State ex rel. Wright v. Dovey, 19 Nev. 396, 397 (12 P. 910).

The provisions of this section, providing that all fines collected under the penal laws of the state shall be pledged to educational purposes, has no application to fines recoverable for violations of city ordinances, but applies to fines recoverable under the general laws of the state. State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 129, 141.

This section provides that all fines collected under the general law of the state, and all proceeds derived from such sources shall be devoted to educational purposes only: Held, that Stats. 1901, p. 121, enacted for the protection of wild game, and directing that a portion of the fines collected thereunder for violation thereof shall be paid to the informer, is unconstitutional. Ex Parte McMahon, 26 Nev. 243, 245, 246 (66 P. 294).

[SENATE JOINT AND CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 1, RELATIVE TO AMENDING SECTION 3 OF ARTICLE 11 OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEVADA.]

Approved March 3, 1909

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That section 3 of article 11 of the Constitution of the State of Nevada be amended to read as follows:

SECTION 3. All lands, including the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections in any township donated for the benefit of public schools in the Act of Thirty-eighth Congress, to enable the people of Nevada Territory to form a State Government, the thirty thousand acres of public lands granted by an Act of Congress, approved July 2, A. D. 1862, for each Senator and Representative in Congress, and all proceeds of lands that have been or may hereafter be granted or appropriated by the United States to this State, and also the five hundred thousand acres of land granted to the new States under the Act of Congress distributing the proceeds of the public lands among the several States of the Union, approved A. D. 1841, provided that Congress make provision for or authorize such diversion to be made for the purpose herein contained; all estates that may escheat to the State; all of such per centum as may be granted by Congress on the sale of lands; all fines collected under the penal laws of the State; all property given or bequeathed to the State for educational purposes, and all proceeds derived from any or all of said sources, shall be and the same hereby are solemnly pledged for educational purposes, and shall not be transferred to any other funds for other uses; and the interest thereon shall, from time to time, be apportioned among the several counties as the Legislature may provide by law; and the Legislature shall provide for the sale of floating land warrants to cover the aforesaid lands, and for the investment of all proceeds derived from the above-mentioned sources in United States bonds or the bonds of this State, or the bonds of other States of the Union, or the bonds of any county in the State of Nevada; provided, that the interest only of the aforesaid proceeds shall be used for educational purposes, and any surplus interest shall be added to the principal sum; and provided further, that such portion of said interest as may be necessary may be appropriated for the support of the State University.]

[Proposed and passed at the Twenty-fourth Session of the Legislature, March 3, 1909, Statutes of 1909, page 340; agreed to and passed at the Twenty-fifth Session, February 14, 1911, Statutes of 1911, page 453, and is now subject to ratification of the people at the general election to be held in 1912.]

State University.

356. SEC: 4. The Legislature shall provide for the establishment of a State University which shall embrace departments for Agriculture, Mechanic Arts and Mining to be controlled by a Board of Regents whose duties shall be prescribed by Law.

T. C. C. p. 233.

See State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 468, 470, 472, under section 2 of this article (49 P. 119).

Normal School.

357. SEC: 5. The Legislature shall have power to establish Normal schools, and such different grades of schools, from the primary department to the University, as in their discretion they may deem necessary, and all professors in said University, or Teachers in said schools of whatever grade, shall be required to take and subscribe to the oath as prescribed in Article Fifteen of this Constitution. No Professor or Teacher who fails to comply with the provisions of any law framed in accordance with the provisions of this Section shall be entitled to receive any portion of the public moneys set apart for school purposes.

T. C. C. p. 233.

See State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 468, 470, 472, under section 2 of this article (49 P. 119).

Educational special tax.

358. SEC: 6. The Legislature shall provide a special tax,¹ which shall not exceed two mills on the dollar of all taxable property in the State, in addition to the other means provided for the support and maintenance of said University and common schools.²

[As amended. Proposed and passed at the Twelfth Session of the Legislature, February 25, 1885, Statutes of 1885, page 161; agreed to and passed at the Thirteenth Session, March 3, 1887, Statutes of 1887, page 169, and approved and ratified by the people at a special election held February 11, 1889.]

See State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 468, 470, 472, under section 2 of this article (49 P. 119).

Board of Regents constituted.

359. SEC: 7. The Governor, Secretary of State, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, shall for the first Four Years, and until their successors are elected and qualified, constitute a Board of Regents to control and manage the affairs of the University, and the funds of the same, under such regulations as may provided by law, But the Legislature shall at its regular session next preceding the expiration of the term of Office of said Board of Regents provide for the election of a new Board of Regents and define their duties.

Prior to 1891 the board of regents of the state university consisted of three members, elected by the people, as provided for by the act of February 7, 1887. The act of March 19, 1891, provided that "the board of regents of the state university shall consist of three elective members, as now provided by law, and of the governor and attorney-general, who shall be ex officio members of said board." Respondent, as attorney-general, claimed by virtue of said act to be a regent of the state university: Held, that respondent is not entitled to discharge the duties of regent because he has not been elected to that position in the manner provided by the constitution and the act of 1887. State ex rel. Mack v. Torreyson, 21 Nev. 517, 518, 521, 524, 526, 527 (34 P. 879).

Irreducible school fund.

360. SEC: 8. The Board of Regents shall, from the interest accruing from the first funds which come under their control, immediately organize and maintain the said Mining department in such manner as to make it most effective and useful, Provided, that all the proceeds of the public lands donated by Act of Congress approved July Second A. D. Eighteen hundred and sixty Two, for a college for the benefit of Agriculture, the Mechanic Arts, and including Military tactics shall be invested by the said Board of Regents in a Separate fund to be appropriated exclusively for the benefit of the first named departments to the University as set forth in Section Four above; and the Legislature shall provide that if through neglect or any other contingency, any portion of the fund so set apart, shall be lost or misappropriated, the State of Nevada shall replace said amount so lost or misappropriated in said fund so that the principal of said fund shall remain forever undiminished.

Sectarian instruction prohibited.

361. SEC. 9. No sectarian instruction shall be imparted or tolerated in any school or University that may be established under this Constitution.

T. C. C. pp. 128, 233.

Cited, State ex rel. Nevada Orphan Asylum v. Hallock, 16 Nev. 379.

No funds used for sectarian purposes.

362. SEC. 10. No public funds of any kind or character whatever, state, county, or municipal, shall be used for sectarian purposes.

[Section 10 was added to Article XI by amendment. Proposed and passed at the Eighth Session of the Legislature, February 27, 1877, Statutes of 1877, page 221; agreed to and passed at the Ninth Session of the Legislature, January 27, 1879, Statutes of 1879, page 149, and approved and ratified by the people at the general election of 1880.]

T. C. C. pp. 128, 233.

For the purpose of ascertaining the meaning of the words "sectarian purposes" as used in the constitution, the court examined the history of the state, in relation to appropriations, as shown by the statutes and legislative journals; Held, that the words were used in the popular sense; that a religious sect is a body or number of persons, united in tenets, but constituting a distinct party by holding doctrines different from those of other sects, or people, and that every sect of that character is sectarian within the meaning of that word as used in the constitution.

Upon a review of the testimony: Held, that the Nevada Orphan Asylum of Virginia City is a sectarian institution, and as such is prohibited by the constitution from drawing any money from the state treasury to be used for sectarian purposes.

Held, that if the money claimed, under the act "for the relief of the several orphan asylums of this state" (Stats. 1881, p. 122), should be given to the Nevada Orphan Asylum, it would be used for the relief and support of a sectarian institution, and in part, at least, for sectarian purposes, and that it is impossible to separate this use of the money from that which might be used for other purposes that are not forbidden. State ex rel. Nevada Orphan Asylum v. Hallock, 16 Nev. 377, 379, 385.

ARTICLE 12.

MILITIA

State militia.

363. SECTION 1. The Legislature shall provide by law for organizing and disciplining the Militia of this State, for the effectual encouragement of Volunteer Corps, and the safe keeping of the public Arms.

T. C. C. pp. 223, 493.

The act of March 6, 1893, sec. 41 (Stats. 1893, p. 96) provided that the expense of maintaining an armory for militia companies should be paid out of the general fund of the several counties on presentation of the auditor's certificate to the treasurer that such expenses had been allowed by the board of county commissioners. The act of March 18, 1895, sec. 12 (Stats. 1895, p. 109), expressly repeals this section of the act of 1893, and provides (sec. 11) that all claims for such expenses shall be audited by the board of military auditors, and paid out of the general fund in the state treasury upon warrant drawn therefor by the state controller. Held, that the repealing act of 1895 is not in violation of this section, and is valid, though it makes no appropriation for the payment of these expenses out of the state treasury, as provided for in section 11 of the said act of 1895. State ex rel. Sutherland v. Nye, 23 Nev. 99, 100 (42 P. 866).

Suppress insurrection or repel invasion.

364. SEC. 2. The Governor shall have power to call out the Militia to execute the laws of the State or to suppress insurrection or repel invasion.

T. C. C. pp. 223, 493.

ARTICLE 13.

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

Sanitary and benevolent institutions fostered.

365. SECTION 1. Institutions for the benefit of the Insane, Blind and Deaf and Dumb, and such other benevolent institutions as the public good may require, shall be fostered and supported by the State, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by law.

State Prison.

366. SEC: 2. A State Prison shall be established and maintained in such manner as may be prescribed by law, and provision may be made by law for the establishment and maintenance of a House of Refuge for Juvenile Offenders.

Relating to the indigent.

367. SEC: 3. The respective counties of the State shall provide as may be prescribed by law for those inhabitants who, by reason of age and infirmity or misfortunes, may have claim upon the sympathy and aid of Society.

The act entitled "An act to establish and maintain a state asylum for the indigent poor and maimed of this state" (Stats. 1879, p. 142) is in plain conflict with this section. State ex rel. Keyser v. Hallock, 14 Nev. 202, 206, 207, 208 (33 A. R. 559).

ARTICLE 14.

BOUNDARY.

Description.

368. SECTION 1. The boundary of the State of Nevada shall be as follows: Commencing at a point formed by the intersection of the thirty eighth degree of Longitude West from Washington with the Thirty Seventh degree of North latitude; Thence due West along said thirty seventh degree of North latitude to the Eastern boundary line of the State of California; thence in a North Westerly direction along the said Eastern boundary line of the State of California to the forty third degree of Longitude West from Washington; Thence North along said forty third degree of West Longitude, and said Eastern boundary line of the State of California to the forty second degree of North Latitude; Thence due East along the said forty second degree of North Latitude to a point formed by its intersection with the aforesaid thirty eighth degree of Longitude west from Washington; Thence due South down said thirty eighth degree of West Longitude to the place of beginning. And whensoever Congress shall authorize the addition to the Territory or State of Nevada of any portion of the territory on the Easterly border of the foregoing defined limits, not exceeding in extent one degree of Longitude, the same shall thereupon be embraced within, and become a part of this State. And furthermore provided, that all such territory lying West of and adjoining the boundary line herein prescribed, which the State of California, may relinquish to the Territory or State of Nevada, shall thereupon be embraced within and constitute a part of this State.

T. C. C. pp. 415, 503.

See "Act to define and establish a portion of the western boundary of the State of Nevada," post.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Seat of Government.

369. SECTION 1. The seat of Government shall be at Carson City, but no appropriation for the erection or purchase of Capitol buildings shall be made during the next three years.

T. C. C. pp. 400, 499.

Official oath.

370. SEC. 2. Members of the Legislature, and all Officers, Executive, Judicial and Ministerial, shall before they enter upon the duties of their respective Offices take and subscribe to the following Oath or affirmation: "I.....do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, protect and defend the Constitution and Government of the United States, and the Constitution and Government of the State of Nevada against all enemies, whether domestic or foreign, and that I will bear true faith, allegiance and loyalty to the same, any ordinance, resolution or law of any State, Convention or Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding; and further that I do this, with a full determination, pledge and purpose, without any mental reservation or evasion whatsoever. And I do further Solemnly Swear (or affirm) that I have not fought a duel, nor sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel, nor been a second to either party, nor in any manner aided or assisted in such duel, nor been knowingly the bearer of such challenge or acceptance, since the adoption of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, and that I will not be so engaged or concerned directly or indirectly in or about any such duel, during my continuance in office, And further that I will well and faithfully perform all the duties of the office of.....on which I am about to enter (if an Oath) So help me God, (if an affirmation) under the pains and penalties of Perjury."

T. C. C. pp. 402, 499.

The oath required by the constitution is an oath an officer is required to take when he is about to enter office, as distinguished from the primary election oath, which is one of fealty to a party, as a candidate for office, and is not regulated or imposed by the constitution. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 457).

The direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198) is not invalid because it requires of candidates an oath of fealty to their party which differs from the oath required by this section, since this section applies only to persons about to enter office. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 445).

[ASSEMBLY JOINT AND CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, RELATIVE TO AMENDING SECTION TWO OF ARTICLE FIFTEEN OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEVADA PERTAINING TO THE OFFICIAL OATH.]

Approved March 18, 1911.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That section two of article fifteen of the constitution of the State of Nevada be amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 2. Members of the Legislature, and all officers, executive, judicial and ministerial, shall, before they enter upon the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe to the following oath:

I,, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, protect and defend the constitution and government of the United States, and the constitution and government of the State of Nevada, against all enemies, whether domestic or foreign, and that I will bear true faith, allegiance and loyalty to the same, any ordinance, resolution or law of any state notwithstanding, and that I will well and faithfully perform all the duties of the office of, on which I am about to enter; (if an oath) so help me God; (if an affirmation) under the pains and penalties of perjury.]

[Proposed and passed at the Twenty-fifth session of the Legislature. Stats. 1911, p. 458].

Who eligible to office.

371. SEC. 3. No person shall be eligible to any office, who is not a qualified elector under this Constitution. No person who, while a citizen of this State, has, since the adoption of this Constitution, fought a duel with a deadly weapon, sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with a deadly weapon, either within or beyond the boundaries of this State, or who has acted as second, or knowingly conveyed a challenge, or aided or assisted in any manner in fighting a duel, shall be allowed to hold any office of honor, profit or trust, or enjoy the right of suffrage under this Constitution. The Legislature shall provide by law for giving force and effect to the foregoing provisions of this section; provided, that females over the age of twenty-one years, who have resided in this State one year, and in the county or district six months next preceding any election to fill either of said offices, shall be eligible to the offices of Superintendent of Public Schools and School Trustee.

[As amended. Proposed and passed at the Thirteenth Session of the Legislature, March 3, 1887, Statutes of 1887, page 162; agreed to and passed at the Fourteenth Session of the Legislature, January 17, 1889, Statutes of 1889, page 151, and approved and ratified by the people at a special election held February 11, 1889.]

Resolved by the Assembly and the Senate, conjointly, That section three, article fifteen, of the Constitution of the State of Nevada be amended so as to read as follows:

No person who, while a citizen of this State, has, since the adoption of this Constitution, fought a duel with a deadly weapon, sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with a deadly weapon, either within or beyond the boundaries of this State, or who has acted as second, or knowingly conveyed a challenge or aided or assisted in any manner in fighting a duel, shall be allowed to hold any office of honor, profit or trust, or enjoy the right of suffrage under this Constitution. Perpetuities.

T. C. C. pp. 406, 502.

Where it was claimed that a person assuming to act as probate judge of Carson County, Utah Territory, had granted a perpetuity of franchise in a toll-bridge in Nevada Territory: Held, that even if such claim of monstrous power were admitted, yet the pretended Salaries may be increased or diminished.

377. SEC: 9. The Legislature may, at any time, provide by law for increasing or diminishing the salaries or compensation of any of the Officers, whose salaries or compensation is fixed in this Constitution; Provided, no such change of Salary or Compensation shall apply to any Officer during the term for which he may have been elected.

T. C. C. p. 284.

The law making the lieutenant-governor of the State of Nevada ex officio warden of the state prison, and allowing him a salary for such services, does not conflict with this section. The lieutenant-governor in office at the time of the passage of the law may, therefore, draw the salary allowed to him as warden. Crosman v. Nightingill, 1 Nev. 325, 326.

In the payment of a debt, legal tender notes are in contemplation of law equal to coin; an act of the legislature, therefore, making the salary of a state officer payable in legal tender notes after it had previously made it payable in coin, is not rendered unconstitutional by this section. This provision only prohibits the legislature from increasing or decreasing the number of dollars in lawful money at which the salary of an officer is fixed, at the time of his election. State ex rel. Beatty v. Rhodes, 3 Nev. 240, 249, 250.

Cited, State ex rel. Gallup v. Hallock, 19 Nev. 373 (12 P. 488).

Petitioner's term of office as secretary of state and ex officio clerk of the supreme court began January, 1895, hence the act of 1891 (Stats. 1891, p. 104), fixing the salary of the secretary of state, the act of 1883 (Stats. 1883, p. 78), fixing the compensation allowed the clerk of the supreme court as reporter of decisions, and the act of 1893 (Stats. 1893, p. 32), making the secretary of state ex officio clerk of the supreme court, were all passed prior to the term for which he was elected. Therefore, this section is not applicable to such state of facts. State ex rel. Howell v. La Grave, 23 Nev. 373, 382, 383 (48 P. 674).

Tenure of office limited.

T. C. C. pp. 408, 500.

Section 2 of the act of 1885 (Stats. 1885, p. 111) providing for the election and term of office of school trustees for five years is in conflict with this section, and is void.

The unconstitutional provision is so inseparably connected with the other provisions as to render all of the provisions of the act, in relation to the election of school trustees, void. State ex rel. Davenport v. Harris, 19 Nev. 222, 224 (S P. 462).

Held, under this section, that where the term of office of the chief of police is not specified by law or city charter, an incumbent may be removed at will without his resignation, and the acceptance by the mayor and council of an incumbent's resignation constitutes a removal, though the resignation was executed many months before for a special purpose, and had no force as such, and was not to be presented. *Leeper v. taken under the direction of the Legislature, if deemed necessary, in A. D. Eighteen hundred and Sixty five, A. D. Eighteen hundred and Sixty seven, A. D. Eighteen hundred and Seventy five, and every ten Years thereafter; and these enumerations, together with the census that may be taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States in A. D. The constitution of this state contains no restrictive or mandatory provisions as to the time when, or how often, the legislature may make the representative apportionment. The legislature, therefore, may make such apportionments as often as it so wills. State ex rel. Winnie v. Stoddard, 25 Nev. 456 (51 L. R. A. 229, 62 P. 237).

ARTICLE 16.

AMENDMENTS

Constitution amended, how.

383. SECTION 1. Any amendment or amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in the Senate or Assembly; and if the same shall be agreed to by a Majority of all the members elected to each of the two houses, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their respective journals, with the Yeas and Nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature then next to be chosen, and shall be published for three months next preceding the time of making such choice. And if in the Legislature next chosen as aforesaid, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by a majority of all the members elected to each house, then it shall be the duty of the Legislature to submit such proposed amendment or amendments to the people, in such manner and at such time as the Legislature shall prescribe, and if the people shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments by a majority of the electors qualified to vote for members of the Legislature voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the Constitution.

T. C. C. pp. 393, 496.

An amendment was proposed to the constitution of Nevada, authorizing the investment of moneys pledged to educational purposes in the bonds of any of the states of the United States, but no entry of the same was made upon the journal of either house of the legislature: Held, that this omission was fatal to the adoption of the amendment. State ex rel. Stevenson v. Tufly, 19 Nev. 391 (3 A. S. 895, 12 P. 835).

Statutes 1887, p. 122, provides for the publication of proposed amendments in one daily newspaper of general circulation, for ninety days next preceding the general election at which the amendments are to be voted on, and that as many copies of such paper shall be sent, without extra compensation, to the clerk of each county as there are registered voters therein, and by the clerk mailed to the voters. Held, that this act is a reasonable requirement, sanctioned by the constitution, and that amendments voted on without compliance with such requirements are inoperative. (Hawley, J., dissenting.) State ex rel. Galusha v. Davies, 20 Nev. 220, 221, 224-226 (19 P. 894).

The words "voting thereon" do not refer to the words "members of the legislature" in this section as their antecedent, and consequently do not limit the right to vote at a special election upon the question of the ratification of proposed amendments to electors who were qualified to vote for members of the legislature who voted upon the proposed amendments. All electors of the state are entitled to vote upon the submission of a proposed amendment. State ex rel. Boyle v. State Board of Examiners, 21 Nev. 67, 69 (9 L. R. A. 385, 24 P. 614).

This section is complied with by the publication of the proposed amendments in the statutes issued and distributed sixteen to eighteen months prior to the election, especially where this mode of publication has been sanctioned by the legislature and followed. State ex rel. Torreyson v. Grey, 21 Nev. 378, 380, 383, 384 (19 L. R. A. 134, 32 P. 190).

Revision of constitution—Convention—Majority of electors.

384. SEC: 2. If at any time the Legislature by a vote of two thirds of the Members elected to each house, shall determine that it is necessary to cause a revision of this entire Constitution, they shall recommend to the electors at the next election for Members of the Legislature, to Vote for or against a convention, and if it shall appear that a majority of the electors voting at such Election, shall have voted in favor of calling a Convention, the Legislature shall, at its next session provide by law for calling a Convention to be holden within six months after the passage of such law, and such Convention shall consist of a number of Members not less than that of both branches of the Legislature. In determining what is a majority of the electors voting at such election, reference shall be had to the highest number of votes cast at such election for the candidates for any Office or on any Question.

SCHEDULE

Acts of Territory made valid.

385. SECTION 1. That no inconvenience may arise by reason of a change from a Territorial to a permanent State Government, it is declared that all rights, actions, prosecutions, judgments, claims and contracts, as well of individuals, as of bodies corporate, including counties, towns and cities, shall continue as if no change had taken place; and all process which may issue under the Authority of the Territory of Nevada, previous to its admission into the Union as one of the United States, shall be as valid as if issued in the name of the State of Nevada.

T. C. C. pp. 416, 504.

The right of appeal must be governed by the laws in force at the time the appeal is taken. A case commenced in the territorial courts and appealed to the supreme court of the territory, but decided by the supreme court of the State of Nevada, cannot be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, merely because the organic act of the territory allowed it at the time the action was commenced. Such an inchoate right of appeal is not a vested right. Hamilton v. Kneeland, 1 Nev. 67.

the State of Nevada, and may be sued for and recovered in the same manner and to the same extent by the State of Nevada, as the same could have been by the Territory of Nevada. All criminal prosecutions and penal Actions, which may have arisen, or which may arise before the change from a Territorial to a State Government, and which shall then be pending, shall be prosecuted to judgment and execution in the name of the State. All Offences committed against the laws of the Territory of Nevada, before the change from a Territorial to a State Government, and which shall not be prosecuted before such change, may be prosecuted in the name and by the Authority of the State of Nevada, with like effect as though such change had not taken place; And all penalties incurred, shall remain the same as if this Constitution had not been adopted; All actions at law, and suits in Equity, and other legal proceedings, which may be pending in any of the Courts of the Territory of Nevada at the time of the change from a Territorial to a State Government may be continued and transferred to, and determined by, any court of the State, which shall have jurisdiction of the subject matter thereof. All actions at law and suits in Equity, and all other legal proceedings, which may be pending in any of the Courts of the Territory of Nevada at the time of the change from a Territorial to a State Government, shall be continued and transferred to, and may be prosecuted to judgment and execution in any Court of the State which shall have jurisdiction of the Subject matter thereof; and all books, papers and records, relating to the same shall be transferred in like manner to such Court.

Cited, Vesey v. Hermann, 1 Nev. 37, 38, 39. County officers, as used in this section, means officers who may be exercising the functions of their office when the constitution takes effect. It does not include officers elect who may not have qualified or entered on the performance of the duties of their office before the constitution took effect.

When the law provides an officer shall be elected every two years, but does not provide when the incumbent shall go out or the newly elected come into office, the newly elected may qualify and enter on the duties of his office as soon as he receives his certificate of election. The former incumbent will hold until he does qualify. Cordell v. Frizell, 1 Nev. 130, 132.

The board of education of Storey County, prior to the 20th of March, 1865, were "county officers," within the meaning of that phrase as used in this section.

There are certain county offices designated in the constitution. These offices cannot be abolished without a constitutional change, nor the incumbents removed prior to January, 1867.

Other county offices can be created or abolished at the will of the legislature. If the office is abolished does not the officer cease to exist as such?

The legislature is required to make a uniform system of county government and to provide for a uniform system of public schools. In carrying out these provisions, they may abolish any county offices other than those specially created by the constitution.

This section is subject to this modification. It provides for continuance in office of all county officers whose office shall not be legally abolished before the first Monday of January, 1867.

Tilford held the office of superintendent of public instruction ex officio as president of the board of education. The board of which he was president is abolished. His presidency ceases with the existence of the board. His office of superintendent, being a mere ex officio attachment to the other office, expires with his presidency.

Taylor and others claiming to be trustees of school districts, having been appointed by a board having no legal existence, are not officers known to the law. State v. Tilford, 1 Nev. 240, 241, 244, 245.

Support of county, town, city and village officers.

405. SEC: 21. Each County, Town, City, and Incorporated Village shall make provision for the support of its own Officers, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by law.

For the state to pay any part of the expenses of a county government not connected with the state's tax, or any business of the state, would be in contravention of this section. State ex rel. Lyon County v. La Grave, 24 Nev. 147 (50 P. 796).

Vacancy in office filled—Governor shall appoint.

406. SEC: 22. In case the Office of any Justice of the Supreme Court, District Judge or other State Officer shall become vacant before the expiration of the regular term for which he was elected, the vacancy may be filled by appointment by the Governor until it shall be supplied at the next general election, when it shall be filled by election for the residue of the unexpired term.

This section prohibits taxation beyond one and one-quarter per cent for state purposes during the first three years of its existence. State ex rel. Nightingill v. Board of Commissioners of Storey County, 1 Nev. 264, 266, 267, 270, 271.

Roop and Washoe Counties.

409. SEC: 25. The County of Roop shall be attached to the County of Washoe for Judicial, Legislative, Revenue and County purposes, until otherwise provided by law.

Under the statutes of this state an attachment must be served by the sheriff of the county where the property is situated, except in cases where one county is attached to another for judicial purposes.

A county is not "attached" to another county for judicial purposes simply because it and another county, or counties, form one judicial district. To be so "attached" both counties must, under the law, be treated as one county in all matters pertaining to the courts. Sadler v. Tatti, 17 Nev. 429, 434 (30 P. 1082).

Provision for publication of debates, etc.

410. SEC: 26. J. Neely Johnson President of this Convention, shall contract for, and A. J. Marsh, Official reporter of this convention under the direction of the President, shall supervise the publication of such debates and proceedings. Provision shall be made by law, at such first session of the Legislature for the Compensation of the Official reporter of this Convention, and he shall be paid in coin or its equivalent. [SENATE SUBSTITUTE FOR ASSEMBLY JOINT AND CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 7, PROPOSING TO AMEND ARTICLE NINETEEN OF THE CONSTITUTION BY ADDING TO SAID ARTICLE SECTION THREE, RELATING TO THE INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM AND THE POWERS THEREBY CONFERRED UPON THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS.]

Approved March 22, 1909.

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That section three be added to article nineteen of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, said section so added to read as follows:

SECTION 3. The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and the power to propose amendments to the Constitution, and to enact or reject the same at the polls, independent of the Legislature, and also reserve the power at their option to approve or reject at the polls, in the manner herein provided, any Act, item, section or part of any Act or measure passed by the Legislature, and section one of article four of the Constitution shall hereafter be construed accordingly. The first power reserved by the people is the initiative, and not more than ten per cent (10%) of the qualified electors shall be required to propose any measure by initiative petition, and every such petition shall include the full text of the measure so proposed. Initiative petitions, for all but municipal legislation, shall be filed with the Secretary of State not less than thirty (30) days before any regular session of the Legislature; the Secretary of State shall transmit the same to the Legislature as soon as it convenes and organizes. Such initiative measures shall take precedence over all measures of the Legislature except appropriation bills, and shall be enacted or rejected by the Legislature, without change or amendment, within forty (40) days. If any such initiative measure so proposed by petition as aforesaid, shall be enacted by the Legislature and approved by the Governor in the same manner as other laws are enacted, same shall become a law, but shall be subject to referendum petition as provided in sections one and two of this article. If said initiative measure be rejected by the Legislature or if no action be taken thereon within said forty (40) days, the Secretary of State shall submit the same to the qualified electors for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election; and if a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon shall approve of such measure it shall become a law and take effect from the date of the official declaration of the vote; an initiative measure so approved by the qualified electors shall not be annulled, set aside, or repealed by the Legislature within three (3) years from the date said Act takes effect. In case the Legislature shall reject such initiative measure, said body may, with the approval of the Governor, propose a different measure on the same subject, in which event both measures shall be submitted by the Secretary of State to the qualified electors for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election. The enacting clause of all bills proposed by the initiative shall be "The People of the State of Nevada enact as follows." The whole number of votes cast for Justice of the Supreme Court at the general election last preceding the filing of any initiative petition shall be the basis on which the number of qualified electors required to sign such petition shall be counted.

The second power reserved by the people is the referendum, which shall be exercised in the manner provided in sections one and two of this article. The initiative and referendum powers in this article provided for are further reserved to the qualified electors of each county and municipality as to all local, special and municipal legislation of every character in or for said respective counties or municipalities. The Legislature may provide by law for the manner of exercising the initiative and referendum powers as to county and municipal legislation, but shall not require a petition of more than ten per cent (10%) of the qualified electors to order the referendum, not [nor] more than fifteen per cent (15%) to propose any municipal measure by initiative.

If the conflicting measures submitted to the people at the next ensuing general election shall both be approved by a majority of the votes severally cast for and against each of said measures, the measure receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall thereupon become a law as to all conflicting provisions.

The provisions of this section shall be self-executing, but legislation may be especially enacted to facilitate its operation.]

GENERAL RULES OF CONSTRUCTION

In the examination of constitutional questions, the debates of the constitutional convention may be consulted, as throwing light upon the subject; but they are not authoritative nor of any binding effect, it having been the text only that was adopted. State ex rel. Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 400.

As an aid to determine the meaning of a provision of the constitution intended by its framers, the proceedings and debates in the constitutional convention may be considered. Ex Parte Shelor, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 290, 293, 294).

The constitutionality of a statute, under which any right is claimed in an action, may always be inquired into. Meagher v. County of Storey, 5 Nev. 245.

The power of determining whether a given statute is repugnant to the principles of the constitution with which it is alleged to conflict belongs to the judiciary, and their decision is conclusive; but in all cases of doubt every possible presumption and intentment will be made in favor of the constitutionality of the act of the legislature. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 111.

A statute will be sustained by the courts if there is any reasonable doubt of its unconstitutionality. State ex rel. Cutting v. Westfield, 24 Nev. 29 (49 P. 534); Quillici v. Strosmider, 33 Nev. — (115 P. 178); State ex rel. Dunn v. County Commissioners, 21 Nev. 235, 240.

The supreme court will not pass upon a constitutional question unless it is clearly involved, and a decision thereon is necessary to a determination of the case. State ex rel. Winnie v. Board of County Commissioners of

A statute can only be declared unconstitutional where specific restrictions upon the power of the legislature can be pointed out, and the case shown to come within them, and not upon any general theory that the statute is unjust, or oppressive, or impolitic, or conflicts with a spirit supposed to pervade the constitution, but not expressed in words. Sawyer v. Dooley, 21 Nev. 390 (32 P. 437).

In construing the constitution the thing to be sought is the thought expressed. State ex rel. Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 400.

Words used in a constitution, unless qualified so as to alter their ordinary and usual meaning, must be received in such meaning. State ex rel. Clarke v. Irwin, 5 Nev. 111.

The constitution is to be construed in the ordinary sense and usage of language, literally, unless some apparent absurdity, or obvious and manifest violation of the sense of the instrument, or unmistakable intent of its framers, forbids. State ex rel. Lewis v. Doron, 5 Nev. 399.

When language is used in the constitution capable of two interpretations, and there is nothing in the general context of the instrument to determine which interpretation best conforms to the intention of the convention, then resort may be had to a strict grammatical construction of the language to determine its effect. Vesey v. Hermann, 1 Nev. 36.

It is the duty of the courts in construing the constitution to ascertain the intention of those who framed the instrument and the people who ratified it. The legislature has the power to enact any law not prohibited by the constitution; but in seeking for limitations and restrictions courts must not confine themselves to express prohibitions. Negative words are not indispensable in the creation of limitations to legislative power. If the constitution prescribes one method of filling an office, the legislature cannot adopt another. State ex rel. Perry v. Arrington, 18 Nev. 412 (4 P. 735).

Whenever the interpretation of a statute or a constitution in a certain way will result in manifest injustice, courts will always scrutinize the statute or constitution closely to see if it will not admit of some other interpretation. State v. Kruttschnitt, 4 Nev. 178, 200, 202, 203.

A law passed by the legislature, constitutional in part, but unconstitutional as to some of its provisions, will be sustained as far as it is constitutional, unless the whole scope and object of the law is defeated by rejecting the objectionable features. State ex rel. Keith v. Westerfield, 23 Nev. 468 (49 P. 119).

If a law be passed by the legislature, constitutional in part but unconstitutional as to some of its provisions, that which is constitutional will be sustained unless the whole scope and subject of the law is defeated by rejecting the objectionable features.

In this case, rejecting that part of the act which is unconstitutional, there still remains a complete revenue law. State v. Eastabrook, 3 Nev. 173, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181.

When part of a statute is unconstitutional it will not authorize the court to declare the remainder void unless all the provisions are connected in subject-matter dependent on each other. State ex rel. Rosenstock v. Swift, 11 Nev. 128.

Where a portion of a statute is complete in itself and capable of being executed wholly independent of that which may be rejected, and there is no reason to suppose that the legislature would not have passed the act except as a whole: Held, that the courts will affirm the validity of such independent part, without considering whether the other is or is not unconstitutional. State ex rel. Dunn v. Board of Commissioners of Humboldt County, 21 Nev. 235 (29 P. 974).

The fact that a provision in an act to disincorporate a town, fixing the boundaries thereof, may be unconstitutional, as special legislation, because varying from the general act providing that the county commissioners shall fix the boundaries of disincorporated towns, does not invalidate so much of the act as disincorporates the town. State ex rel. Osburn v. Beck, 25 Nev. 69 (56 P. 1008).

In constitutional interpretation, contemporaneous legislation is always considered of force. State ex rel. Ash v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 17.

Where a constitutional provision has been borrowed from another state after its meaning has been judicially determined by such state, the construction so put upon it is deemed adopted with the language. Hess v. Pegg, 7 Nev. 23, 27, 30.

When the provisions of an unconstitutional act attempts to repeal a former statute, held that the repealing clause falls with the act. State ex rel. Keyser v. Hallock, 14 Nev. 202 (33 A. R. 559).

An act of the legislature which was unconstitutional at the time of its enactment will not obtain validity by a subsequent change in the constitution authorizing such legislation. Comstock M. & M. Co. v. Allen, 21 Nev. 325, 330 (31 P. 434).

Courts will not consider an objection to the constitutionality of an act of the legislature by a party whose rights it does not affect, and who has, therefore, no interest in defeating it. State ex rel. Osburn v. Beck, 25 Nev. 69 (56 P. 1008).

Only one whose rights are affected can assert the unconstitutionality of the direct primary law of March 23, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 198), on the ground that it prevents one from being a candidate who has been defeated at a primary election. Riter v. Douglass, 32 Nev. 400 (109 P. 444, 445).

The legislature has complete control of the entire subject of counties and county-seats, except where prohibited by constitutional provisions. Quillici v. Strosnider, 33 Nev. — (115 P. 178).

POLITICAL DATA

In Relation to the Territorial Government, Constitution, and the State Government of Nevada

428. The first public meeting, in what is now Nevada, of which any record was kept, was held at "Mormon Station" (now Genoa), November 12, 1851. The object of this meeting was to organize a squatter government, and to adopt local rules for the government of the settlers and their property. The meeting agreed upon a petition to the National Congress for a Territorial Government. A second meeting was held November 19th, same year, and the next day a local form of government was adopted.

Carson County, Utah, was organized by the following act:

An Act defining the boundaries of Carson County, and providing for the organization thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah: That all that portion of the country bounded north by Desert County, east by the parallel of longitude 118°, south by the boundary line of this Territory, and west by California, is hereby included within the limits of Carson County, and until organized is attached to Millard County for election, revenue and judicial purposes.

SEC. 2. The Governor is hereby authorized to appoint a Probate Judge for said county, when he shall deem it expedient, and said Probate Judge, when appointed, shall proceed to organize said county, by dividing the county into precincts and causing an election to be held according to law, to fill the various county and precinct offices, and locate the county-seat thereof.

W. RICHARDS,
President of the Council.

J. M. GRANT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Approved January 17, 1854.

BRIGHAM YOUNG,
Governor of Utah Territory.

TERRITORY OF UTAH—SECRETARY'S OFFICE.

I, Elijah Sells, Secretary of Utah Territory, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true copy.

Witness my hand and the Great Seal of the Territory this 22d day of October, 1892.

[SEAL]

ELIJAH SELLS,
Secretary of Utah Territory.

This embraced all of Washoe, Douglas, Lyon, Ormsby and Storey Counties, the greater part of Esmeralda and Churchill Counties, and a portion of Humboldt.

The first attempt at representation at Washington was made by electing James W. Crane as a delegate to represent the claims of the settlers to a Territorial Government. Crane having died, John J. Musser was elected his successor November 12, 1859.

On June 6, 1859, a mass meeting of delegates from the several districts was held, at which the 14th day of July, 1859, was fixed for holding an election for the purpose of electing delegates to a constitutional convention. Delegates so elected met at Genoa on the 18th day of the same month, and in a ten days' session adopted a declaration of rights and a constitution.

This constitution was submitted to the people September 1, 1859. The constitution was adopted, and Isaac Roop elected Governor, with a Legislature and other state officers. Roop was the only officer who attempted to qualify.

The Legislature met at Genoa on the 15th day of December, 1859, and adjourned to meet in July, 1860. They never met again.

John Cradlebaugh, one of the United States District Judges for Utah Territory, arrived at Genoa in the summer of 1859, and impaneled the first grand jury that ever met in what is now the State of Nevada.

On the 2d day of November, 1863, the members elected to form a convention were called to order by Orion Clemens, Territorial Secretary, and the body was organized by the election of John W. North as President, and Wm. M. Gillespie as Secretary. This convention was in session thirty-two days, and adjourned on the 11th day of December, 1863. On the 19th day of January, 1864, the Constitution framed by this convention was submitted to a vote and at the same time the following ticket was voted for state officers:

For Representative in Congress—John B. Winters of Lyon County.

For Governor—Miles N. Mitchell of Storey County.

For Lieutenant-Governor—M. S. Thompson of Humboldt County.

For Attorney-General—H. C. Worthington of Lander County.

For Justices Supreme Court—J. B. Harmon of Storey County; M. D. Larrowe of Lander County; R. S. Mesick of Esmeralda County.

For Clerk Supreme Court—Alfred Helm of Ormsby County.

For State Treasurer—W. B. Hickok of Lyon County.
 For State Controller—Edwin A. Sherman of Esmeralda County.
 For Superintendent of Public Instruction—A. F. White of Ormsby County.
 For State Printer—G. W. Bloor of Storey County.

The Constitution was overwhelmingly defeated, while the officers were elected, but found their honors empty because there were no offices to fill.

The question of statehood was still agitated. A session of the Territorial Legislature was held in January and February, 1864, but no provision was made for another convention. On the 21st of March, 1864, the Congress of the United States passed an Act, the title of which reads: "An Act to enable the people of the Territory of Nevada to form a Constitution and State Government, and for the admission of such State into the Union on an equal footing with the original States."¹

Under the Congressional Act delegates to a convention were elected, and on the 4th of July, 1864, met at Carson City, Nevada. The Constitution of 1863 was taken as a basis, and, after a session of twenty-three days, the present Constitution was formulated, differing in but few material features from that of 1863.

The personnel of this convention was as follows:

An Act of the Legislature of 1861² provided for a territorial seal, designed as follows:

Mountains with a stream of water coursing down their sides and falling on the overshot wheel of a quartz mill at the base. A miner leaning on his pick and upholding a United States flag with a motto expressing the two ideas of loyalty to the Union and the wealth to sustain it. Volens et Potens.

Several designs were made and submitted for a state seal, none of which proved acceptable. The Legislature in 1866 passed an Act³ providing for "a Seal of State for the State of Nevada." It is described in the Act as follows: "The Great Seal of the State of Nevada," the design of which shall be as follows, to wit: In the foreground two large mountains, at the base of which, on the right, there shall be located a quartz mill, and on the left a tunnel penetrating the silver leads of the mountain, with a miner running out a car-load of ore and a team loaded with ore for the mill. Immediately in the foreground there shall be emblems indicative of the agricultural resources of the State; a plow, a sheaf and a sickle; in the middle ground a train of railroad cars passing a mountain gorge; also a telegraph line extending along the line of the railroad. In the extreme background a range of snow-clad mountains, with the rising sun in the east; thirty-six stars to encircle the whole group in an outer circle, the words "The Great Seal of the State of Nevada," to be engraven with these words for the motto of the State: "All for Our Country."

"A RETROSPECT AND A PROSPECT"

[Commencement address delivered at the University of Nevada May 17, 1911, upon the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the State University at Reno.]

429. The struggle with the elements for a home and fortune makes strong characters, and they were strong characters who made a State from the Territory of Nevada. There is nothing else so alluring to men of energy, daring and perseverance as the quest of the precious metals. It was the gold in the gulches and ravines of California which in '49 and the '50's caused stalwart Americans all over the land to leave their offices, their workshops, their farms, their colleges, and turn their faces westward and pursue the long, tiresome and perilous journey across the plains or by the way of the Isthmus or around The Horn to the Golden Gate. It was the silver in the veins and ledges of Nevada, a decade later, that turned the tide of these modern Argonauts back across the Sierras, to a part of what was then known as the Great American Desert. The rush of population to Western Utah, caused by the discovery of the Comstock Lode and other great mines with the accompanying production of precious metals, then doubly valuable to the Nation, made a new territorial government a necessity and the Territory of Nevada was created. President Lincoln appointed James W. Nye Territorial Governor and Orion Clemens, brother of Mark Twain, Territorial Secretary. The appointment of Governor Nye was an exhibition of the wisdom and foresight of Mr. Lincoln. We of this day, I fear, do not fully appreciate the commanding figure of Governor Nye in the history of this State. Nye was one of the most gifted and persuasive orators in the United States of his time. He was a man of varied experience, a lawyer by profession from the State of New York, who had served upon the Bench of his native State and also as the first president of the Metropolitan Board of Police of New York City. With William H. Seward, he had traveled on a stumping tour of the Western States in the first Lincoln campaign. He was destined to play no small part in the affairs of the Pacific Coast. With Thomas Starr King, the orator-clergyman of San Francisco, he is mentioned as doing valiant service in keeping the Pacific Coast States and Territories steadfast for the Union cause during the Great Rebellion. The political necessities growing out of the Civil War caused President Lincoln to deem the admission of the Territory of Nevada into the Union as a State a matter of the very greatest importance. His administration had determined that the Constitution should be amended so that slavery should be abolished.

"This," says Mr. Charles A. Dana, in his book—Recollections of the Civil War—"was not only a change in our national policy; it was also a most important military measure. It was intended, not merely as a means of abolishing slavery forever, but as a means of affecting the judgment and the feelings of those in rebellion. It was believed that such an amendment to the Constitution would be equivalent to new armies in the field; that it would be worth at least a million men; that it would be an intellectual army that would tend to paralyze the enemy and break the continuity of his ideas." To thus amend the Constitution required that the proposed amendment be ratified by three-fourths of the States. When that question came to be considered, the administration found that, of the States it could rely upon, it was one short of the necessary number. The genius of President Lincoln solved the problem. He would create a State out of the Territory of Nevada for the purpose, and rely on the patriotism of her people to ratify the amendment. In March, 1864, the question of allowing Nevada to form a State Government came up in the House of Representatives. There was strong opposition to it, but Mr. Lincoln threw into the breach the potent force of the administration and the measure was carried. Mr. Dana, then Assistant Secretary of War and one of the President's confidential advisers, quotes Mr. Lincoln as saying, shortly before the vote was taken: "Here is the alternative—that we carry this vote, or be compelled to raise another million, and I don't know just how many more, men, and fight, no one knows how long."

When great political questions are in the balance, sometimes events follow each other with remarkable rapidity. On the 21st day of March, 1864, the enabling Act for Nevada¹ passed Congress and was approved by President Lincoln. The Act provided for an election to be held on the first Monday of June following, for delegates to a constitutional convention to be held just one month later. The convention met on the 4th day of July, 1864, adopted a proposed constitution, which by the terms of the enabling Act, was voted upon and approved by the people on the first Wednesday of the following September. As soon as the vote could be canvassed, a copy of the Constitution was transmitted to the President by telegraph, at a cost of more than thirty-four hundred dollars for the one dispatch. (We may observe here in passing that there has been material progress in the reduction of telegraph tariffs since that time.) By the terms of the enabling Act, the approval of the Constitution was placed exclusively with the President. On the 31st day of October, President Lincoln issued his proclamation declaring Nevada admitted to the Union² on an equal footing with the original States. Eight days later an election for state and county officers was held and the newly elected officials assumed their duties on the first Monday in December. On the 1st day of February, 1865, Congress submitted to the several States the Thirteenth Amendment, and two weeks later³ it was ratified by the Legislature of the new State of Nevada. Well may Nevada be called the Battle-Born State! * * *

His affidavit of such admission, or his license showing the same, together with satisfactory evidence of good moral character, shall be deemed sufficient to entitle him to admission; but the court may examine the applicant as to his or her qualifications. As amended, Stats. 1907, 148.

505. Roll kept.

SEC. 8. Each clerk shall keep a roll of attorneys and counselors of the court of which he is clerk, which shall be a record of the court.

This section limits the right of appearing as an attorney before courts-martial to those who have obtained the required license. State ex rel. Huffaker v. Crosby, 24 Nev. 115, 121 (77 A. S. 786, 50 P. 127).

SEC. 10. An attorney and counselor shall have authority: First—To bind his client in any of the steps of an action or proceeding, by his agreement filed with the clerk, or entered upon the minutes of the court, and not otherwise. Second—To receive money claimed by his client in an action or proceeding during the pendency thereof, or within one year after judgment and upon the payment thereof, and not otherwise, to discharge the claim or acknowledge satisfaction in the judgment.

This is not an enlargement of the attorney's authority, but merely a restriction as to the method of exercising it. State v. Cal. M. Co., 15 Nev. 243.

Evidence of oral agreement by attorney not to take default is inadmissible on application to set aside default.

Haley v. Eureka County Bank, 20 Nev. 410 (22 P. 1098).

It is not sufficient presentation of a claim against an estate to hand it to the "attorney for the estate," at least not without showing that it actually reached the administratrix within the proper time for the presentation of claims. Douglass v. Folsom, 21 Nev. 441, 447 (33 P. 660).

See State ex rel. Huffaker v. Crosby, 24 Nev. 115, 121 (77 A. S. 786, 50 P. 127), under section 10 of this act.

509. Notice of change.

SEC. 12. When an attorney is changed, as provided in the last section, written notice of the change and of the substitution of a new attorney, or of the appearance of the party in person, shall be given to the adverse party; until then he shall be bound to recognize the former attorney.

See Douglass v. Folsom, 21 Nev. 441, 447 (33 P. 660), under section 11 of this act.

510. Death or removal.

SEC. 13. When an attorney dies, or is removed or suspended, or ceases to act as such, a party to an action for whom he was acting as attorney shall, before any further proceedings be had against him, be required by the adverse party, by written notice, to appoint another attorney, or to appear in person.

In all other cases to disbar an attorney there must be a verified accusation in writing presented to the court, unless the facts are within its own knowledge, and service upon, and appearance by, the accused. In re Granger, 15 Nev. 57.

511. Suspension of attorney.

SEC. 14. An attorney and counselor may be removed or suspended by the supreme court, and by no other court in the territory, for either of the following causes arising after his admission to practice: First—Upon his being convicted of felony or misdemeanor, involving moral turpitude, in either of which cases the record of his conviction shall be conclusive evidence. This section contemplates a conviction in a court of record; that the docket of a justice of the peace is not conclusive. In the Matter of Granger, 15 Nev. 56, 57.

Certain statements concerning a decision of the supreme court held to constitute a contempt of that court, which was not purged by defendant's disavowal of any intent to commit a contempt and by his apology. In re Chartz, 29 Nev. 110—(5 L. R., A. (N. S.) 916, 124 A. S. 915, 85 P. 352).

A court-martial, or any other court, other than the supreme court, has no power to suspend a licensed attorney in the exercise of his rights for any cause and for any length of time. State ex rel. Huffaker v. Crosby, 24 Nev. 115, 122 (77 A. S. 786, 50 P. 127).

It is the duty of an attorney to observe the rules of courteous demeanor in open court, and to abstain out of court from all insulting language and offensive conduct towards the judges personally for their judicial acts.

The supreme court has control over attorneys, and may suspend or disbar them for good cause shown.

SEC. 19. After receiving the accusation, the court shall, if in its opinion the case require it, make an order requiring the accused to appear and answer the accusation, at a specified time, in the same or subsequent term, and shall cause a copy of the order, and of the accusation, to be served upon the accused within a prescribed time before the day appointed in the order.

517. Appearance of accused.

CHAPTER III BANKRUPTS

545. Acts of bankruptcy.

SEC. 3. (a) Acts of bankruptcy by a person shall consist of his having (1) conveyed, transferred, concealed, or removed, or permitted to be concealed or removed, any part of his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or any of them; or (2) transferred, while insolvent, any portion of his property to one or more of his creditors with intent to prefer such creditors over his other creditors; or (3) suffered or permitted, while insolvent, any creditor to obtain a preference through legal proceedings, and not having at least five days before a sale or final disposition of any property affected by such preference vacated or discharged such preference; or (4) made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors; or being insolvent applied for a receiver or trustee for his property or because of insolvency a receiver or trustee has been put in charge of his property under the laws of a state, of a territory, or of the United States; or (5) admitted in writing his inability to pay his debts and his willingness to be adjudged a bankrupt on that ground.

(b) A petition may be filed against a person who is insolvent and who has committed an act of bankruptcy within four months after the commission of such act. Such time shall not expire until four months after (1) the date of the recording or registering of the transfer or assignment when the act consists in having made a transfer of any of his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors or for the purpose of giving a preference as hereinbefore provided, or a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, if by law such recording or registering is required or permitted, or, if it is not, from the date when the beneficiary takes notorious, exclusive, or continuous possession of the property unless the petitioning creditors have received actual notice of such transfer or assignment.

(c) It shall be a complete defense to any proceedings in bankruptcy instituted under the first subdivision of this section to allege and prove that the party proceeded against was not insolvent as defined in this act at the time of the filing the petition against him, and if solvency at such date is proved by the alleged bankrupt the proceedings shall be dismissed, and under said subdivision one the burden of proving solvency shall be on the alleged bankrupt.

(d) Whenever a person against whom a petition has been filed as hereinbefore provided under the second and third subdivisions of this section takes issue with and denies the allegation of his insolvency, it shall be his duty to appear in court on the hearing, with his books, papers, and accounts, and submit to an examination, and give testimony as to all matters tending to establish solvency or insolvency, and in case of his failure to so attend and submit to examination the burden of proving his solvency shall rest upon him.

(e) Whenever a petition is filed by any person for the purpose of having another adjudged a bankrupt, and an application is made to take charge of and hold the property of the alleged bankrupt, or any part of the same, prior to the adjudication and pending a hearing on the petition, the petitioner or applicant shall file in the same court a bond with at least two good and sufficient sureties who shall reside within the jurisdiction of said court, to be approved by the court or a judge thereof, in such sum as the court shall direct, conditioned for the payment, in case such petition is dismissed, to the respondent, his or her personal representatives, all costs, expenses, and damages occasioned by such seizure, taking, and detention of the property of the alleged bankrupt.

If such petition be dismissed by the court or withdrawn by the petitioner, the respondent or respondents shall be allowed all costs, counsel fees, expenses, and damages occasioned by such seizure, taking or detention of such property. Counsel fees, costs, expenses, and damages shall be fixed and allowed by the court, and paid by the obligors in such bond. As amended, Act of February 5, 1903.

546. Who may become bankrupts.

SEC. 4. (a) Any person except a municipal, railroad, insurance, or banking corporation, shall be entitled to the benefits of this act as a voluntary bankrupt.

The bankruptcy of a corporation shall not release its officers, directors, or stockholders, as such, from any liability under the laws of a state or territory or of the United States. As amended, Acts of February 5, 1903, and June 25, 1910.

547. Partners.

SEC. 5. (a) A partnership, during the continuation of the partnership business, or after its dissolution and before the final settlement thereof, may be adjudged a bankrupt.

(b) The creditors of the partnership shall appoint the trustee; in other respects so far as possible the estate shall be administered as herein provided for other estates.

(c) The court of bankruptcy which has jurisdiction of one of the partners may have jurisdiction of all the partners and of the administration of the partnership and individual property.

(d) The trustee shall keep separate accounts of the partnership property and of the property belonging to the individual partners.

(e) The expenses shall be paid from the partnership property and the individual property in such proportions as the court shall determine.

(f) The net proceeds of the partnership property shall be appropriated to the payment of the partnership debts, and the net proceeds of the individual estate of each partner to the payment of his individual debts. Should any surplus remain of the property of any partner after paying his individual debts, such surplus shall be added to the partnership assets and be applied to the payment of the partnership debts. Should any surplus of the partnership property remain after paying the partnership debts, such surplus shall be added to the assets of the individual partners in the proportion of their respective interests in the partnership.

(g) The court may approve the claim of the partnership estate against the individual estates and vice versa, and may marshal the assets of the partnership estate and individual estates so as to prevent preferences and secure the equitable distribution of the property of the several estates.

(h) In the event of one or more but not all of the members of a partnership being adjudged bankrupt, the partnership property shall not be administered in bankruptcy, unless by consent of the partner or partners not adjudged bankrupt; but such partner or partners not adjudged bankrupt shall settle the partnership business as expeditiously as its nature will permit, and account for the interest of the partner or partners adjudged bankrupt.

548. Exemptions of bankrupts.

SEC. 6. (a) This act shall not affect the allowance to bankrupts of the exemptions which are prescribed by the state laws in force at the time of the filing of the petition in the state wherein they have had their domicile for the six months or the greater portion thereof immediately preceding the filing of the petition.

549. Duties of bankrupts.

SEC. 7. from the estate when examined or required to attend at any place other than the city, town, or village of his residence.

550. Death or insanity of bankrupts.

SEC. 8. (a) The death or insanity of a bankrupt shall not abate the proceedings, but the same shall be conducted and conclude in the same manner, so far as possible, as though he had not died or become insane; provided, that in case of death the widow and children shall be entitled to all rights of dower and allowance fixed by the laws of the state of the bankrupt's residence.

551. Protection and detention of bankrupts.

SEC. 9. (a) A bankrupt shall be exempt from arrest upon civil process except in the following cases: (1) When issued from a court of bankruptcy for contempt or disobedience of its lawful orders; (2) when issued from a state court having jurisdiction, and served within such state, upon a debt or claim from which his discharge in bankruptcy would not be a release, and in such case he shall be exempt from such arrest when in attendance upon a court of bankruptcy or engaged in the performance of a duty imposed by this act.

(b) The judge may, at any time after the filing of a petition by or against a person, and before the expiration of one month after the qualification of the trustee, upon satisfactory proof by the affidavits of at least two persons that such bankrupt is about to leave the district in which he resides or has his principal place of business to avoid examination, and that his departure will defeat the proceedings in bankruptcy, issue a warrant to the marshal, directing him to bring such bankrupt forthwith before the court for examination. If upon hearing the evidence of the parties it shall appear to the court or a judge thereof that the allegations are true and that it is necessary, he shall order such marshal to keep such bankrupt in custody not exceeding ten days, but not imprison him, until he shall be examined and released or give bail conditioned for his appearance for examination, from time to time, not exceeding in all ten days, as required by the court, and for his obedience to all lawful orders made in reference thereto.

552. Extradition of bankrupts.

SEC. 10. (a) Whenever a warrant for the apprehension of a bankrupt shall have been issued, and he shall have been found within the jurisdiction of a court other than the one issuing a warrant, he may be extradited in the same manner in which persons under indictment are now extradited from one district within which a district court has jurisdiction to another.

553. Suits by and against bankrupts.

SEC. 11. (a) A suit which is founded upon a claim from which a discharge would be a release, and which is pending against a person at the time of the filing of a petition against him, shall be stayed until after an adjudication or the dismissal of the petition; if such person is adjudged a bankrupt, such action may be further stayed until twelve months after the date of such adjudication, or, if within that time such person applies for a discharge, then until the question of such discharge is determined.

(b) The court may order the trustee to enter his appearance and defend any pending suit against the bankrupt.

(c) A trustee may, with the approval of the court, be permitted to prosecute as trustee any suit commenced by the bankrupt prior to the adjudication, with like force and effect as though it had been commenced by him.

(d) Suits shall not be brought by or against a trustee of a bankrupt estate subsequent to two years after the estate has been closed.

554. Compositions, when confirmed.

SEC. 12. (a) A bankrupt may offer terms of composition to his creditors after, but not before, he has been examined in open court or at a meeting of his creditors, and filed in court the schedule of his property and list of his creditors, required to be filed by bankrupts. In compositions before adjudication the bankrupt shall file the required schedules, and thereupon the court shall call a meeting of creditors for the allowance of claims, examination of the bankrupt and preservation and conduct of the estates. at which meeting the judge or referee shall preside; and action upon the petition for adjudication, shall be delayed until it shall be determined whether such composition shall be confirmed.

(b) An application for the confirmation of a composition may be filed in the court of bankruptcy after, but not before, it has been accepted in writing by a majority in number of all creditors whose claims have been allowed, which number must represent a majority in amount of such claims, and the consideration to be paid by the bankrupt to his creditors, and the money necessary to pay all debts which have priority and the cost of the proceedings, have been deposited in such place as shall be designated by and subject to the order of the judge.

(c) A date and place, with reference to the convenience of the parties in interest, shall be fixed for the hearing upon each application for the confirmation of a composition, and such objections as may be made to its confirmation.

(d) The judge shall confirm a composition if satisfied that (1) it is for the best interests of the creditors; (2) the bankrupt has not been guilty of any of the acts or failed to perform any of the duties which would be a bar to his discharge; and (3) the offer and its acceptance are in good faith and have not been made or procured except as herein provided, or by any means, promises, or acts herein forbidden.

(e) Upon the confirmation of a composition, the consideration shall be distributed as the judge shall direct, and the case dismissed. Whenever a composition is not confirmed, the estate shall be administered in bankruptcy as herein provided.

555. Compositions, when set aside.

SEC. 13. (a) The judge may, upon the application of parties in interest filed at any time within six months after a composition has been confirmed, set the same aside and reinstate the case if it shall be made to appear upon a trial that fraud was practiced in the procuring of such composition, and that the knowledge thereof has come to the petitioners since the confirmation of such composition.

556. Discharges, when granted.

SEC. 14. (a) Any person may, after the expiration of one month and within the next twelve months subsequent to being adjudged a bankrupt, file an application for a discharge in the court of bankruptcy in which the proceedings are pending; if it shall be made to appear to the judge that the bankrupt was unavoidably prevented from filing it within such time, it may be filed within but not after the expiration of the next six months.

(b) The judge shall hear the application for a discharge, and such proofs and pleas as may be made in opposition thereto by parties in interest, at such times as will give parties in interest a reasonable opportunity to be fully heard, and investigate the merits of the application and discharge the applicant unless he has (1) committed an offense punishable by imprisonment as herein provided; or (2) with intent to conceal his financial conditions, destroyed, concealed, or failed to keep books of account or records from which such condition might be ascertained; or (3) obtained property on credit from any person upon a materially false statement in writing made by him to any person or representative for the purpose of obtaining credit from such person; or (4) at any time subsequent to the first day of the four months immediately preceding the filing of the petition transferred, removed, destroyed, or concealed, or permitted to be removed, destroyed, or concealed any of his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors; or (5) in voluntary proceedings been granted a discharge in bankruptcy within six years; or (6) in the course of the proceedings in bankruptcy refused to obey any lawful order of or to answer any material question approved by the court; provided, that a trustee shall not interpose objections to a bankrupt's discharge, until he shall be authorized so to do at a meeting of creditors called for that purpose.

(c) The confirmation of a composition shall discharge the bankrupt from his debts, other than those agreed to be paid by the terms of the composition and those not affected by a discharge.

557. Discharges, when revoked.

SEC. 15. (a) The judge may, upon the application of parties in interest who have not been guilty of undue laches, filed at any time within one year after a discharge shall have been granted, revoke it upon a trial if it shall be made to appear that it was obtained through the fraud of the bankrupt, and that the knowledge of the fraud has come to the petitioners since the granting of the discharge, and that the actual facts did not warrant the discharge.

558. Co-debtors of bankrupts.

SEC. 16. (a) The liability of a person who is a co-debtor with, or guarantor or in any manner a surety for, a bankrupt shall not be altered by the discharge of such bankrupt.

559. Debts not affected by a discharge.

SEC. 18. (a) Upon the filing of a petition for involuntary bankruptcy, service thereof, with a writ of subpoena, shall be made upon the person therein named as defendant in the same manner that service of such process is now had upon the commencement of a suit in equity in the courts of the United States, except that it shall be returnable within fifteen days, unless the judge shall for cause fix a longer time; but in case personal service cannot be made, then notice shall be given by publication in the same manner and for the same time as provided by law for notice by publication in suits to enforce a legal or equitable lien in courts of the United States, except that, unless the judge shall otherwise direct, the order shall be published not more than once a week for two consecutive weeks, and the return day shall be ten days after the last publication unless the judge shall for cause fix a longer time.

(b) The bankrupt, or any creditor, may appear and plead to the petition within five days after the return day, or within such further time as the court may allow.

(c) All pleadings setting up matters of fact shall be verified under oath.

(d) If the bankrupt, or any of his creditors, shall appear, within the time limited, and controvert the facts alleged in the petition, the judge shall determine, as soon as may be, the issues presented by the pleadings, without the intervention of a jury, except in cases where a jury trial is given by this act, and make the adjudication or dismiss the petition.

(e) If on the last day within which pleadings may be filed none are filed by the bankrupt or any of his creditors, the judge shall on the next day, if present, or as soon thereafter as practicable, make the adjudication or dismiss the petition.

(f) If the judge is absent from the district, or the division of his district in which the petition is pending, on the next day after the last day on which pleadings may be filed, and none have been filed by the bankrupt or any of his creditors, the clerk shall forthwith refer the case to the referee.

(g) Upon the filing of a voluntary petition the judge shall hear the petition and make the adjudication or dismiss the petition. If the judge is absent from the district, or the division of the district in which the petition is filed at the time of the filing, the clerk shall forthwith refer the case to the referee. As amended, Act of February 5, 1903.

If such application is not filed within such time, a trial by jury shall be deemed to have been waived.

(b) If a jury is not in attendance upon the court, one may be specially summoned for the trial, or the case may be postponed, or, if the case is pending in one of the district courts within the jurisdiction of a circuit court of the United States, it may be certified for trial to the circuit court sitting at the same place, or by consent of parties when sitting at any other place in the same district, if such circuit court has or is to have a jury first in attendance.

(c) The right to submit matters in controversy, or an alleged offense under this act, to a jury shall be determined and enjoyed, except as provided by this act, according to the United States laws now in force or such as may be hereafter enacted in relation to trials by jury.

(b) The right to take depositions in proceedings under this act shall be determined and enjoyed according to the United States laws now in force, or such as may be hereafter enacted relating to the taking of depositions, except as herein provided.

(c) Notice of the taking of depositions, shall be filed with the referee in every case. When depositions are to be taken in opposition to the allowance of a claim notice shall also be served upon the claimant, and when in opposition to a discharge notice shall also be served upon the bankrupt.

(d) Certified copies of proceedings before a referee, or of papers, when issued by the clerk or referee, shall be admitted as evidence with like force and effect as certified copies of the records of district courts of the United States are now or may hereafter be admitted as evidence.

(e) A certified copy of the order approving the bond of a trustee shall constitute conclusive evidence of the vesting in him of the title to the property of the bankrupt, and if recorded shall impart the same notice that a deed from the bankrupt to the trustee if recorded would have imparted had not bankruptcy proceedings intervened.

(f) A certified copy of an order confirming or setting aside a composition, or granting or setting aside a discharge, not revoked, shall be evidence of the jurisdiction of the court, the regularity of the proceedings, and of the fact that the order was made.

(g) A certified copy of an order confirming a composition shall constitute evidence of the revesting of the title of his property in the bankrupt, and if recorded shall impart the same notice that a deed from the trustee to the bankrupt if recorded would impart. As amended, Act of February 5, 1903.

564. Reference to cases after adjudication.

SEC. 22. (a) After a person has been adjudged a bankrupt the judge may cause the trustee to proceed with the administration of the estate, or refer it (1) generally to the referee or specially with only limited authority to act in the premises or to consider and report upon specified issues; or (2) to any referee within the territorial jurisdiction of the court, if the convenience of parties in interest will be served thereby, or for cause, or if the bankrupt does not do business, reside, or have his domicile in the district.

(b) The judge may, at any time, for the convenience of parties or for cause, transfer a case from one referee to another.

565. Jurisdiction of United States and state courts.

SEC. 23. (a) The United States circuit courts shall have jurisdiction of all controversies at law and in equity, as distinguished from proceedings in bankruptcy, between trustees as such and adverse claimants concerning the property acquired or claimed by the trustees, in the same manner and to the same extent only as though bankruptcy proceedings had not been instituted and such controversies had been between the bankrupts and such adverse claimants.

(g) The claims of creditors who have received preferences, voidable under section 60, subdivision b, or to whom conveyances, transfers, assignments, or incumbrances, void or voidable under section 67, subdivision e, have been made or given, shall not be allowed unless such creditors shall surrender such preferences, conveyances, transfers, assignments or incumbrances.

(h) The value of securities held by secured creditors shall be determined by converting the same into money according to the terms of the agreement pursuant to which such securities were delivered to such creditors or by such creditors and the trustee, by agreement, arbitration, compromise, or litigation, as the court may direct, and the amount of such value shall be credited upon such claims, and a dividend shall be paid only on the unpaid balance.

(i) Whenever a creditor, whose claim against a bankrupt estate is secured by the individual undertaking of any person, fails to prove such claim, such person may do so in the creditor's name, and if he discharge such undertaking in whole or in part he shall be subrogated to that extent to the rights of the creditor.

(j) Debts owing to the United States, a state, a county, a district, or a municipality as a penalty or forfeiture shall not be allowed, except for the amount of the pecuniary loss sustained by the act, transaction, or proceeding out of which the penalty or forfeiture arose, with reasonable and actual costs occasioned thereby and such interest as may have accrued thereon according to law.

(k) Claims which have been allowed may be reconsidered for cause and reallocated or rejected in whole or in part, according to the equities of the case before but not after the estate has been closed.

(l) Whenever a claim shall have been reconsidered and rejected, in whole or in part, upon which a dividend has been paid, the trustee may recover from the creditor the amount of the dividend received upon the claim if rejected in whole or the proportional part thereof if rejected only in part.

(m) The claim of any estate which is being administered in bankruptcy against any like estate may be proved by the trustee and allowed by the court in the same manner and upon like terms as the claims of other creditors.

(n) Claims shall not be proved against a bankrupt estate subsequent to one year after the adjudication; or if they are liquidated by litigation and the final judgment therein is rendered within thirty days before or after the expiration of such time, then within sixty days after the rendition of such judgment; provided, that the right of infants and insane persons without guardians, without notice of the proceedings, may continue six months longer. As amended, Act of February 5, 1903.

600. Notice to creditors.

SEC. 58. (a) Creditors shall have at least ten days' notice by mail to their respective addresses as they appear in the list of creditors of the bankrupt, or as afterwards filed with the papers in the case by the creditors, unless they waive notice in writing, of (1) all examination of the bankrupt; (2) all hearings upon applications for the confirmation of compositions or the discharge of bankrupts; (3) all meetings of creditors; (4) all proposed sales of property; (5) the declaration and time of payment of dividends; (6) the filing of the final accounts of the trustee, and the time when and the place where they will be examined and passed upon; (7) the proposed compromise of any controversy; (8) the proposed dismissal of the proceedings; and (9) there shall be thirty days' notice of all applications for the discharge of bankrupts. As amended, Act of June 25, 1910.

(b) Notice to creditors of the first meeting shall be published at least once and may be published such number of additional times as the court may direct; the last publication shall be at least one week prior to the date fixed for the meeting. Other notices may be published as the court shall direct.

(c) All notices shall be given by the referee, unless otherwise ordered by the judge. As amended, Act of June 25, 1910.

601. Who may file and dismiss petitions.

SEC. 59. (a) Any qualified person may file a petition to be adjudged a voluntary bankrupt.

(b) Three or more creditors who have provable claims against any person which amounts in the aggregate in excess of the value of securities held by them, if any, to five hundred dollars or over; or if all the creditors of such person are less than twelve in number, then one of such creditors whose claim equals such amount may file a petition to have him adjudged a bankrupt.

(c) Petitions shall be filed in duplicate, one copy for the clerk and one for service on the bankrupt.

(d) If it be averred in the petition that the creditors of the bankrupt are less than twelve in number, and less than three creditors have joined as petitioners therein, and the answer avers the existence of a larger number of creditors, there shall be filed with the answer a list under oath of all the creditors, with their addresses, and thereupon the court shall cause all such creditors to be notified of the pendency of such petition and shall delay the hearing upon such petition for a reasonable time, to the end that parties in interest shall have an opportunity to be heard; if upon such hearing it shall appear that a sufficient number have joined in such petition, or if prior to or during such hearing a sufficient number shall join therein, the case may be proceeded with, but otherwise it shall be dismissed.

(e) In computing the number of creditors of a bankrupt for the purpose of determining how many creditors must join in the petition, such creditors as were employed by him at the time of the filing of the petition or are related to him by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree, as determined by the common law, and have not joined in the petition, shall not be counted.

(f) Creditors other than original petitioners may at any time enter their appearance and join in the petition, or file an answer and be heard in opposition to the prayer of the petition.

(g) A voluntary or involuntary petition shall not be dismissed by the petitioner or petitioners or for want of prosecution or by consent of parties until after notice to the creditors, and to that end the court shall, before entertaining an application for dismissal, require the bankrupt to file a list, under oath, of all his creditors, with their addresses, and shall cause notice to be sent to all such creditors of the pendency of such application, and shall delay the hearing thereon for a reasonable time to allow all creditors and parties in interest opportunity to be heard. As amended, Act of June 25, 1910.

602. Preferred creditors.

SEC. 60. (a) A person shall be deemed to have given a preference if, being insolvent, he has, within four months before the filing of the petition, or after the filing of the petition and before the adjudication, procured or suffered a judgment to be entered against himself in favor of any person, or made a transfer of any of his property, and the effect of the enforcement of such judgment or transfer will be to enable any one of his creditors to obtain a greater percentage of his debt than any other of such creditors of the same class. Where the preference consists in a transfer, such period of four months shall not expire until four months after the date of the recording or registering of the transfer, if by law such recording or registering is required.

(b) If a bankrupt shall have procured or suffered a judgment to be entered against him in favor of any person or have made a transfer of any of his property, and if, at the time of the transfer, or of the entry of the judgment, or of the recording or registering of the transfer, if by law recording or registering thereof is required, and being within four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy or after the filing thereof and before the adjudication, the bankrupt be insolvent and the judgment and transfer then operate as a preference, and the person receiving it or to be benefited thereby, or his agent acting therein, shall then have reasonable cause to believe that the enforcement of such judgment or transfer would effect a preference, it shall be voidable by the trustee and he may recover the property or its value from such person and for the purpose of such recovery any court of bankruptcy, as hereinbefore defined, and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened, shall have concurrent jurisdiction.

(c) If a creditor has been preferred, and afterwards in good faith gives the debtor further credit without security of any kind for property which becomes a part of the debtor's estates, the amount of such new credit remaining unpaid at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy may be set off against the amount which would otherwise be recoverable from him.

(d) If a debtor shall, directly or indirectly, in contemplation of the filing of a petition by or against him, pay money or transfer property to an attorney and counselor at law, solicitor in equity, or proctor in admiralty for services to be rendered, the transaction shall be reexamined by the court on petition of the trustee or any creditor and shall only be held valid to the extent of a reasonable amount to be determined by the court, and the excess may be recovered by the trustee for the benefit of the estate. As amended, Acts of February 5, 1903, and June 25, 1910.

CHAPTER VII

603. Depositories for money.

SEC. 61. (a) Courts of bankruptcy shall designate, by order, banking institutions as depositories for the money of bankrupt estates, as convenient as may be to the residences of trustees, and shall require bonds to the United States, subject to their approval, to be given by such banking institutions, and may from time to time as occasion may require, by like order increase the number of depositories or the amount of any bond or change such depositories.

604. Expenses of administering estates.

SEC. 62. (a) The actual and necessary expenses incurred by officers in the administration of estates shall, except where other provisions are made for their payment, be reported in detail, under oath, and examined and approved or disapproved by the court. If approved, they shall be paid or allowed out of the estates in which they were incurred.

605. Debts which may be proved.

SEC. 63. (a) Debts of the bankrupt may be proved and allowed against his estate which are (1) a fixed liability, as evidenced by a judgment or an instrument in writing, absolutely owing at the time of the filing of the petition against him, whether then payable or not, with any interest thereon which would have been recoverable at that date or with a rebate of interest upon such as were not then payable and did not bear interest; (2) due as costs taxable against an involuntary bankrupt who was at the time of the filing of the petition against him plaintiff in a cause of action which would pass to the trustee, and which the trustee declines to prosecute after notice; (3) founded upon a claim for taxable costs incurred in good faith by a creditor before the filing of the petition in an action to recover a provable debt; (4) founded upon an open account, or upon a contract express or implied; and (5) founded upon provable debts reduced to judgments after the filing of the petition and before the consideration of the bankrupt's application for a discharge, less costs incurred and interests accrued after the filing of the petition and up to the time of the entry of such judgments.

(b) Unliquidated claims against the bankrupt may, pursuant to application to the court, be liquidated in such manner as it shall direct, and may thereafter be proved and allowed against his estate.

606. Debts which have priority.

SEC. 64. (a) The court shall order the trustee to pay all taxes legally due and owing by the bankrupt to the United States, state, county, district, or municipality in advance of the payment of dividends to creditors, and upon filing the receipts of the proper public officers for such payment he shall be credited with the amount thereof, and in case any question arises as to the amount or legality of any such tax the same shall be heard and determined by the court.

(b) The debts to have priority, except as herein provided, and to be paid in full out of bankrupt estates, and the order of payment shall be (1) the actual and necessary cost of preserving the estate subsequent to filing the petition; (2) the filing fees paid creditors in involuntary cases and, where property of the bankrupt, transferred or concealed by him either before or after the filing of the petition, shall have been recovered for the benefit of the estate of the bankrupt by the efforts and at the expense of one or more creditors, the reasonable expenses of such recovery; (3) the cost of administration, including the fees and mileage payable to witnesses as now or hereafter provided by the laws of the United States, and one reasonable attorney's fee for the professional services actually rendered, irrespective of the number of attorneys employed, to the petitioning creditors in involuntary cases, to the bankrupt in involuntary cases while performing the duties herein prescribed, and to the bankrupt in voluntary cases, as the court may allow; (4) wages due to workmen, clerks, or servants which have been earned within three months before the date of the commencement of proceedings, not to exceed three hundred dollars to each claimant; and (5) debts owing to any person who by the laws of the states or the United States is entitled to priority.

(c) In the event of the confirmation of a composition being set aside, or a discharge revoked, the property acquired by the bankrupt in addition to his estate at the time the composition was confirmed or the adjudication was made shall be applied to the payment in full of the claims of creditors for property sold to him on credit, in good faith, while such composition or discharge was in force, and the residue, if any, shall be applied to the payment of the debts which were owing at the time of the adjudication. As amended, Acts of February 5, 1903, and June 15, 1906.

607. Declaration and payment of dividends.

SEC. 65. (a) Dividends of an equal per centum shall be declared and paid on all allowed claims, except such as have priority or are secured.

(b) The first dividend shall be declared within thirty days after the adjudication, if the money of the estate in excess of the amount necessary to pay the debts which have priority and such claims as have not been, but probably will be, allowed equals five per centum or more of such allowed claims. Dividends subsequent to the first shall be declared upon like terms as the first and as often as the amount shall equal ten per centum or more and upon closing the estate. Dividends may be declared oftener and in smaller proportions if the judge shall so order; provided, that the first dividend shall not include more than fifty per centum of the money of the estate in excess of the amount necessary to pay the debts which have priority and such claims as probably will be allowed; and provided, further, that the final dividend shall not be declared within three months after the first dividend shall be declared. As amended, Act of February 5, 1903.

(c) The rights of creditors who have received dividends, or in whose favor final dividends have been declared, shall not be affected by the proof and allowance of claims subsequent to the date of such payment or declarations of dividends; but the creditors proving and securing the allowance of such claims shall be paid dividends equal in amount to those already received by the other creditors if the estate equals so much before such other creditors are paid any further dividends.

(d) Whenever a person shall have been adjudged a bankrupt by a court without the United States and also by a court of bankruptcy, creditors residing within the United States shall first be paid a dividend equal to that received in the court without the United States by other creditors before creditors who have received a dividend in such court shall be paid any amounts.

(e) A claimant shall not be entitled to collect from a bankrupt estate any greater amount than shall accrue pursuant to the provisions of this act.

608. Unclaimed dividends.

SEC. 66. (a) Dividends which remain unclaimed for six months after the final dividend has been declared shall be paid by the trustee into court.

(b) Dividends remaining unclaimed for one year shall, under the direction of the court, be distributed to the creditors whose claims have been allowed but not paid in full, and after such claims have been paid in full the balance shall be paid to the bankrupt; provided, that in case unclaimed dividends belong to minors such minors may have one year after arriving at majority to claim such dividends.

609. Liens.

SEC. 67. (a) Claims which for want of record or for other reasons would not have been valid liens as against the claims of the creditors of the bankrupt shall not be liens against his estate.

(b) Whenever a creditor is prevented from enforcing his rights as against a lien created, or attempted to be created, by his debtor, who afterwards becomes a bankrupt, the trustee of the estate of such bankrupt shall be subrogated to and may enforce such rights of such creditor for the benefit of the estate.

(c) A lien created by or obtained in or pursuant to any suit or proceeding at law or in equity, including an attachment upon mesne process or a judgment by confession, which was begun against a person within four months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by or against such person shall be dissolved by the adjudication of such person to be a bankrupt if (1) it appears that said lien was obtained and permitted while the defendant was insolvent and that its existence and enforcement will work a preference, or (2) the party or parties to be benefited thereby had reasonable cause to believe the defendant was insolvent and in contemplation of bankruptcy, or (3) that such lien was sought and permitted in fraud of the provisions of this act; or if the dissolution of such lien would militate against the best interests of the estate of such person the same shall not be dissolved, but the trustee of the estate of such person, for the benefit of the estate, shall be subrogated to the rights of the holder of such lien and empowered to perfect and enforce the same in his name as trustee with like force and effect as such holder might have done had not bankruptcy proceedings intervened.

(d) Liens given or accepted in good faith and not in contemplation of or in fraud upon this act, and for a present consideration, which have been recorded according to law, if record thereof was necessary in order to impart notice shall, to the extent of such present consideration only, not be affected by this act.

(e) That all conveyances, transfers, assignments, or incumbrances of his property, or any part thereof, made or given by a person adjudged a bankrupt under the provisions of this act subsequent to the passage of this act and within four months prior to the filing of the petition, with the intent and purpose on his part to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors, or any of them, shall be null and void as against the creditors of such debtor, except as to purchasers in good faith and for a present fair consideration; and all property of the debtor conveyed, transferred, assigned, or incumbered as aforesaid shall, if he be adjudged a bankrupt, and the same is not exempt from execution and liability for debts by the law of his domicile, be and remain a part of the assets and estate of the bankrupt and shall pass to his said trustee, whose duty it shall be to recover and reclaim the same by legal proceedings or otherwise for the benefit of the creditors. And all conveyances, transfers, or incumbrances of his property made by a debtor at any time within four months prior to the filing of the petition against him, and while insolvent, which are held null and void as against the creditors of such debtor by the laws of the state, territory, or district in which such property is situate, shall be deemed null and void under this act against the creditors of such debtor if he be adjudged a bankrupt, and such property shall pass to the assignee and be by him reclaimed and recovered for the benefit of the creditors of the bankrupt. For the purpose of such recovery any court of bankruptcy as hereinbefore defined, and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened shall have concurrent jurisdiction.

(f) That all levies, judgments, attachments, or other liens, obtained through legal proceedings against a person who is insolvent, at any time within four months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against him, shall be deemed null and void in case he is adjudged a bankrupt, and the property affected by the levy, judgment, attachment, or other lien shall be deemed wholly discharged and released from the same, and shall pass to the trustee as a part of the estate of the bankrupt, unless the court shall, on due notice, order that the right under such levy, judgment, attachment, or other lien shall be preserved for the benefit of the estate; and thereupon the same may pass to and shall be preserved by the trustee for the benefit of the estate as aforesaid. And the court may order such conveyance as shall be necessary to carry the purposes of this section into effect; provided, that nothing herein contained shall have the effect to destroy or impair the title obtained by such levy, judgment, or other lien of a bona fide purchaser for value who shall have acquired the same without notice or reasonable cause for inquiry. As amended, Acts of February 5, 1903, and June 15, 1910.

610. Set-offs and counterclaims.

SEC. 68. (a) In all cases of mutual debts or mutual credits between the estate of a bankrupt and a creditor the account shall be stated and one debt shall be set off against the other, and the balance only shall be allowed or paid.

(b) A set-off or counterclaim shall not be allowed in favor of any debtor of the bankrupt which (1) is not provable against the estate; or (2) was purchased by or transferred to him after the filing of the petition, or within four months before such filing, with a view to such use and with knowledge or notice that such bankrupt was insolvent, or had committed an act of bankruptcy.

611. Possession of property.

SEC. 69. (a) A judge may, upon satisfactory proof, by affidavit, that a bankrupt against whom an involuntary petition has been filed and is pending has committed an act of bankruptcy, or has neglected or is neglecting, or is about to so neglect his property that it has thereby deteriorated or is thereby deteriorating or is about thereby to deteriorate in value, issue a warrant to the marshal to seize and hold it subject to further orders. Before such warrant is issued the petitioners applying therefor shall enter into a bond in such an amount as the judge shall fix, with such sureties as he shall approve, conditioned to indemnify such bankrupt for such damages as he shall sustain in the event such seizure shall prove to have been wrongfully obtained. Such property shall be released, if such bankrupt shall give bond in a sum which shall be fixed by the judge, with such sureties as he shall approve, conditioned to turn over such property, or pay the value thereof in money to the trustee, in the event he is adjudged a bankrupt pursuant to such petition.

612. Title to property.

SEC. 70. (a) The trustee of the estate of a bankrupt, upon his appointment and qualification, and his successor or successors, if he shall have one or more, upon his or their appointment and qualification shall in turn be vested by operation of law with the title of the bankrupt, as of the date he was adjudged a bankrupt, except in so far as it is to property which is exempt, to all (1) documents relating to his property; (2) interests in patents, patent rights, copyrights, and trade-marks; (3) powers which he might have exercised for his own benefit, but not those which he might have exercised for some other person; (4) property transferred by him in fraud of his creditors; (5) property which prior to the filing of the petition he could by any means have transferred or which might have been levied upon and sold under judicial process against him; provided, that when any bankrupt shall have any insurance policy which has a cash surrender value payable to himself, his estate, or personal representatives, he may, within thirty days after the cash surrender value has been ascertained and stated to the trustee by the company issuing the same, pay or secure to the trustee the sum so ascertained and stated, and continue to hold, own, and carry such policy free from the claims of the creditors participating in the distribution of his estate under the bankruptcy proceedings, otherwise the policy shall pass to the trustee as assets; and (6) rights of action arising upon contracts or from the unlawful taking or detention of, or injury to, his property.

(b) All real and personal property belonging to bankrupt estates shall be appraised by three disinterested appraisers; they shall be appointed by, and report to, the court. Real and personal property shall, when practicable, be sold subject to the approval of the court; it shall not be sold otherwise than subject to the approval of the court for less than seventy-five per centum of its appraised value.

(c) The title to property of a bankrupt estate which has been sold, as herein provided, shall be conveyed to the purchases by the trustee.

(d) Whenever a composition shall be set aside, or discharge revoked, the trustee shall, upon his appointment and qualification, be vested as herein provided with the title to all of the property of the bankrupt as of the date of the final decree setting aside the composition or revoking the discharge.

(e) The trustee may avoid any transfer by the bankrupt of his property which any creditor of such bankrupt might have avoided, and may recover the property so transferred, or its value, from the person to whom it was transferred, unless he was a bona fide holder for value prior to the date of the adjudication. Such property may be recovered or its value collected from whoever may have received it, except a bona fide holder for value; for the purpose of such recovery any court of bankruptcy as hereinbefore defined, and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened shall have concurrent jurisdiction.

(f) Upon the confirmation of a composition offered by a bankrupt, the title to his property shall thereupon revest in him. As amended, Act of February 5, 1903.

613. Clerks, duties of.

SEC. 71. That the clerks of the several district courts of the United States shall prepare and keep in their respective offices complete and convenient indexes of all petitions and discharges in bankruptcy heretofore or hereafter filed in the said courts, and shall, when requested so to do, issue certificates of search certifying as to whether or not any such petitions or discharges have been filed; and said clerks shall be entitled to receive for such certificates the same fees as now allowed by law for certificates as to judgments in said courts; provided, that said bankruptcy indexes and dockets shall at all times be open to inspection and examination by all persons or corporations without any fee or charge therefor. Added, Act of February 5, 1903.

614. No additional compensation.

SEC. 72. That neither the referee, receiver, marshal, nor trustee shall in any form or guise receive, nor shall the court allow them, any other or further compensation for his services than that expressly authorized and prescribed in this act. Added, Act of February 5, 1903, and amended, Act of June 25, 1910.

615. The time when this act shall go into effect.

The original act of 1908 provided as follows:

(a) This act shall go into full force and effect upon its passage; provided, however, that no petition for voluntary bankruptcy shall be filed within one month of the passage thereof, and no petition for involuntary bankruptcy shall be filed within four months of the passage thereof.

(b) Proceedings commenced under state insolvency laws before the passage of this act shall not be affected by it.

The amendatory act of 1903 provided as follows:

The amendatory act of 1910 provides as follows:

Eighth—And such other matters not inconsistent with law, as the incorporators may deem proper.

617. Articles of incorporation must be signed by at least three stockholders—Secretary of state to issue certificate—Bank examiner to authorize commencement of business.

SEC. 2. Said articles of incorporation shall be subscribed to by at least three of the stockholders of the proposed banking corporation, and be acknowledged by them before some person competent to take an acknowledgment of deeds, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is intended to be located, and one copy thereof, duly certified by the clerk of said county, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and another copy thereof, in like manner, shall be filed in the office of the state banking board. The secretary of state shall issue a certificate in the form provided by law for other corporations, and the existence of such bank as a corporation shall date from the issuance of the certificate by the secretary of state, from which time it shall have and may exercise the powers conferred by law upon corporations generally, except as limited or modified by this act; provided, that such bank shall transact no business except the election of officers and the taking and approving of their official bonds, and the receipt of payments on account of the subscriptions of the capital stock, and such other business as is incidental to its organization, until it shall have been authorized by the bank examiner to commence the business of banking as hereinafter provided.

In Marymont v. State Banking Board, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 295), it was held that the banking business is a lawful one in which the citizen cannot be denied the right to engage by an act of the legislature.

Ex Parte Pittman, 31 Nev. 43.

See annotation under sec. 623.

The banking business can be regulated, but not prohibited, and it is not only the legislature's power, but its duty, to regulate the business so as to reduce failures to a minimum.

Ex Parte Pittman, 31 Nev. 43.

618. Statement to be filed with bank examiner.

SEC. 3. When the capital stock of any bank shall have been paid up, in cash, the president or cashier thereof shall transmit to the bank examiner a verified statement showing the names and places of residence of the stockholders, the amount of stock subscribed and the amount paid in by each, and the bank examiner shall thereupon have the same power to examine into the conditions and affairs of such bank as if it had been before that time engaged in the banking business, and if the bank examiner is satisfied that such bank has been organized as prescribed by law, and that its capital is fully paid in cash, and that it has in all respects complied with the law, he shall issue to such bank, under his hand and seal, a certificate showing that it has been organized and its capital fully paid up as required by law, and is authorized to transact a general banking business, upon payment of the license prescribed by this act; provided, that in the reorganization of any banking corporation, the assets may be accepted in lieu of cash at their actual value.

619. Business in which bank may engage.

SEC. 4. A banking corporation organized under the provisions of this act shall be permitted to receive money on deposit, to buy and sell exchange, gold, silver, coin, bullion, uncurrent money and bonds, to loan money on chattel and personal security, or on real estate secured by mortgage; to own a suitable building, furniture, and fixtures, for the transaction of its business; the value of which shall not exceed one-third of the capital and surplus of said bank, fully paid; provided, that nothing in this section shall prohibit such bank from holding or disposing of such real estate as it may acquire through the collection of debts due it; and provided further, that all banking institutions and trust companies now organized as corporations doing business in this state are hereby permitted to continue said business as at present incorporated, but in all other respects, their business, and the manner of conducting the same, and the operation of said bank or trust company, shall be carried on, subject to the provisions of this act and in accordance therewith; and provided further, that no bank or trust company, except those that have complied with the provisions of this act, shall engage in any other business than is authorized by this act.

A receipt of a deposit by the receiving teller of a private bank is the receipt by the private banker, because he is the principal and the teller the agent, and the deposit is the banker's private property. Ex Parte Rickey, 31 Nev. 82.

A deposit received by an incorporated bank is the property of the corporation. Idem. 82.

Banks may be appointed resident agents of corporations, sec. 1119.

620. May transact trust company business, when.

SEC. 5. Any corporation organized under this act may state in its articles of incorporation that it will carry on a trust company business, either exclusively or in connection with the banking business, and such corporation shall thereupon have power, in addition to the powers conferred upon banks, to act as trustee under any mortgage or bond of any person, firm or corporation, or of any municipality or body politic; and accept and execute any municipal or corporate or individual trust not inconsistent with the laws of this state; to act under the order or appointment of any court as guardian, administrator, receiver or trustee; to act as executor or trustee under any will; and when appointed as such guardian, administrator, receiver, trustee or executor it may, by order of the court having jurisdiction in the premises, be relieved from giving any security bond required by law; to act as fiscal or transfer agent of any state, municipality, body politic or corporation and in such capacity to receive and disburse money and register, transfer and countersign certificates of stock, bonds and other evidences of indebtedness; to act as local or resident agent of foreign corporations, and as agent for insurance companies.

621. Savings bank business, when—Funds of savings bank, how invested—Restrictions.

SEC. 6. Any banking corporation designating its business as that of a savings bank shall have power to carry on a savings bank business as prescribed and limited in this act. Any savings bank may receive deposits, and such deposits shall be repaid to the depositors or their lawful representatives at such time and with such interest and under such regulations, assented to by the depositors, as shall be prescribed by said bank and approved by the state banking board, which regulations shall be printed and conspicuously posted in some place accessible and visible to all persons in the business office of said bank. The funds of any savings bank, except the reserve provided for in this act, shall be invested in bonds of the United States, or of any state of the United States, or in the public debt or bonds of any city, county, township, village or school district of any state of the United States which shall have been lawfully issued; or may be loaned on negotiable paper secured by any of the above-mentioned classes of security; or upon notes or bonds secured by mortgage lien upon unincumbered real estate; provided, that second mortgage loans may be made upon improved farm lands but no loans shall be made upon such lands or other real estate which, including the aggregate amount of all incumbrances shall exceed fifty per cent of the cash value thereof; or upon notes secured by collateral security of known marketable value; or shall be deposited in good solvent banks or held as cash; provided, also, that chattel mortgages shall not be deemed collateral security and savings banks are prohibited from investing their funds in them.

622. Pass-book, regulations concerning.

SEC. 7. A pass-book shall be issued to each depositor in a savings bank for all money deposited on open account. Such pass-book shall contain the rules and regulations adopted by such savings bank governing such deposits and shall be accepted by the depositor and thereupon shall be deemed agreed to by him. In such pass-book shall be entered each deposit made by and each payment made to such depositor; provided, that nothing in this act shall prohibit a savings bank from issuing time certificates for deposits. When any deposit is made in a savings bank by a minor the said bank may pay to such depositor such sums as may be due him or her, and the receipt of such minor to such savings bank shall be valid.

623. Minimum capital, $25,000.

SEC. 8. That hereafter no bank or trust company shall be organized, and no bank or banker shall be permitted to carry on business with a less capital than twenty-five thousand dollars, and the full amount of the capital stock of any bank or trust company must be paid in cash before it shall be authorized to commence business, or any individual banker be permitted to be in or continue business. No bank in this state shall hereafter open or maintain any branch bank or office. All of the provisions of this act shall be applicable as far as may be to individuals, firms or associations, as well as to corporations.

The provision in sec. 2 of the banking act of March 24, 1909 (Stats. 1908-09, p. 191) denying to individuals the right to engage in the banking business was held to be in conflict with the state constitution, article 1, section 1, which assures to the citizen rights to liberty, property and happiness, with article 1, section 8, guaranteeing due process of law, and with article 1, section 20, which saves to the people rights not enumerated and possessed by them. It was held that the business of banking is a lawful one in which every citizen may engage. Marymont v. State Banking Board, 33 Nev. — (111 P. 295).

In decisions filed January 3, 1911, the Supreme Court of the United States sustained, as not being in conflict with the federal constitution, the Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas acts requiring the payment by all banks in those states of a percentage to a guaranty fund to meet the indebtedness of any bank which may become insolvent, and it was held that the federal constitution does not deny the state the right to regulate the banking business to prohibition, except upon such conditions as it may prescribe, and that objections under the state constitution were not open for consideration by that court. Noble State Bank v. Haskell and following cases, opinions of the U. S. Supreme Court, advance sheets, February 1, 1911.

624. Capital stock may be increased or diminished.

SEC. 9. The capital stock of any banking corporation doing business under the laws of this state may be increased or decreased at any time by a resolution adopted by two-thirds of its stockholders, at any regular meeting or at a special meeting called for that purpose, of which all stockholders shall have due notice, in the manner provided by the by-laws of such corporation. A certificate must be filed with the bank examiner by the officers of the meeting, and by a majority of the directors, showing the compliance with the provisions of this section, the amount to which the capital stock has been increased or decreased, the amount of capital stock represented at the meeting, and the vote upon the question to increase or decrease the capital stock. No such changes in the capital stock of any such corporation shall be valid or binding until the same shall have been approved by the bank examiner. No increase of the capital stock shall be approved by the bank examiner until the amount thereof shall have been paid in cash; provided, however, that such increased capital may, when authorized by two-thirds of the stockholders of said bank, be paid in whole or in part from its surplus or undivided profits. Whenever the capital stock of any bank shall be decreased, as provided in this section, each stockholder, owner, or holder of any stock certificate shall surrender the same for cancelation, and shall be entitled to receive a new certificate for his proportion of the new stock. No decrease in the capital stock of any bank shall be approved, unless such bank with reduced capital shall be entirely solvent, and no reduction in capital shall be approved to an amount less than is authorized by this act. Whenever the capital stock of any bank shall be increased or decreased as provided in this section, and the same shall have been approved by the bank examiner, a certificate signed by the president and cashier of the bank, setting forth the amount of stock held by such shareholder shall be filed with the secretary of state, with the county clerk and with the banking board.

625. Directors—Officers—Qualifications—Liability—Meetings.

SEC. 10. The affairs and business of any banking corporation organized under the laws of this state shall be managed or controlled by a board of directors, of not less than three in number, who shall be selected from the stockholders in January of each year, and in such manner as may be provided by the by-laws of the corporation. No person shall be eligible to serve as a director of any bank, organized or existing under the laws of this state, unless he shall be a bona fide owner of one thousand dollars of the stock of such bank, fully paid and not hypothecated. A majority of the board of directors of every bank shall reside in the county where its business is to be conducted or in an adjoining county or counties. Any director, officer, or other person, who shall participate in any violation of the laws of this state, relative to banks, shall be liable for all damages which the said bank, its stockholders, depositors or creditors, shall, in consequence of such violation, sustain. Such director, when appointed shall take, in addition to the usual oath, an oath that he will, so far as the duty devolves upon him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of such bank, and will not knowingly violate, or willingly permit to be violated, any of the provisions of this act, and that he is the owner, in good faith and in his own right of the number of shares of stock required by this act, subscribed by him and standing in his name on the books of the corporation; that the same is not hypothecated or in any way pledged as security for any loan or debt. Such oath subscribed by the director making it and certified by the notary public before whom it was taken shall be immediately transmitted to the bank examiner, and shall be filed and preserved in his office. The directors shall elect from their number, president, vice-president or vice-presidents, and shall appoint a cashier, who shall be ex officio secretary, and such other officers as may be provided for in the by-laws. Such officers shall hold their offices for the term of one year and until their successors have been elected and qualified, unless sooner removed by the board of directors. The board shall require the cashier, and any and all officers and employees of the bank, having care of the funds, to give a good and sufficient bond to be approved by them. The board of directors shall hold at least four (4) regular meetings each year, and at such meetings a thorough examination of the books, records, funds and securities held by the bank or trust company, shall be made and recorded in detail upon its record book.

False oath perjury, sec. 660.

The president and receiving teller of an incorporated bank acting within the scope of their authority are agents of the corporation, and not of each other, and though the president has larger powers than the teller, and may direct his acts, the president is in no sense the principal, but his acts, within the scope of his powers, are the acts of the corporation. Ex Parte Rickey, 31 Nev. 82.

The president of an incorporated bank may be authorized by the directors thereof to do anything within the authority of the bank's charter, except the positive requirements that are personal, and cannot be delegated; and, when he goes beyond the scope of his usual authority, it must be shown in some way that his act was authorized by the directors. Idem, 82.

626. Bank closed when officers violate law.

SEC. 11. The violation of any of the provisions of this act by the officers or directors of any bank, organized or existing under the laws of this state shall be sufficient cause to subject the said bank or trust company to be closed and liquidated and for the annulment of its charter.

In Golden v. District Court, 31 Nev. 250, it was held that in a proceeding by stockholders to appoint a receiver for a bank and to enjoin its further operation under sec. 94 of the general incorporation act of 1903 (sec. 1195, infra.) the directors must be made parties.

In State v. State Bank and Trust Co., 31 Nev. 456, it was held that the superseded act of March 26, 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 232, c. 119), sec. 10, providing that, on the determination by the bank commissioners that it is unsafe for a bank to continue business, they shall order the bank examiner to take possession of its property till the court makes an order, and the attorney-general shall bring action to enjoin it from transacting business, and if on the hearing the court finds it solvent, it may dismiss the action, and order the bank restored to possession of its property, did not confer judicial power on an executive board.

627. Stockholders individually liable.

SEC. 12. The stockholders of any bank organized under this act, shall be individually liable to the creditors thereof, equally and ratably, and not one for another, in addition to the amount of stock owned by them, in a sum equal to the par value of such stock and no more.

628. Bank not to engage in trade.

SEC. 13. No bank shall employ its moneys, directly or indirectly, in trade or commerce by buying or selling goods, chattel wares or merchandise, and shall not invest any of its funds in the stock of any other bank or trust company or corporation, nor make any loans or discounts upon the security of the shares of its own capital stock, nor be the purchaser or holder of any such shares, unless such security or purchase shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith, and stock so purchased or acquired shall, within twelve months from the time of its purchase, be sold or disposed of at public or private sale; after the expiration of twelve months any such stock shall not be considered as part of the assets of any bank or trust company; provided, that it may sell or become the owner of any personal property which may come into its possession as collateral security for any debt or obligation due it, according to the terms of any contract depositing such collateral security, and if there be no such contract then collateral security may be sold in the manner provided by law.

629. Available funds—Per cent must be on hand—When bank is deemed insolvent.

SEC. 14. Every bank doing business under the laws of this state shall have on hand in available funds an amount equal to fifteen per cent of its entire deposits; two-thirds of such amount may consist of balances due from good, solvent banks, selected from time to time, with the approval of the bank examiner, and one-third shall consist of actual cash; provided, that any bank that has been made the depository for the reserve of any other bank or banks shall have on hand in the manner provided herein twenty-five per cent of the deposits. Whenever the available funds in any bank shall be below the required amount, such bank shall not make any new loans or discounts otherwise than the discounting or purchasing of bills of exchange, payable at sight; nor make any dividends of its profits until the required proportion between the aggregate of its deposits and its lawful money reserve shall have been restored and the bank examiner shall notify any bank whose lawful money reserve shall be below the amount required to be kept on hand, to make good such reserve, and if such bank shall fail to do so for a period of sixty days after such notice, it shall be deemed to be insolvent and the bank examiner may take possession of the same and proceed in the manner provided in this act, relating to insolvent banks. The bank examiner may refuse to consider, as a part of its reserves, balances due from any bank which shall refuse or neglect to furnish him with such information as he may require from time to time, relating to its business with any other bank doing business under this act, which shall enable him to determine its solvency; provided, that all banks doing a savings bank or trust company business, but which do not transact a general banking business, shall be required to keep on hand at all times, in available funds, a sum equal to ten per cent of their deposits, one-half of which may consist of balances due from good solvent banks.

630. Borrower's liability restricted.

SEC. 15. The total liability to any bank of any person, company, corporation or firm for money borrowed, including in the liability of the company or firm, the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall not at any time exceed twenty-five per cent of the capital stock and surplus of such bank, actually paid in, but the discount of bills of exchange drawn in good faith against actual existing values, as collateral security, and a discount or purchase of commercial or business paper, actually owned by the persons, shall not be considered as money borrowed.

631. False statements, how punished.

SEC. 16. Every officer, director, proprietor, partner, agent or clerk of any bank doing business under the laws of the State of Nevada, who knowingly or willingly subscribes to, or makes any false report or makes any false statement or entries in books of such bank, or knowingly subscribes to or exhibits any false writings on paper with the intent to deceive any person or persons as to the condition of such bank, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by a fine not to exceed one thousand dollars or by imprisonment in the state prison not to exceed five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

632. No proprietor, officer or employee to endorse loans.

SEC. 17. It shall be unlawful for any director, proprietor, partner, officer or employee of any bank or trust company to become an endorser or surety for loans to any other person, or in any manner become obligor for money borrowed of or loaned by such bank. The office of any director, officer or employee, who act in contravention to the provisions of this section, immediately thereon becomes vacant, and no such director, officer or employee shall be elected or appointed to such vacancy while such indebtedness exists.

633. No director, officer or employee to borrow without approval of the majority of board.

SEC. 18. It shall be unlawful for any director, officer or employee of any bank directly or indirectly, for himself or as the agent of others, to borrow money from such bank or trust company, unless he gives good and sufficient security for the repayment of such loan, which loan and security must be approved by a majority vote of the directors, in regular or in special meeting assembled, the applicant not voting, and all the proceedings relating thereto shall be recorded at length in the records of the bank.

Every person violating the provisions of this section shall be individually responsible for deposits so received, and all such debts so contracted; provided, that any director who may have paid more than his share of the liabilities mentioned in this section, may have a proper remedy at law against such other persons as shall not have paid their full share of such liabilities, and every person knowingly violating the provisions of this section, or who shall be accessory to, or permit or connive at the receiving or accepting of any such deposits, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the state prison not exceeding five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Each report shall exhibit in detail and under the appropriate heads, the resources and liabilities of such bank at the close of business on any past day specified by the bank examiner, and shall be transmitted to him within ten days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor by him, and shall be published in condensed form, according to his requirements, within ten days after same is made, in a newspaper published in the county in which such bank is established, for one insertion at the expense of the bank, and such proof of publication shall be furnished within five days after the date of publication, as may be required by the bank examiner. The bank examiner shall also have power to call for special reports which need not be published, from any bank, whenever, in his judgment, the same is necessary, in order to gain a full and complete knowledge of its condition; provided, the reports authorized and required by this section, to be called for by the bank examiner, shall relate to a date prior to the date of such call to be specified therein; provided, that no written report shall be made giving the name or names of the debtor or debtors of such bank.

[Section 79, directing bank examiner to take charge of banks in the hands of receivers, declared unconstitutional. State ex rel. Howell v. Wildes, 33 Nev. —, 116 P. 195.]

The foregoing act supersedes the general corporation law of 1865, sections 1219 to 1241, incl., infra, in so far as it authorized the incorporation of banks. As they are covered by the provisions of the foregoing banking act, the following acts are omitted: "An Act to provide for the incorporation of banks, banking institutions and saving societies and the management of the affairs thereof, and other matters relating thereto, providing penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act, and repealing all acts in conflict thereof," approved March 29, 1907, p. 362; and "An Act creating a board of bank commissioners, defining their duties, providing for the appointment of a bank examiner, prescribing his duties, fixing his compensation, providing penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act, and other matters relating thereto," approved March 26, 1907, p. 229; and "An Act to define and regulate the business of banking; creating a state banking board, and defining its duties and powers, and providing for a bank examiner and the examination and supervision of banking corporations; and for the appointment of receivers in certain cases, fixing penalties for the violation thereof, and other matters relating thereto," approved March 24, 1909, p. 251.

As its sections have been superseded and carried to the general act in relation to crimes which become effective January 1, 1912, the following act is omitted: "An Act making it a felony for any banker, or any officer, director, cashier, teller, managing member, manager, clerk, person, party or agent of any bank, banking corporation, association, firm or person engaged in a banking, brokerage, exchange or deposit business to receive, or accept or assent or be accessory to or permit the reception or deposits of money, currency or valuable paper, in banking and other institutions, knowing the same to be insolvent; providing a punishment therefor and establishing a rule of evidence in connection therewith," approved March 13, 1909, p. 95, sections 6724 and 6725, infra.

Whenever any person, firm, company, corporation or association shall report to the board of county commissioners the completion or sinking of a well, at a greater depth than five hundred feet, and demand the bounty provided for in this act, the said board of county commissioners shall authorize and instruct their chairman, or a member of their body, or some other suitable person, to proceed to said well, measure, and report under oath its depth to said board; provided, that the expense of said measurement, including report and traveling fees, to and from said well, shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars, which amount shall be paid by the party making demand for bounty.

709. Commissioners shall authorize examination of well.

SECTION 1. Every person, firm, company, corporation or association that shall, after the passage of this act, commence the sinking of artesian wells, for stock or agricultural purposes, shall be entitled for sinking such artesian well, where flowing water is obtained, the following specific sums: For the first two hundred feet, one dollar and twenty-five cents per foot; for the third one hundred feet, one dollar and fifty cents per foot; for the fourth one hundred feet, two dollars per foot; for the fifth one hundred feet, two dollars and twenty-five cents per foot; for the sixth one hundred feet, two dollars and fifty cents per foot; for the seventh one hundred feet, three dollars per foot; for the eighth one hundred feet, three dollars and fifty cents per foot; for the ninth one hundred feet, four dollars per foot; for the tenth one hundred feet, four dollars and fifty cents per foot; for all depths exceeding one thousand feet, five dollars per foot for each and every foot below the said one thousand feet. And an additional bounty of one thousand dollars for every well sunk to the depth of one thousand feet or more; provided, that such well shall furnish twenty thousand gallons of water each twenty-four hours, flowing continuously for thirty days, said sums to be paid in the manner provided for in sections 4 and 5 of this act; provided, that no bounty shall be paid on any well which does not furnish seven thousand gallons of water in each twenty-four hours, flowing continuously for thirty days; and, provided further, that no two wells shall receive a bounty if located within the same county. Where two or more wells within the prescribed limit apply for a bounty, the well which first furnished the amount of water required by this act shall be entitled to the bounty allowed by this act. As amended, Stats. 1889, 84.

In regard to the amendment by Stats. 1889, p. 84 of this section, held that the effect of reenacting this section with amendments incorporated therein was not to repeal and reenact it, but that it continued uninterruptedly in force, and that the amendatory act was to be construed in connection with it, so that where a well was sunk and a bounty granted for it under the original act, another bounty would not be granted under the amendatory act for a well sunk within the prescribed limit. The purpose of the legislature in providing for the payment of bounties by the state for sinking artesian wells was to encourage experiments in places where it was uncertain whether water could be obtained, and it did not contemplate the payment of bounties for wells sunk in places where it had been practically demonstrated by bounties paid by the state that artesian water could be obtained. State ex rel. Blossom v. Horton, 21 Nev. 300-307 (30 P. 876).

708. Statement to be filed with county recorder.

SEC. 2. Every person, firm, company, corporation or association that proposes taking the benefit of this act, shall, before commencing to sink such artesian well, file with the county recorder of the county in which said well is situated, a sworn statement setting forth (if on surveyed land) the range, township, section and subdivision of section, and if on unsurveyed land, then the statement shall contain such description as will enable the commissioner herein provided for to ascertain its locality.

709. Commissioners shall authorize.

SEC. 3. Whenever any person, firm, company, corporation or association shall report to the board of county commissioners the completion of an artesian well, and demand the bounty provided for in this act, the said board of county commissioners shall authorize and instruct their chairman or a member of their body to proceed to said well and measure its depth and diameter, and the amount of water flowing therefrom, and report said facts, under oath, to the said board of county commissioners; provided, that the expenses of said measurements, including report and traveling fees, shall not exceed twenty-five dollars, which amount shall be paid by the party making demand for such bounty.

710. Clerk shall issue certificate.

SEC. 4. The board of county commissioners shall, when such report is received, showing the depth, diameter, and the quantity of water flowing from such well, cause the clerk of said board to issue, under his official seal, to the person, firm, company, corporation or association applying for the bounty herein provided for, a certificate setting forth the depth, diameter and the quantity of water flowing from such well, upon which a bounty is demanded.

711. Controller shall draw warrant.

SEC. 5. The state controller shall, upon receipt of said certificate, as provided for in section 4 of this act, draw his warrant in favor of the person, firm, company, corporation or association named therein, for the amount due, and the state treasurer is hereby directed to pay the same.

Now, unless you appear within ten days after the date of this notice and show cause against such application, the petition shall be taken for confessed and a decree granted.

Dated (the date of publication) _____, Clerk.

And he shall also within ten days after the publication of such notice send a copy thereof by mail, addressed to such defendants whose place of residence is stated in the petition, and who shall not have been served with summons. Notice given by publications as is required by this act shall be the only publication notice required either in the case of residents, nonresidents or otherwise. The certificate of a clerk that he has sent such notice in pursuance of this section shall be evidence thereof. Every defendant who shall be duly summoned shall be held to appear and answer either in writing or orally in open court on return day of the summons or if such summons shall be served less than one day prior to the return day then on the following day. Every defendant who shall be notified by publication as herein provided shall be held to appear and answer either in writing or orally in open court within twenty days after the date of the publication notice. The answer shall have no greater weight as evidence than the petition. In default of an answer at the time or times herein specified or at such further time as by order of court may be granted to a defendant, the petition may be taken as confessed.

If the person having the custody or control of the child shall fail without reasonable cause to bring the child into court, he may be proceeded against as in case of contempt of court. In case the summons shall be returned and not served upon the person having the custody or control of such child or such person fails to obey the same and in any case when it shall be made to appear to the court by affidavit, which may be on information and belief that such summons will be ineffectual to secure the presence of the child, a warrant may be issued on the order of the court either against the parents or either of them, or guardian, or the person having the custody or control of the child or with whom the child may be or against the child itself to bring such person into court. On default of the custodian of the child or on his appearance or answer, or on the appearance in person of the child in court with or without the summons or other process and on the answer, default or appearance or written consent to the proceedings of the other defendants thereto, or as soon thereafter as may be, the court shall proceed to hear evidence. The court may, in any case when the child is not represented by any person, appoint some suitable person to act on behalf of the child. At any time after the filing of the petition and pending the final disposition of the case, the court may continue the hearing from time to time and may allow such child to remain in the possession of his custodian or in its own home subject to the friendly visitation of a probation officer, or it may order such child to be placed in the custody of a probation officer of the court, or of any suitable person appointed by the court, or to be kept in some suitable place provided by the city or county authorities.

733. Probation officers, how appointed—Powers—Salary—Duties.

SEC. 6. Probation Officers. The district courts in this state shall have authority to appoint any number of discreet persons of good moral character to serve as probation officers during the pleasure of the court; said probation officers shall receive no compensation from the county treasury except as herein provided. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the court, if practicable, to notify the said probation officer when any child is to be brought before the court; it shall be the duty of such probation officer to make investigation of such case; to be present in the court to represent the interests of the child when the case is heard; to furnish such court such information and assistance as the court or judge may require, and to take charge of any child before and after the trial as may be directed by the court. The number of probation officers to receive compensation from the county, named and designated by the district court, shall be as follows:

In all counties in this state the district judge may appoint one probation officer, whenever in the opinion of the district judge, the district superintendent of schools, in which such county may be located, or be a part thereof, and a majority of the board of county commissioners of said county shall deem such appointment necessary to care for the dependent and delinquent children of the county; provided, such probation officer can be removed from office at any time by the said district judge. The salary of said probation officers shall be as follows:

In counties having over fifteen thousand population, there shall be one probation officer, and one assistant probation officer receiving a salary. The salary of the probation officer shall be one hundred and fifty dollars per month, and the salary of an assistant shall be seventy-five dollars per month.

The expenses of such probation officers for probation work shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty dollars per year.

In counties having less than fifteen thousand population it shall be within the discretion of the district judge or county commissioners of each of said counties to determine as to the necessity of appointing a probation officer; provided, that in counties having eight thousand population and under fifteen thousand there shall be no more than one probation officer receiving a salary and such salary shall be one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month; provided, further, that in counties of five thousand and under eight thousand there shall be no more than one probation officer receiving a salary, and such salary shall be one hundred dollars per month; and provided further, that in counties of under five thousand there shall be no more than one probation officer receiving a salary, and such salary shall be seventy-five dollars per month.

All probation officers whose expenses are not herein provided shall be allowed such necessary incidental expenses as may be authorized by the judge or judges of the district court of said county; provided, that the said probation officers can be appointed for any portion or part of a year as the said district judge or judges may determine, and can be paid for the time and periods said probation officer serves under such appointment. The salary and expenses of the probation officer shall be paid out of the county funds in the county treasury in monthly installments, in the same manner as other claims against the county.

Any district judge or judges appointing such probation officer to receive a salary or other compensation from the county provided for under this act, shall transmit such appointment to the district superintendent of schools of the district of which the county in which said appointment is made is a part, the state superintendent of public instruction, and the governor of this state, who shall constitute a board to investigate the competency of such person so appointed to act as probation officer, and it shall be the duty of a majority of said board to approve or disapprove of such appointee, within thirty days after submission thereof by the said district court, and a failure to act thereon within such time shall constitute an approval of such appointment. If a majority of such board are of the opinion that such appointee does not possess the qualifications for a probation officer, they shall notify the court of their conclusions within thirty days of such appointment to the respective members thereof, whereupon it shall be the duty of the district judge or judges to withdraw such appointment and appoint some one who shall receive the approval of said board.

Probation officers receiving a salary or other compensation from the county, provided for by this act, are hereby vested with all the power and authority of police or sheriffs to make arrests and perform any other duties ordinarily required by policemen and sheriffs which may be incident to their office or necessary or convenient to the performance of their duties; provided, that other probation officers may be vested with like power and authority upon a written certificate from the district judge or judges that they are persons of discretion and good character, and that it is the desire of the court to vest them with all the power and authority conferred by law upon probation officers receiving compensation from the county.

The appointment of probation officers and the approval thereof as to the qualifications of such officers by the board herein designated, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the court. Probation officers shall take an oath such as may be required of other county officers to perform their duties and file in the office of the clerk of the district court. As amended, Stats. 1911, 384.

734. Probation committee, powers, duties.

SEC. 7. Probation Committee. The judge or judges of the district court in and for each county or city and county of the state, and in counties where there is more than one judge of the said court shall, by an order entered in the minutes of the court, appoint five discreet citizens of good moral character and of either sex, to be known as "Probation Committee," and shall fill all vacancies occurring in such committee. The clerk of said court shall immediately notify each person appointed upon said committee, and thereupon said person shall appear before the judge of the district court to whom has been assigned all proceedings under this act, and qualify by taking an oath, which shall be entered in said juvenile court record, to faithfully perform the duties of a member of said probation committee.

The members of such probation committee shall hold office for two years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified. When any vacancy occurs in any probation committee by expiration of the term of office of any member thereof, his successor shall be appointed to hold office for the unexpired term.

Members of the probation committee shall serve without compensation, and shall choose from their members a chairman and secretary.

The district court or any judge thereof may at any time require of said probation committee or probation officer to examine into the qualifications and management of any society, association or corporation, other than a state institution, receiving or applying for any child or children under this act, and to report thereon to the court.

It shall be the duty of each probation committee prior to the first day of December in each year, to prepare a report in writing on the qualifications and management of all societies, associations and corporations, except state institutions, applying for or receiving any child under this act from the courts of their respective counties, and in such reports said committee may make such suggestions or comments as to them may seem fit, such report to be filed in the office of the clerk of the court appointing such committee for the information of the county commissioners thereof. The probation committee shall also have the control and management of the internal affairs of any detention home, heretofore or hereafter established by the board of county commissioners of their county, such control and management at all times to be subject to the approval of the district court or judge or judges thereof, and it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners to provide for the payment of such employees as may be needed in the efficient management of such detention home.

Dependent and Neglected Children. If the court shall find any child under the age of eighteen years to be dependent or neglected within the meaning of this act, the court may allow such child to remain at its home subject to the friendly visitation of a probation officer, or to report to the court or probation officer from its home or school at such times as the court may require. And if parent, parents, guardian or custodian consent thereto, or if the court shall further find that the parent, parents, guardian or custodian of such child are unfit or improper guardians or are unable or unwilling to care for, protect, train, educate, correct or discipline such child and that it is for the interest of such child and other people of this state that such child be taken from the custody of its parents, custodian or guardian, the court may make an order appointing as guardian of the person of such child, some reputable citizen of good moral character, and order such guardian to place such child in some suitable family, home or other suitable place which such guardian may provide for such child, or the court may enter an order committing such child to some suitable state institution, of this or any other state organized for the care of dependent or neglected children, or to some training or industrial school or childrens' home-finding society of this or any other state, or to some association embracing in its objects the purpose of caring for or obtaining homes for neglected or dependent children, which association shall have been accredited as heretofore provided. As amended, Stats. 1911, 387.

735. Superintendent of institution to be guardian.

SEC. 8. Guardianship. In every case where such child is committed to an institution, or association, the court shall appoint the president, secretary, or superintendent of such institution or association, guardian over the person of such child and shall order such guardian to place such child in such institution or with such association, whereof he is such officer, and to hold such child, care for, train and educate it subject to the rules and laws that may be in force from time to time governing such institution or association.

736. Who are delinquent children.

SEC. 9. Delinquent Children. If the court shall find any child under the age of eighteen years to be delinquent within the meaning of this act, the court may allow such child to remain at its own home subject to the friendly visitation of a probation officer, such child to report to the court or probation officer with such record of its conduct in its home or school as the court may require as often as may be required, and if the parents, parent, guardian or custodian consent thereto or if the court shall further find either that the parent, parents, guardian or custodian are unfit or improper guardians or are unable or unwilling to care for, protect, educate, or discipline such child, and shall further find that the parent, parents, guardian or custodian are unfit or improper guardians or are unable or unwilling to care for, protect, educate or discipline such child, and shall further find that it is for the interest of such child, and other people of this state that such child be taken from the custody of its parents, parent, custodian or guardian, the court may appoint some proper person or probation officer, guardian over the person of such child and permit it to remain at its home or order such guardian to cause such child to be placed in a suitable family home, or cause it to be boarded out in some suitable home, in case provision is made by voluntary contribution or otherwise for the payment of the board; or the court may commit such child to any institution incorporated under the laws of this or any other state to care for delinquent children, or to any institution that has been or may be provided by the state, county, city, town or village suitable for the care of delinquent children, including a detention home or school, or to some association that will receive it, embracing in its objects the care of neglected, dependent or delinquent children and which has been duly accredited as hereinbefore provided. In every case where such child is committed to an institution or association, the court shall appoint the president, secretary or superintendent of such institution or association, guardian over the person of such child, and shall order such guardian to place such child in such institution or with such association, whereof he is such officer, and to hold such child, care for, train and educate it subject to the rules and laws that may be in force, from time to time governing such institution or association. As amended, Stats. 1911, 387.

737. May be proceeded against, when and how.

SEC. 10. The court may, in its discretion, in any case of a delinquent child permit such child to be proceeded against in accordance with the laws that may be enforced in the state governing the commission of crimes or violation of city, village or town ordinances; in such case the petition filed under this act shall be dismissed.

Whenever any person over the age of eighteen years and under the age of twenty-one years is accused of felony, and the indictment or information has been filed in the district court of the county wherein the crime was committed, charging said person with the commission of said felony, the judge may, in his discretion, with the consent of the accused, or upon his request, arrest said proceeding at the time of the arraignment or at any time previous to the impanelment of the jury, except where the crime charged is a capital offense or an attempt to commit a capital offense, and may proceed to investigate the charge against the defendant, and all the facts and circumstances necessary to determine the proper disposition to be made of said person, and shall determine whether said person shall be dealt with as a delinquent under the provisions of this act.

If the court is satisfied upon such investigation that said person should be declared a delinquent and should be dealt with under this act, it may make such order as herein provided for the disposition of delinquent children. If such person thereafter proves not to be amenable to the discipline of the school to which he may be committed, and the trustees thereof shall determine that said person should be committed to a state penitentiary, such person should be returned to the custody of the sheriff of the county in which such crime was committed, and thereafter proceedings shall be had upon the indictment or information commencing at the point at which proceedings were arrested; and said person shall be tried for the offense alleged in the information, and if convicted shall be sent to the penitentiary for such time as the court may determine, or otherwise dealt with in accordance with the law for dealing with persons convicted of a felony. If no request is made by the defendant for proceedings under this statute, or if the defendant desires a trial by jury, or if the judge declines to consent to the application of the defendant for proceedings under this statute, said cause shall proceed in the ordinary manner up to the verdict of guilty or not guilty, as the case may be. If said person is convicted, the court may thereafter receive such evidence as may be offered, touching the question as to whether or not said person shall be dealt with as a delinquent in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the application and consent of the accused before trial, and may make such order of probation or commitment to said state schools, and may from time to time modify said probation order, as is herein provided in the case of children adjudged delinquent. If such person during the period of his commitment to said state institution proves to be incorrigible or not amenable to the discipline of such institution, and it shall be deemed advisable in the judgment of the trustees of such institution that said person be sent to the penitentiary, then said person shall be returned to the district court in which the verdict was rendered, for sentence, and thereupon the court shall pronounce judgment. As amended, Stats. 1911, 389.

738. Child sent to hospital, when.

SEC. 11. The court may when the health or condition of any child found to be dependent, neglected or delinquent, requires it, order the guardian to cause such child to be placed in a public hospital or institution for treatment or special care, or in a private hospital or institution, which will receive it for like purposes, without charge to the public authorities.

739. Guardianship, how perfected.

SEC. 12. Any child found to be dependent, neglected or delinquent as defined in this act, and awarded by the court to a guardian, institution or association, shall be held by such guardian, institution or association, as the case may be, by virtue of the order entered of record in such case, and the clerk of the court shall issue and cause to be delivered to such guardian or association a certified copy of such order of the court, which certified copy of such order shall be proof of the authority of such guardian, institution or association in behalf of such child, and no other process need issue to warrant the keeping of such child. The guardianship under this act shall continue until the court shall by further order otherwise direct, but not after such child shall have reached the age of twenty-one (21) years.

740. Guardian to report to judge.

SEC. 13. The court may, from time to time, cite into court the guardian, institution or association to whose care any dependent, neglected or delinquent child has been awarded, and require him or it to make a full, true and perfect report as to his or its doings in behalf of such child; and it shall be the duty of such guardian, institution or association, within ten days after such citation, to make such report either in writing verified by affidavit, or verbally under oath in open court, or otherwise as the court shall direct, and upon the hearing of such report, with or without further evidence, the court may, if it sees fit, remove such guardian and appoint another in his stead, or take such child away from such institution or association and place it in another, or restore such child to the custody of its parents or former guardian or custodian.

741. Transfers from justice and police magistrates.

SEC. 14. Transfers from Justice and Police Magistrates. When in any county where a court is held as provided in section 2 of this act, any child under the age of eighteen years is arrested with or without warrant, such child may, instead of being taken before a justice of the peace or police magistrate, be taken directly before such court; or if the child is taken before the justice of the peace or police magistrate, such justice or magistrate shall inquire into such case, and unless he be of the opinion that no sufficient foundation exists for the charge of dependency or delinquency, it shall be the duty of such justice of the peace or police magistrate to transfer the case to the district court, and the officer having the child in charge take the child before such court, and in any case the district court may proceed to hear and dispose of the case in the same manner as if the child had been brought before the court upon petition as herein provided. In any case the court shall require notice to be given and investigation shall be made as in other cases under this act, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time for that purpose. As amended, Stats. 1911, 389.

742. Rules as to detention.

When any child shall be sentenced to confinement in any institution to which adult convicts are sentenced, it shall be unlawful to confine such child within the same building with such adult convict, or to confine such child in the same yard or enclosure with such adult convicts, or to bring such child into any yard or building in which adult convicts may be present.

In counties of over ten thousand population the county commissioners of each of said counties are authorized and required without unreasonable delay to provide, furnish and maintain at public expense a building suitable and adequate for the purpose of a detention home located at the county-seat of each of said counties, for the detention of the dependent and delinquent children and wherein all children within the provisions of this act shall, when necessary, before or after trial, be detained, either for securing the attendance of such children at any hearing or trial or when under order of probation for the best interests of said child and of the state. Such detention home shall be under the supervision of a matron who with other necessary employees shall be appointed by the judge or judges of the district court on the nomination of the probation committee, and their salaries shall be fixed by the judge or judges of the district court of the county, and such employees shall hold their positions during the pleasure of the judge or judges of their county. Such detention home shall be conducted as nearly like a home as possible, and shall not be deemed to be, or treated as a penal institution.

Whenever, in the discretion of the district judge or judges and probation officer, it becomes necessary to provide a superintendent or other male attendant at such detention home, the district judge or judges shall make such appointment, which appointee shall be deputized as, and clothed with the authority of, a probation officer, and it shall be the duty of the county commissioners to provide for the payment of all salaries and expenses occasioned thereby.

Any child within the provisions of this act, informed against or regarding which a petition had been filed, or for any purpose taken into custody, shall, at any time before it is tried and adjudged to be delinquent, be entitled, by any friend or parent offering sufficient surety, to give bond or other security for its appearance at any hearing or trial of such case as such right is given to persons informed against the crime; and the court may in any case, upon the request of said child, or parent representing it, appoint counsel to appear on behalf of any such child, such counsel to receive no pay from the county. As amended, Stats. 1911, 389.

proceedings for the adoption of such child may be pending, and to consent to such adoption; and such consent shall be sufficient to authorize the court where the adoption proceedings are pending to enter a proper order or decree of adoption without further notice to or consent by the parents or relatives of such child; provided, however, that before entering such order the court shall find from the evidence that (1) the parents or surviving parent of a legitimate child or the mother of an illegitimate child, or if the child has no parents living, the guardian of the child, if any, or if there is no parent living and the child has no guardian or the guardian is not known to petitioner, then a known, near relative of the child, if any there be, consents to such order; or (2) that one parent consents and the other is unfit for any of the reasons hereinafter specified to have the child, or that both parents are or that the surviving parent or the mother of an illegitimate child is so unfit for such reasons—the grounds of unfitness being (a) depravity, (b) open and notorious adultery or fornication, (c) habitual drunkenness for the space of one year prior to the filing of petition, (d) extreme and repeated cruelty to the child, (e) abandonment of the child or (f) desertion of the child for more than six (6) months next preceding the filing of the petition, and (3) that such child, if of the age of fourteen years or over, consents to such order.

(b) The court may permit any child to remain in the custody of the person found guilty by this act of contributing to its dependency, under such suspended sentence, upon such conditions for the treatment and care of such child as may seem to the court to be for its best welfare, or as may be calculated to secure obedience to the law or to remove the cause of such dependency or neglect, and while such conditions are accepted and complied with by any such person, such sentence may remain suspended subject to be enforced upon the violation of any of the conditions imposed by the court; and such bond may be forfeited upon a failure to comply with any such conditions, as well as upon the failure to pay any amount required for the maintenance of such child.

760. Conditions of bond.

SEC. 4. Conditions of Bond. As a part of the conditions of any such bond mentioned in section 3 hereof, it shall be understood that it shall not be necessary to bring a separate suit to recover the penalty of any such bond which has become forfeited, but the court may cause a citation or a summons to issue to the surety or sureties thereon, requiring that he or they appear at a time named by the court, which time shall be not less than ten or more than twenty days from the issue thereof and show cause, if any there be, why a judgment should not be entered for the penalty of such bond and execution issued for the amount thereof against the property of the surety or sureties thereon, as in civil cases, and upon failure to appear or failure to show any such sufficient cause, the court shall enter such judgment in behalf of the people of the State of Nevada, against the principal and such surety or sureties on such bond not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000) including the cost. Any moneys collected or paid upon any such execution or in any case upon any such bond, shall be turned over to the clerk of the court (juvenile department) of the county in which such bond is given, to be applied first to the payment of all court costs and then to the care or maintenance of the child or children for whose dependency such conviction was had, in such manner and upon such terms as the court may direct. If any such moneys so collected be unnecessary for the purposes last mentioned, it shall be turned over within one year to the treasurer of the county.

761. Violations of conditions of.

SEC. 5. Violation of Conditions of Suspended Sentence. In the case of any person found guilty of contributory dependency or contributory delinquency where the court has suspended the execution of the sentence during the good behavior and satisfactory conduct of the defendant or upon any other terms and conditions which may have been imposed by the court, it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court at any time during such suspended sentence or stay of execution that it ought to be enforced, the court may thereupon enforce the same, and any jail sentence thereunder shall commence from the date upon which such sentence is ordered.

762. Limitation of sentence.

SEC. 6. Limitation of Sentence Two Years. No sentence shall be suspended or final judgment or execution shall be stayed in the case of any person found guilty under this act, to exceed a period of two years. If at any time prior thereto it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that such person has complied faithfully with the conditions of any suspended sentence, judgment, or execution, or is for any cause, in the opinion of the court, entitled to be released therefrom, the court may suspend such sentence indefinitely, in which case such person shall be finally released and discharged, as he shall be in any event at the end of two years from imposition of any such sentence; provided, that if any defendant be actually serving a jail sentence imposed under this act and enforced before the expiration of said two years in accordance with the provisions of this act, then in such case the defendant shall not be finally discharged until the expiration of any such sentence.

763. Powers of officers.

SEC. 7. Officers to File Complaints. Probation officers having the powers of sheriffs or police officers, as well as county prosecuting attorneys, shall have the right and be vested with all power necessary to file complaints against any person under this act and to prosecute any such case. In all such cases it shall be the duty of the county prosecuting officer representing the people to prepare any such complaints and prosecute any such cases for such probation officer when so requested by such officer or judge of the juvenile department of the district court; but nothing herein shall be construed to interfere with any county prosecutor representing the people prosecuting such cases under this or any other act as in other criminal cases.

764. Construction.

SEC. 8. (a) Construction. In order to find any person guilty of violating this act it shall not be necessary to prove that the child has actually become dependent or delinquent, provided it appears from the evidence that through any act of neglect or omission of duty or by any improper act or conduct on the part of any such person the dependency or delinquency of any child may have been caused or merely encouraged.

8. (b) This act shall always be liberally construed in favor of the state for the purpose of the protection of the child from neglect or omission of parental duty toward the child by the parents, as well as also to protect the children of the state from the effects of the improper conduct, acts, or the bad example of any person or persons whomsoever, which may be calculated to cause, encourage or contribute to the dependency or delinquency of the children, although such persons are in no way related to the child.

8. (c) Nothing in this act shall be construed to be in conflict with or to repeal or prevent proceedings under any act or statute of this state which may have otherwise defined any specific act of any person as a crime of any character, which act might also constitute contributory delinquency, or contributory dependency, or to prevent or interfere with proceedings under any such acts, nor shall it be construed to be inconsistent with or to repeal any act providing for the support by parents or parent of their minor children, or any act providing for the punishment of cruelty to children, or the taking of indecent liberties with, or selling liquor, tobacco or firearms to children, or permitting them in evil or disreputable places, and nothing in any such acts or similar acts shall be construed to be inconsistent with or to repeal this act or prevent proceedings hereunder, but in all cases where there shall be more than one prosecution for the same offense, under whatever acts of the character herein described, the fact may be given in evidence to the judge of the court, and may be in the discretion of the court considered in mitigation of any sentence in any such cases.

8. (d) Invalidity of any portion of this act shall not affect the validity of any other portion thereof which can be given effect without such invalid part.

An Act to provide support for illegitimate children, and other matters relating thereto.

Approved March 1, 1883. 98

765. Paternity, how established—Complaint.

SECTION 1. Under this act the paternity of any illegitimate child shall be established by mutual agreement of the mother and any person whose relations have been sufficiently intimate with her to warrant the conclusion. It may also be established by the confession or admission of the father, when not denied by the mother; and when not so established it shall be susceptible of proof in such manner and of such character as the court before whom an action for that purpose is brought may determine. The mother of the child shall be admitted as a witness in support of the complaint, and may be compelled to testify. No complaint shall be withdrawn, dismissed, or settled by agreement of the mother and putative father.

766. Parent guilty of misdemeanor, when—Punishment—Custody of child.

SEC. 2. The parent of any illegitimate child who abandons, refuses, or neglects to support such child shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than fifty ($50) dollars, nor more than three hundred ($300) dollars, and in default of the payment of such fine, shall be imprisoned in the county jail until such fine shall be paid, at the rate of two dollars per day for the term of such imprisonment. The court may also adjudge that the putative father stands charged with the maintenance of said child, with the assistance of the mother; but nothing in this act shall be so construed as to take from the mother the custody of her child. Whenever the court shall make such order, any refusal or neglect of said putative father to comply with the order of the court shall be deemed a contempt of court, and punished as other cases are for contempt.

SECTION 1. The right of home rule and self-government is hereby granted to the people of any city or town incorporated under the provisions of this act.

This act held not unconstitutional as delegating legislative powers to the judicial department. State ex rel. Williams v. District Court, 30 Nev. 225-227, 234 (94 P. 70).

768. Proceedings to incorporate.

SEC. 2. Whenever a majority of the qualified electors who are taxpayers within the limits of the city or town proposed to be incorporated, as shown by the last official registration lists and assessment roll, not embraced within the limits of any city or incorporated town [shall desire to be organized into a city or incorporated town], they may apply in writing to the district court of the proper county, which application shall describe the territory to be embraced in such city or incorporated town, and shall have annexed thereto an accurate map or plat thereof, duly surveyed and containing the streets and alleys, and state the name proposed for such city or incorporated town, and shall be accompanied with satisfactory proof of the number of inhabitants within the territory embraced in said limits, for purposes of classification under the provisions of this act.

769. Decree of court—Election of officers.

SEC. 3. When such application shall be made as aforesaid the court, being satisfied of its legal sufficiency, shall thereupon enter a decree declaring said city or town duly incorporated under the provisions of this act and shall designate its classification and shall forthwith appoint five commissioners, who shall at once call an election of all the qualified electors residing within the territory embraced within said limits, as described and platted, to be held at some convenient place within said limits, and shall give notice, for thirty days, of the time and place of holding the first election of officers for said city or town, by publication in a newspaper, or, if none be published within the limits of such city or town, by posting in five public places within the limits of the same. At such election the qualified electors of such city or town residing within the limits of such city or town shall choose officers therefor, to hold until the first annual election of officers according to its grade, as hereafter in this act prescribed. Said commissioners shall act as judges and clerks of the election, and otherwise it shall be conducted, and the officers elected thereat shall be qualified, in the manner prescribed by law for the election and qualification of precinct officers. Upon ascertaining the result of said election the said commissioners shall forthwith make report of said result to said district court, and the clerk of said court shall thereupon forthwith certify to each officer of said city or town, appearing by said report to have been elected, the fact of his said election. Thereafter all municipal elections in cities incorporated under this act shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May of each odd-numbered year. The conduct and holding of all general and special municipal elections shall be under the control of the council, and they shall by ordinance provide for the holding of the same, appoint the necessary officers therefor, canvass the returns thereof, and do all other and further things required to carry the same into effect.

770. Organization, how effected.

SEC. 4. The said commissioners after making their report to said district court shall file in the office of the clerk of such city or town the ballots used at said election, a copy of the notice with the proper proof of its publication, and a certified copy of all papers and record entries relating to the incorporation of such city or town, or to said election, on file in the clerk's office of said district court. And thereupon said officers so elected shall organize under the provisions of this act, of which said organization notice shall be taken in all judicial proceedings.

771. Compensation of commissioners:

SEC. 5. That the commissioners heretofore appointed under the preceding sections, when they shall have performed their duties and made report to the court under the provisions of this act, shall receive such compensation as the court shall decree and the same to be paid by such city or town.

772. Certificates of incorporation, where filed—Publication.

SEC. 6. Upon the canvass of the returns of such election being completed, certificates of election shall be issued to the persons elected to the respective offices, who shall thereupon qualify, and the clerk of the district court shall prepare and transmit to the secretary of state duly certified copies of all papers in his office relating to the incorporation of said city, and of all minutes of proceedings had in that connection. The secretary of state shall file such certified copies in his office and thereupon make publication for a period of one week in some newspaper having general circulation within the state, of the incorporation of said city, and shall procure and file in his office the affidavit of the publisher of such newspaper, showing that such publication has been duly made. Thereupon the incorporation of said city shall be complete, and the secretary of state shall issue and forward to the city clerk of said city his certificate to that effect, and all courts in this state shall take judicial notice of the existence of such city.

SEC. 76. The several boards of county commissioners in this state shall from time to time, upon request of the city council, apportion to each incorporated city within the respective counties, such proportion of the general road fund of the county as the value of the whole property within the corporate limits of such city, as shown by the assessment roll, shall bear to the whole property of the county, inclusive of the property within incorporated cities, and all such moneys so apportioned shall be expended upon the streets, alleys and public highways of such city under the direction and control of the council.

843. Revenue ordinances.

SEC. 77. The council shall have full power to pass and enact all ordinances necessary or required to carry into effect the revenue laws in the city and to enlarge, fix and determine the powers and duties of all officers in relation thereto.

SEC. 78. Such part of the expenses of improving any streets, lanes, avenues or alleys by grading, paving, graveling, curbing, parking, constructing sidewalks or crosswalks, or otherwise improving the same, as the council shall determine, may be paid from the general fund or district street fund, from the proper street district, or the said cost or a portion thereof, as the council shall determine, may be defrayed by special assessments upon lots and premises abutting upon that part of the street or alley so improved or proposed so to be, or the lands abutting upon such improvement and such other lands as in the opinion of the council may be benefited by the improvement. When the city council shall determine to make any public improvement, such as laying pavements, constructing sewers, drains, sidewalks and crosswalks, curbing, macadamizing, oiling, graveling or grading any streets, avenues or alleys or in any way improving the same, and shall determine to defray the whole or any part of the costs or expenses thereof by special assessment, they shall so declare by ordinance, stating the improvements and what part or portion of the expenses thereof shall be paid by special assessments and what amount shall be paid out of the general fund, street fund, district street fund or any other fund.

845. When portion paid from city funds.

SEC. 79. When expenses for such improvements or repairs shall be assessed, and there shall be lands belonging to the city, or public ground not taxable, abutting on such improvements, such part of the expenses of such improvements, as, in the opinion of the council or assessor making such special assessment, would be justly apportionable to such public grounds, and city property, and to any interior squares or spaces formed by the intersection of streets where the abutting property is taxable, shall be paid from the general fund or from the proper street or district street fund or partly from each, as the council shall determine to be just, and the balance of such expense shall be assessed upon the taxable lots and premises abutting upon such improvement or improved streets in proportion to their number of feet frontage; or, if the special assessment shall include other lands not abutting upon the improvement, then upon all the land included in such special assessment, in proportion to the estimated benefits resulting thereto from the improvement. When such assessment is to be made upon the lots in proportion to their frontage upon the improvement, if, from the shape or size of any lot, the assessment thereon in proportion to its frontage would be unjust and disproportionate to the assessment upon other lots, the council or assessor making the assessment, may assess such lots or such number of feet frontage as in their opinion would be just.

846. Municipal buildings.

SEC. 80. The cost and expense of a city hall and other buildings for the use of the city, and its officers, engine houses and structures of the fire department, water-works, city prison, levees and embankments, including the necessary land for said purposes, shall be paid for from the proper general fund of the city; except that, in case of lands appropriated for streets and rights of way, the cost thereof may be paid in whole or in part from the proceeds of a special assessment levied therefor in the manner herein prescribed. Whenever, in the opinion of the city council, the benefits thereof are special, rather than general or public, the cost and expense of any local improvements may be defrayed in whole or in part by special assessment upon the lands abutting upon and adjacent to or otherwise benefited by such improvement. Such special assessment may be made in the manner herein-after specified.

847. Special assessments, ordinance for.

SEC. 81. When the city council shall determine to make any public improvements or repairs, in the laying of pavements or constructing sidewalks or in any way improving the streets in the city, and shall determine to defray the whole or any part of the cost and expenses thereof by special assessment, they shall so declare by ordinance, stating the improvement and what part or portion of the expense thereof shall be paid by special assessment, and what part, if any, has been or is proposed to be appropriated from the general fund of the city, or from the street fund or district street fund, and whether the assessment is to be made according to benefits or frontage, and, in case the assessment is to be made according to benefits, they shall by apt description designate the district including the lands to be so assessed; or in case there is no district so set apart they shall describe definitely the location of the improvement and state that the assessment is to be made upon all the lands benefited thereby proportionately to the benefits received; but in case the assessment is to be upon the property upon a frontage basis, it shall be sufficient for said ordinance to so state and to define the location of the improvements to be made. It shall not be necessary in any case to describe minutely in the ordinance each particular lot to be assessed, but simply to so designate the property, district or the location that the various parts to be assessed can be ascertained and described by the city assessor.

848. Estimates first to be had—Notice of, how given.

SEC. 82. Before ordering any public improvement or repairs as provided in the last preceding section, any part of the expense of which is to be defrayed by special assessment, the council shall cause estimates of the expense thereof to be made, and also plats and diagrams, when practicable, of the work and of the locality to be improved, and shall file such plats and diagrams with the city clerk for public examination; and they shall give notice thereof and of the proposed improvement, or work, of the location of the improvement and of the district to be assessed, by publication for at least two weeks in some newspaper published in said city and by posting notices of the same in at least three public places in each ward, and also by posting a notice in or near the postoffice of said city, and by posting notices in three public places near the site of said proposed work. Said notices shall state the time when the council will meet and consider any suggestions and objections that may be made by parties in interest with respect to the proposed improvements. Unless the owners of more than one-half of the frontage to be assessed shall file written objections thereto, no such improvement or work shall be ordered. As amended, Stats. 1909, 61.

849. Special assessments.

SEC. 83. In all cases where the board of health, or other officials of the city, or the city council are authorized to do, or cause to be done, certain things, the whole or any part of the cost of which may be properly defrayed by a special assessment, and where special provisions for making the levy are not herein made, the council may cause sworn statements of the cost and location thereof to be made as provided in section 86 hereof, and may refer the same to the city assessor and have the same assessed against such property.

850. Limitation of cost to property owner.

SEC. 84. The cost and expense of any improvement which may be defrayed by special assessments shall include the cost of surveys, plans, assessments, and cost of construction. In no case shall the amount of any special assessment upon any lot or premises for any one improvement exceed twenty per cent of the value of such lot or premises as shown upon the latest tax list or assessment roll for state and county taxation. Any cost exceeding twenty per cent, which would otherwise be chargeable upon said lot or premises, shall be paid from the general funds of the city. The council shall provide that the fees and compensation properly charged in the work of making any special assessment shall be included as a part of such assessment.

851. Must be advertised.

SEC. 85. No contract for doing the work or making the improvement contemplated herein shall be made or awarded, nor shall the council incur any expense or liability in relation thereto, except for plats, diagrams, estimates and notices, until after the notice and hearing provided for herein shall have been given and had. But nothing herein contained shall be construed as preventing the council from advertising for proposals for doing the work whenever they see fit, provided the contract shall not be made or awarded before the time herein stated.

852. Pro rata assessments.

SEC. 86. When a special assessment is to be made pro rata upon the lots or premises in any special assessment district, according to frontage or benefits, the council shall, by ordinance, direct such special assessment to be made by the city assessor, and shall state therein the amount to be assessed, and whether according to frontage or benefits, and describe or designate the lots and premises or the locality constituting the district to be assessed; in fixing the amount or sum of money that may be required to pay the costs of any improvement, the council need not necessarily be governed by the estimates of the costs of such improvement provided for herein, but the council may fix such other sum, within the limits prescribed, as they may deem necessary to cover the cost of such improvement.

853. Assessment roll.

SEC. 87. Upon the passage of such ordinance, the city assessor shall prepare an assessment roll, entering and describing therein all lots, premises and portions of land to be assessed, with the names of the persons, if known, chargeable with the assessments thereon, and shall levy thereon the amount to be assessed in the manner directed by the council and the provisions of this act applicable to the assessment; provided, in all cases where the ownership thereof is unknown to the assessor, he shall, in lieu of the name of the owner, insert the word "unknown"; provided, also, if by mistake or otherwise any person shall be improperly designated as the owner of any lot or premises, or if the same shall be assessed without the name of the owner, or in the name of a person other than the owner, such assessment shall not for that reason be vitiated, but shall, in all respects, be as valid upon and against such lot, parcel of land or premises as though assessed in the name of the owner thereof, and when the assessment roll shall have been approved, such assessment shall become a lien on such lot, parcel of land or premises, and collected as provided by law.

854. Frontage assessment.

SEC. 88. If the assessment be made upon the basis of frontage, the city assessor shall assess each lot or parcel of land with such relative portion of the whole amount to be levied as the length of front of such premises abutting upon the improvement bears to the whole frontage of all the lots to be assessed; unless on account of the shape or size of any lot or lots an assessment for a different number of feet would be more equitable; and the frontage of all lots to be assessed shall be deemed to be the aggregate number of feet as determined upon for assessment by the city assessor. If the assessment is directed to be according to benefits, the city assessor shall assess upon each lot such relative portion of the whole sum to be levied as shall be proportionate to the estimated benefit resulting to such lot from the improvement.

855. Assessor's certificate, form:

SEC. 89. When the assessor shall have completed the assessment he shall report the same to the council. Such report shall be signed by him and made in the form of a certificate endorsed on the assessment roll, as follows:

And the provisions of the previous sections hereof, with reference to special assessments generally and the proceedings necessary to be had before making the improvement, shall not apply to the assessments to cover the expense incurred, in respect to the class of improvements contemplated in this section.

857. Council to determine proportion.

SEC. 91. The council shall determine what amount or part of every expense shall be charged as a special assessment and the premises upon which the same shall be levied; and as often as the council shall deem it expedient they shall require all of the several amounts so reported and determined, and the several lots or premises chargeable therewith respectively to be reported by the city clerk to the city assessor for assessment.

858. Notice to be published—Objection, how made—Form of notice.

SEC. 92. Upon receiving the report mentioned in the preceding section the city assessor shall make a special assessment roll and levy a special assessment therein upon each lot or parcel of land so reported to him, the whole amount or amounts of all the charges so directed as aforesaid to be levied upon each of such lots or premises, respectively, and when completed he shall report the assessment roll to the council. When any special assessment shall be reported by the city assessor to the council, as in this section directed, the same shall be filed in the office of the city clerk and numbered. Before adopting the assessment the city council shall cause notice to be published for at least two weeks in some newspaper published in such city of the filing of the same with the city clerk, and appointing a time when the council and assessor will meet to review the assessments. Any person objecting to the assessment may file his objections thereto in writing with the city clerk. The notice provided for in this section may be addressed to the persons whose names appear upon the assessment roll and to all others interested therein, and may be in the following form:

The interest on said bonds shall be due and payable at the same periods of time of the year that the coupons attached to said bonds were due and payable. Whenever at any time after the payment of the accrued interest on said outstanding bonds there shall be in said redemption fund the sum of five hundred dollars or more, it shall be the duty of said treasurer to give ten days' public notice that sealed proposals, directed to him, will be received for the surrender of indebtedness payable from said fund, which sealed proposals shall be received by him at any time before the next regular meeting of the board of county commissioners held after the giving of said notice. Said notice shall be given by publication thereof in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one; if not, then by posting such notice in five public places of the town or city, the funds of which it is proposed to use in making the redemption mentioned in such notice. As amended, Stats. 1883, 111.

884. Treasurer to deliver proposals to board of commissioners.

SEC. 8. At the first regular meeting of the board of county commissioners after expiration of such notice, the said county treasurer shall deliver to the board all of the sealed proposals received by him up to that date. Said board of county commissioners shall thereupon open all of said sealed proposals, examine the same, and cause copies thereof to be entered in the record of their proceedings, and shall accept the lowest bid or bids for the surrender of the indebtedness offered, to the extent of the sum mentioned in such notice; provided, that no bid shall be considered which is not accompanied with the evidence of indebtedness proposed to be surrendered. No bid for more than par value shall be accepted, nor shall any proposal be withdrawn after it has been delivered to the treasurer.

885. Duties of officers relative to acceptance of bids.

SEC. 9. When any bid or bids are accepted as provided in the last section, the clerk of the board of county commissioners and county treasurer shall each take a description of the evidences of the indebtedness to be redeemed, specifying the amount to be paid for each of the same, date, number and amount thereof, and make a record of the same in their respective offices, and thereupon the board of county commissioners shall direct said treasurer to pay the indebtedness designated in the accepted bid or bids, and said treasurer shall pay the same, and shall immediately cancel the evidences of indebtedness so paid by him by writing across the face thereof, in red ink, "Redeemed," adding thereto the time when the same was redeemed and the amount paid therefor; and shall sign the same officially. Such canceled evidences of indebtedness shall be sufficient vouchers for the county treasurer in the settlement of his accounts. But, in case that any of the bonds that are offered for redemption shall be of a greater denomination than the amount of money in the redemption fund, the treasurer shall, upon the presentation of said bond or bonds, pay over to the holder of the same the amount of money so advertised, and for which he shall take his receipt. He shall also indorse upon the back of said bond, in red ink, the amount of money so paid as being for so much on the principal of said bond, after which time said bond shall only bear interest upon the amount of the principal due thereon.

Said receipts shall be sufficient vouchers for the county treasurer in the settlement of his accounts, and shall show the date that said money was paid, the amount, and to whom paid; also the number of the bond, the date of its issue, and to whom issued. The bid or bids specified in section 8 being equal, preference shall be given to those in which the greatest percentage is principal. That shall be deemed the lowest bid which offers the largest amount of indebtedness, including principal and interest, for the smallest percentage in amount of money. When two or more bids shall be equal in every respect, each shall be accepted, pro rata, as near as possible. The county treasurer shall return, on demand, to the proper parties, all unaccepted bids, with the evidences of indebtedness which accompanied the same. This act shall be in force and effect from and after its passage. As amended, Stats. 1883, 112.

All commitments of imprisonment shall be directed to the sheriff of the county, and all fees or fines collected be paid to the county treasurer of the proper county, to be by him distributed to the proper fund of said town or city.

This act so far supersedes the act incorporating the city of Virginia (Stats. 1881, p. 79) that the office of city jailer in said

And such officer shall receive for his services such sum as may be fixed by the board of county commissioners, not to exceed one hundred ($100) dollars per month, except the chief of police, who shall receive not to exceed one hundred and fifty ($150) dollars per month.

889. County treasurer's liability and duties.

No officer performing any duty under this act, excepting the board of county commissioners, officers, and employees of any fire department or company, or peace officer thereunder authorized, shall demand or receive any compensation therefor. All such officers shall pay all fees or moneys by them received under any law or ordinance touching the provisions of this act, in time and manner as by general law provided, to the county treasurer of their respective counties, to be by him distributed to the fund of the proper town or city.

891. Commissioners to hold meetings—Special meetings—Quorum.

SEC. 15. The board of county commissioners of any county in this state, having jurisdiction of the affairs of any town or city, as in this act provided, shall hold a regular meeting in the court house, at the county-seat, at least once in each month, on a day previously fixed by them, for the purpose of transacting the business provided for in this act, and shall continue in session from day to day until such business is completed. They may also hold special meetings, upon a call of the chairman of the board, or a majority of the members thereof. A majority of said board shall be necessary to constitute a quorum, and a vote of the majority of the whole board shall be necessary to carry any question. When a petition is filed the genuineness of its signatures and the qualification of its subscribers shall be established by the affidavits of reliable taxpayers of said town or city filed with such petition. As amended, Stats. 1887, 117.

988. Providing for redemption and interest.

989. Commissioners to supervise work.

990. In case of incorporation.

984. May issue bonds for sewerage systems.

SECTION 1. For the purpose of constructing sewerage systems within their respective limits, and waste mains therefrom, any unincorporated city or town within this state, which is being or may hereafter be governed under the provisions of an act of the legislature of this state entitled "An act providing for the government of towns and cities within this state," approved February 26, 1881, and acts amendatory thereof, are hereby authorized to issue bonds in the amount and manner hereinafter set forth and prescribed.

See secs. 877-893.

985. Amount limited—Denomination.

SEC. 2. Said bonds shall not in any such city or town at any time exceed the sum and amount of sixty thousand dollars ($60,000); they shall be of convenient denominations, ranging from one hundred dollars ($100) to one thousand dollars ($1,000), and shall bear interest at the rate of not more than six (6) per cent per annum, the interest on each bond to be payable annually, beginning on the third Monday in January of the second year after such bond shall have been issued, and upon the same date in each succeeding year during the life of such bond. The bonds shall be numbered consecutively and have interest coupons attached in such manner that they can be removed upon payment of the installments of interest without injury to the bonds. The bonds shall be signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners, acting as a city or town board, and countersigned by the clerk of said board. The bonds shall be distinctively known as "----- Sewerage Bonds," the name of the city or town issuing them being inserted before the word "Sewerage."

986. Special election to determine.

SEC. 3. Before issuing the said bonds the board of county commissioners, acting as such city or town board, shall publish a notice for at least three consecutive weeks in some daily newspaper published in said city or town, calling for a special election by the legally qualified electors of said city or town to determine whether such bonds shall issue. If there be no daily newspaper published in such city or town, the said notice shall be posted in at least three conspicuous places within the limits of such city or town, for the same length of time, and if there be a weekly newspaper published in such city or town, the said notice shall also be published in each issue of said weekly newspaper during the period of posting. The notice shall state specifically the amount of the proposed bond issue, the rate of interest the bonds are to bear, the time and manner of their payment, and that they are for the construction of a sewerage system.

987. Ballots—Bonds issued, when.

SEC. 4. The board shall cause a sufficient number of ballots to be printed which shall bear the words "Sewerage Bonds—Yes," and "Sewerage Bonds—No," printed thereon in parallel lines, one above the other. The voter will scratch out the "Yes" if opposed to the bonds, or the "No" if in favor of their issue. The election shall be conducted and the votes canvassed, in all essential particulars as in other city and town elections. If a majority of all the votes cast are in favor of the issue of the bonds, the board of county commissioners, acting as such city or town board, shall proceed at once to issue them as rapidly as needed, in conformity with the provisions of this act. Said bonds shall be sold at not less than their par value, and shall be redeemable, in the order of their issue, not less than three years or more than fifteen (15) years from the date of their issue respectively.

988. Providing for redemption and interest.

SEC. 5. To provide for the payment of the said bonds and the interest thereon the board of county commissioners shall, at the time of the regular tax levy for state and county purposes, levy an additional tax upon all property real and personal, within the limits of such city or town, sufficient, in their judgment, to pay the interest upon such bonds annually as it becomes due, and the principal at such a rate as will redeem all of the bonds within fifteen (15) years from the date of issue. In each case the fifteen (15) years shall begin to run from the date of the particular bond to be paid. The said taxes shall be assessed and collected the same as other taxes, paid to the county treasurer, and by him placed in a fund to be known as the "----- Sewerage Fund" with the name of the city or town preceding the word "Sewerage."

989. Commissioners to supervise work.

SEC. 6. All sewerage systems constructed under the provisions of this act shall be so constructed under the supervision and control of the board of county commissioners, acting as such city or town board. The materials may be purchased and the work caused to be done directly by the board, or it may advertise for plans and specifications, and bids for construction as in cases of other public works.

990. In case of incorporation.

SEC. 7. In all cases wherein such sewerage systems are constructed in unincorporated cities and towns, and such cities and towns are afterwards incorporated, the control and management of such systems shall at once be vested in the municipal governments of such cities and towns. If such cities or towns shall be incorporated while the work of construction is in progress, the work shall, nevertheless, be carried on to completion by the board of county commissioners, and when completed the system shall be turned over to the city or town government as it shall have been organized. It shall then be the duty of such city or town government to provide for the payment of the principal and interest upon said bonds, by the levy and collection of taxes as prescribed by law. It shall be the duty of the county treasurer having custody of the sewerage funds to turn such funds over to the city treasurer immediately upon the qualification of the city treasurer, and the bonds, principal and interest shall then be paid by the city government in all respects as prescribed for their payment by the boards of county commissioners, acting as city or town boards.

If said assessments are not all paid by the proper owners against whom they are levied, at the end of fifty days from the time they become a lien, the said council shall pass an ordinance directing the issuance of the bonds herein provided, fixing their form, declaring the amount remaining unpaid, denominations and interest, the lots or parcels of land against which the said assessments remaining unpaid in whole or in part are a lien and the names of the owners thereof, where known, with the amounts due from each, and directing that the said unpaid assessments or portions thereof shall thereafter be paid as follows: One-tenth one year from the expiration of said fifty days, and one-tenth at the end of each year thereafter until the same is paid in full. Each of the said installments shall bear interest from the end of the said fifty days until due at the same rate of interest as that provided for in the bonds, payable annually, which rate shall be fixed by the ordinance. Any delinquent installment shall bear interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum until paid. Such installments and the interest thereon shall be and remain a lien on the said lots and parcels until paid and shall be collected in the same manner as other delinquent special assessments.

994. Sinking fund.

SEC. 4. Said installments and interest, when collected, shall constitute a sinking fund for the payment of said bonds and interest thereon, and said fund shall not be used for any other purpose.

In any case where a special assessment is now, or may hereafter be, levied by any city or town to pay for any street improvement, and said assessment has not been paid in full, and the issuance of bonds to pay for such improvement has not theretofore been authorized by law, or by the council, the council may, by ordinance, upon the written petition of one or more property owners, whose unpaid assessments shall aggregate at least one thousand dollars, provide that the assessments, or portions thereof, of said petitioners then unpaid shall be paid in installments in the manner set forth in section 3 of this act, and direct the issuance of bonds to pay for the same, as provided in this act. Such ordinance shall fix the form of the bonds, the denominations and interest; and such bonds shall be payable in any period not exceeding ten years, and the interest shall not exceed seven per cent per annum.

997. Proceedings regular.

SEC. 7. The issuance of the bonds, herein provided for, shall be conclusive evidence of the regularity of all proceedings up to the issuance of such bonds.

998. May be paid from general fund, when.

SEC. 8. In event that the fund created by special assessment shall be insufficient to pay the said bonds as they become due, the deficiency shall be paid by the city out of the general fund, and each of the bonds issued under this act shall contain a provision of this effect.

SECTION 1. Conveyances of lands, or of any estate or interest therein, may be made by deed, signed by the person from whom the estate or interest is intended to pass, being of lawful age, or by his lawful agent or attorney, and acknowledged or proved, and recorded, as hereinafter directed.

A deed of conveyance, executed and delivered, carries the absolute title to the grantee.

When the purchaser of real property agrees with the vendor to pay certain incumbrances upon it, as a part of the consideration of the conveyance, the person holding such incumbrance, or the person to whom such payment is to be made, may maintain an action upon such promise. Ruhling v. Hackett, 1 Nev. 360.

Parties usually describe what is intended to be conveyed in the granting clause of the deed. Courts should not interpret deeds so as to carry more than is mentioned in that clause, unless the intent to carry more is clearly shown in other portions of the deed. McCurdy v. Alpha M. Co., 3 Nev. 27.

Cited, Sargent v. Collins, 3 Nev. 285.

If the recitals of a sheriff's deed are sufficient to show he is acting in his official character and by due authority of law, it becomes a good deed on being signed and delivered, without reference to acknowledgment. In re Smith, 4 Nev. 254 (97 A. D. 531).

Act cited generally. Sargent v. Collins, 3 Nev. 285.

A deed made prior to enactment of this act, but acknowledged as provided therein, is admissible in evidence. Sharon v. Davidson, 4 Nev. 416, 420.

Cited, Ford v. Hoover, 5 Nev. 146.

A person entering upon a tract of land under a deed with definite boundaries, is presumed by the mere act of entry so made to intend to claim the entire tract. Sharon v. Minnock, 6 Nev. 377.

A deed absolute on its face may be shown to be a mortgage. Parol evidence for such purpose is not evidence contradicting the instrument, but evidence to create an equity superior to the deed. The proof should be clear, satisfactory and convincing. Bingham v. Thompson, 4 Nev. 224; Saunders v. Stewart, 7 Nev. 200; Pierce v. Traver, 13 Nev. 526.

Rules of construction, to determine what was conveyed by certain deeds, applied. Fogus v. Ward, 10 Nev. 209; Langworthy v. Coleman, 18 Nev. 440.

A conveyance of land to Thomas Barnett & Bros. vests the legal title in Thomas Barnett alone, and a conveyance from him will give to his grantees a good and valid title. Barnett v. Lachman, 12 Nev. 361.

It is essential that the certificate should show the fact of the acknowledgment and the identity of the person.

The law does not require that the exact form of the certificate shall be followed. A substantial compliance therewith is sufficient.

Omission of word "be" in acknowledgment held to be a clerical error that should be disregarded. Johnson v. Badger M. Co., 13 Nev. 351, 353.

Description of tract of land by name held sufficient. Paroni v. Ellison, 14 Nev. 60.

A quit-claim deed conveys whatever interest the grantor has in the property at the time the conveyance is made. Harden v. Cullins, 8 Nev. 49; Brophy M. Co. v. Brophy & D. G. & S. M. Co., 15 Nev. 101.

S. held a deed of mining ground as a mortgage to secure an existing indebtedness; he conveyed the premises to P., and after two or more transfers of the title, the property was redeeded to S.: Held, that when the title returned to S., the same equities attached to it in his hands as existed at the time he made the conveyance to P. Brophy M. Co. v. B. & D. G. & S. M. Co., 15 Nev. 101.

Parol evidence is admissible to ascertain the identification of property described in a conveyance. Brown v. Warren, 16 Nev. 229.

A conveyance by the owner of an alley and adjoining lots of part of them, describing them as fronting on a certain street, and running back to said alley, carries title to the middle of the alley, with an easement of way over the other half. Lindsay v. Jones, 21 Nev. 72 (25 P. 297).

SEC. 20. No covenant, expressed or implied, in any such conveyance, shall bind such married woman or her heirs, except so far as may be necessary effectually to convey from such married woman and her heirs all her rights and interest expressed to be conveyed in such conveyance.

1037. Acknowledgments of married woman.

SEC. 21. Any officer authorized by this act to take the proof or acknowledgment of any conveyance whereby any real estate is conveyed, or may be affected, may take and certify the acknowledgment of a married woman to any such conveyance of real estate.

[Secs. 22 and 23, repealed by Stats. 1909, 272.]

The testimony of a notary who has taken an acknowledgment which conforms to the statute, when called as witness, is not entitled to any greater weight than his certificate. Musgrove v. Waitz, 14 Nev. 77, 78.

An assignment of a note and mortgage upon real estate is not such a contract respecting real estate as is required to be acknowledged by a married woman separate and apart from her husband. Cartan v. David, 18 Nev. 330 (4 P. 61).

1038. All conveyances recorded.

SEC. 24. Every conveyance of real estate, and every instrument of writing setting forth an agreement to convey any real estate, or whereby any real estate may be affected, proved, acknowledged, and certified in the manner prescribed in this act, to operate as notice to third persons, shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which such real estate is situated, but shall be valid and binding between the parties thereto without such record.

The deposit for record of a revocation of a power of attorney in proper office, operates as a notice to all parties dealing with the attorney. By such deposit, the revocation becomes absolute without actual notice to the attorney. Arnold v. Stevenson, 2 Nev. 234-240.

Cited, Levy v. Ryland, 32 Nev. 460 (109 P. 910).

1039. Record to be notice to whom.

SEC. 25. Every such conveyance or instrument of writing, acknowledged or proved and certified, and recorded in the manner prescribed in this act, shall, from the time of filing the same with the recorder for record, impart notice to all persons of the contents thereof; and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees shall be deemed to purchase and take with notice.

It is not using due diligence to rely solely on the assertion of the vendor of the land that another person has no equity therein. Crosier v. McLaughlin, 1 Nev. 348.

The purpose of the record of a mortgage is simply to give notice and to prevent parties who hold encumbered real estate from imposing on innocent purchasers or subsequent mortgagees. Virgin v. Brubaker, 4 Nev. 32.

Possession is not notice of an unrecorded defeasance. Fair v. Howard, 6 Nev. 304; Brophy v. B. & D. M. Co., 15 Nev. 101.

Actual notice dispenses with constructive notice. A purchaser with actual notice is not a purchaser in good faith of the estate previously conveyed. Gilson v. Boston, 11 Nev. 413.

The recording of the seal to a deed is not absolutely essential. If the original document cannot be produced, and the record thereof is offered in evidence, the existence of the seal will be presumed from the statement in the deed that the grantor did set his hand and affix his seal thereto, and from the attestation clause that it was signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of the witnesses. Flowers M. Co. v. N. B. M. Co., 16 Nev. 302.

Information which makes it the duty of a party to make inquiry, and shows where it may be made, is notice of all facts to which such inquiry would naturally lead. The law necessarily imputes to a litigant knowledge of a fact of which the exercise of ordinary prudence and diligence must have apprised him. Burbank v. Rivers, 20 Nev. 159 (18 P. 753).

Where a deed intended as a mortgage is recorded, and no defeasance appears of record, a bona fide purchaser from the grantee acquires an absolute title, free from the equity of redemption of the mortgagee. Gruber v. Baker, 20 Nev. 453 (9 L. R. A. 302, 23 P. 858).

See Arnold v. Stevenson under sec. 24 of this act.

Our statute has no provisions similar to those of New York under which, in that state, it is held that the record of a deed, absolute upon its face, though intended as a mortgage, gives no notice to a subsequent mortgagee.

In this state both subsequent purchasers and mortgagees have constructive notice of every properly recorded conveyance affecting real estate.

Where the owner of real estate made a deed of the same absolute on its face, but intended as a mortgage, and the same was recorded as a deed, and afterwards he made a formal mortgage upon the same property: Held, that the latter instrument was taken with constructive notice of and subject to the lien of the former.

The matter of constructive notice by the record of conveyance is entirely a creature of statute, and its effect is to be gathered from construction of the statute. Grellet v. Heilshorn, 4 Nev. 526, 527, 531.

The record of a deed only imparts notice of the contents thereof to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees, and not to persons who claim by entirely independent right and title. Sharon v. Minnock, 6 Nev. 378, 390; Wilson v. Wilson, 23 Nev. 267, 273 (45 P. 1009).

The record is not notice of anything not contained in the deed. Idem.

A wife who has filed a declaration of homestead on community property is not affected with notice of a prior recorded mortgage executed by her husband which misdescribes the property. Adams v. Baker, 24 Nev. 162 (77 A. S. 799, 51 P. 252).

Cited, State ex rel. Title Co. v. Grimes, 29 Nev. 50, 56, 85 (5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 545; 124 A. S. 883, 84 P. 1061).

1040. When not recorded void as against whom.

SEC. 26. Every conveyance of real estate within this territory hereafter made, which shall not be recorded as provided in this act, shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, of the same real estate, or any portion thereof, where his own conveyance shall be first duly recorded.

The open and notorious possession by a grantor, after sale and conveyance of property, is not sufficient to impart notice, to a subsequent purchaser for value, of any unrecorded defeasance. (Hawley, J.). Brophy M. Co. v. Brophy & D. G. & S. M. Co., 15 Nev. 110.

1041. Powers of attorney.

SEC. 27. Every power of attorney, or other instrument in writing, containing the power to convey any real estate, as agent or attorney for the owner thereof, or to execute, as agent or attorney for another, any conveyance whereby any real estate is conveyed, or may be affected, shall be acknowledged, or proved and certified, and recorded as other conveyances whereby real estate is conveyed or affected, are required to be acknowledged or proved, and certified and recorded.

See Arnold v. Stevenson, under sec. 24 of this act.

1042. Revocation of power.

SEC. 28. No such power of attorney or other instrument, certified and recorded in the manner prescribed in the preceding section, shall be deemed to be revoked by any act of the party by whom it was executed, until the instrument containing such revocation shall be deposited for record in the same office in which the instrument containing the power is recorded.

See Arnold v. Stevenson, under sec. 24 of this act.

1043. Evidence of conveyance.

SEC. 29. Every conveyance, or other instrument, conveying or affecting real estate, which shall be acknowledged, or proved and certified, as hereinafter prescribed, may, together with the certificate of acknowledgment, or proof, be read in evidence without further proof.

1044. Record evidence of, when lost.

SEC. 30. When any such state or United States contract or patent is recorded, or when any such conveyance or instrument is acknowledged or proved, certified, and recorded, in the manner in this act prescribed, the record thereof, or the transcript thereof, certified by the recorder, under the seal of his office, may be read in evidence without further proof. As amended, Stats. 1909, 271.

Cited, Reno Brewing Co. v. Packard, 31 Nev. 433, 441 (103 P. 415).

1045. Evidence may be rebutted.

SEC. 31. Neither the certificate of the acknowledgment nor of the proof of any such conveyance, or instrument, nor the record, nor the transcript of the record, of such conveyance, or instrument, shall be conclusive, but the same may be rebutted.

1046. Proof by other evidence.

SEC. 32. If the party contesting the proof of any such conveyance, or instrument, shall make it appear that any such proof was taken upon the oath of an incompetent witness, neither such conveyance, or instrument, nor the record thereof, shall be received in evidence, until established by other competent proof.

1047. Subsequent title passes to grantee.

SEC. 33. If any person shall convey any real estate, by conveyance purporting to convey the same in fee simple absolute, and shall not at the time of such conveyance have the legal estate in such real estate, but shall afterward acquire the same, the legal estate subsequently acquired shall immediately pass to the grantee, and such conveyance shall be valid as if such legal estate had been in the grantor at the time of the conveyance.

1048. Adverse possession does not prevent sale.

SEC. 34. Any person claiming title to any real estate may, notwithstanding there may be an adverse possession thereof, sell and convey his interest therein in the same manner and with the same effect as if he was in actual possession thereof.

This is a change of the common-law rule common law. Gruber v. Baker, 20 Nev. 485 as such transfers were interdicted by the (9 L. R. A. 302, 23 P. 858).

1049. Mortgages and liens, how discharged.

SEC. 35. Any mortgage or lien that has been or may hereafter be recorded, may be discharged or assigned by an entry on the margin of the record thereof, signed by the mortgagee or his personal representative or assignee, acknowledging the satisfaction of or value received for the mortgage or lien, and the debt secured thereby in the presence of the recorder or his deputy, who shall subscribe the same as a witness, and such entry shall have the same effect as a deed of release or assignment duly acknowledged and recorded. As amended, Stats. 1881, 23.

Mortgage marked satisfied by fraud or mistake still holds. Gibson v. Milne, 1 Nev. 526. Cited, Drexler v. Tyrrell, 15 Nev. 125.

1050. Discharge.

SEC. 36. Any mortgage shall also be discharged upon the record thereof by the recorder, in whose custody it shall be, whenever there shall be presented to him a certificate executed by the mortgagee, his personal representative or assignee, acknowledged, or approved and certified, as hereinbefore prescribed, to entitle conveyances to be recorded, specifying that such mortgage has been paid, or otherwise satisfied or discharged.

Cited, Drexler v. Tyrrell, 15 Nev. 125.

1051. Discharge to be recorded.

SEC. 37. Every such certificate, and the proof or acknowledgment thereof, shall be recorded at full length, and a reference shall be made to the book containing such record, in the minutes of the discharge of such mortgage, made by the recorder upon the record thereof.

1052. Penalty for failure to discharge.

SEC. 38. If any mortgagee, or his personal representative or assignee, as the case may be, after a full performance of the conditions of the mortgage, whether before or after a breach thereof, shall, for the space of seven days after being thereto requested, and after tender of his reasonable charges, refuse or neglect to execute and acknowledge a certificate of discharge or release thereof, he shall be liable to the mortgageor, his heirs or assigns, in the sum of one hundred dollars, and also for all actual damages occasioned by such neglect or refusal.

1053. Conveyances heretofore made.

SEC. 39. All conveyances of real estate heretofore made and acknowledged, or proved according to the laws in force at the time of such making and acknowledgment or proof, shall have the same force as evidence, and be recorded in the same manner, and with like effect, as conveyances executed and acknowledged in pursuance of this act.

See sec. 1021.

1054. Legality not affected.

SEC. 40. The legality of the execution, acknowledgment, proof, form or record of any conveyance, or other instrument, heretofore made, executed, acknowledged, proved or recorded, shall not be affected by anything contained in this act, but shall depend for its validity or legality upon the laws and customs then in existence and in force in the mining and agricultural districts.

See sec. 1021.

1055. Tenancy in common.

SEC. 41. Every interest in real estate granted or devised to two or more persons, other than executors and trustees, as such, shall be a tenancy in common, unless expressly declared in the grant or devise to be a joint tenancy.

Cited, Smith v. Shrieves, 13 Nev. 314, 315.

1056. Estate in fee simple presumed.

SEC. 42. The term heirs, or other words of inheritance, shall not be necessary to create or convey an estate in fee simple; and every conveyance of any real estate hereafter executed shall pass all the estate of the grantor, unless the intent to pass a less estate shall appear by express terms, or be necessarily implied in the terms of the grant.

1057. "Heir" or "issue" in remainders.

SEC. 43. Where a remainder in lands or tenements, goods or chattels, shall be limited by deed or otherwise, to take effect on the death of any person without heirs, or heirs of his or her body, or without issue, the word "heir," or "issue," shall be construed to mean heirs or issue living at the death of the person named as ancestor.

1059. Estate tail, posthumous child.

SEC. 45. Where an estate shall be by any conveyance limited, in remainder, to the son or daughter or issue, or to use of the son or daughter or issue of any person to be begotten, such son or daughter or issue, born after the decease of his or her father, shall take the estate in the same proportion, and in the same manner, as if he or she had been born in the lifetime of the father, although no estate shall have been created or conveyed to support the contingent remainder after his death.

1060. Attornments not necessary.

SEC. 46. Grants of rents, or of reversions, or remainders, shall be good and effectual without attornments of the tenants; but no tenant who, before notice of the grant, shall have paid rent to the grantor, shall suffer any damage thereby.

1061. Attornment, when void.

SEC. 47. The attornment of a tenant to a stranger shall be void unless it be with the consent of the landlord of such tenant, or in pursuance to, or in consequence of, a judgment or decree of some court of competent jurisdiction.

1062. Warrantees abolished.

SEC. 48. Lineal and collateral warrantees, with all their incidents, are abolished; but the heirs and devisees of every person who shall have made any covenant or agreement in reference to the title of, in, or to any real estate, shall be answerable upon such covenant or agreement to the extent of the land descended or devised to them, in the cases and in the manner prescribed by law.

1063. Import of "grant, bargain, and sell."

SEC. 49. The words "grant, bargain, and sell," in all conveyances hereafter to be made, in and by which any estate of inheritance or fee simple is to be passed, shall, unless restrained by express terms contained in such conveyances, be construed to be the following express covenants, and none other, on the part of the grantor, for himself and his heirs to the grantee, his heirs, and assigns: First—That previous to the time of the execution of such conveyance the grantor has not conveyed the same real estate, or any right title, or interest therein to any person other than the grantee. Second—That such real estate is, at the time of the execution of such conveyance, free from incumbrances, done, made, or suffered by the grantor, or any person claiming under him; and such covenants may be sued upon in the same manner as if they had been expressly inserted in the conveyance.

1064. Fraudulent conveyances, when void.

SEC. 50. Every conveyance of any estate, or interest in lands, or the rents and profits of lands, and every charge upon lands, or upon the rents and profits thereof, made and created, with the intent to defraud prior or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration, of the same lands, rents, or profits, as against such purchasers, shall be void.

1065. When fraudulent.

SEC. 51. No such conveyance, or charge, shall be deemed fraudulent in favor of a subsequent purchaser, who shall have legal notice thereof at the time of his purchase, unless it shall appear that the grantee in such conveyance, or person to be benefited by such charge, was privy to the fraud intended.

1066. Power of revocation at will.

SEC. 52. Every conveyance or charge of or upon any estate, or interest in lands, containing any provision for the revocation, determination, or alteration of such estate or interest, or any part thereof, at the will of the grantor, shall be void, as against subsequent purchasers from said grantor for a valuable consideration, of any estate, or interest, so liable to be revoked, or determined, although the same be not directly revoked, determined, or altered by such grantor, by virtue of the power reserved, or expressed in such prior conveyance or charge.

1067. Revocation and reconveyance.

Parol evidence cannot be heard to prove that a bill of sale (under seal) absolute on its face, was intended merely as an assignment in trust for the benefit of grantor's creditors unless in case of fraud or mistake.

To prove that a deed, absolute on its face, was given as a deed in trust, is not to prove a new and distinct contract, but is to vary and contradict the terms of the deed.

The rule that a deed, absolute on its face, may be proved to have been given as a mortgage, is an exception to the general rule, rests on peculiar reasons, and the proof to be introduced is of a peculiar nature.

Courts of equity may inquire into the objects which induced parties to enter into contracts, and may prevent a fraudulent use being made of them.

When an attempt is made to show that the object of a deed is different from that expressed on its face, the proof must be clear and conclusive; and there must also be satisfactory evidence that one of the parties has committed or is attempting to commit some fraud before the court will interfere. Feusier v. Sneath, 3 Nev. 120, 126.

A legal interest in land can only be conveyed by means of a deed of conveyance in writing. The right to the enjoyment and repair of a dam, and to have the water so diverted flow through certain land, is such an interest in land as can only be conveyed by deed in writing. Lobdell v. Hall, 3 Nev. 517, 521, 522.

An express trust cannot be created by parol, but all the facts and circumstances out of which an implied trust is raised may be so proved. White v. Sheldon, 4 Nev. 280.

Where an estate is purchased in the name of one person and the consideration is paid at the time by another, there is a resulting trust in favor of the latter. The consideration must be shown to have been advanced at the time the title was acquired, as the trust must be created when the title passes. Frederick v. Haas, 5 Nev. 389.

A declaration of trust as to land must be by deed or conveyance in writing. Such declaration may be made at any time, and need not be made at the time of the creation of the trust. Sime v. Howard, 4 Nev. 473, 481.

A lease for a year need not be in writing, nor the power to execute it. Gilson v. Boston, 11 Nev. 413, 415.

A parol license is irrevocable after the party to whom the license is given has executed it or has expended money upon the faith of the license. The expenditure of money in consequence of the license has the effect of turning such license into an agreement that will be enforced in equity. The execution of the parol license supplies the place of a writing, and takes the case out of the statute. Lee v. McLeod, 12 Nev. 280.

This statute is intended for the protection of the respective parties to a parol agreement. Whenever one party proceeds so far in execution of a parol contract that he can have no adequate remedy unless the whole contract is specifically enforced, then equity requires such relief to be granted.

Nothing is to be considered as a part performance which does not put the party into a situation which is a fraud upon him, unless the agreement is fully performed.

To entitle a party to take the case out of a statute upon the ground of part performance, it is essential that the contract be clearly established. Before the contract can be enforced it must be shown that the party seeking its enforcement has performed, or offered to perform, all the essentials of the agreement on his part. Evans v. Lee, 12 Nev. 393.

A trust concerning lands created by act or operation of law may be proven by parol. If land is purchased in the name of one person and the consideration paid by another at the time the title was acquired, there is a resulting trust in favor of the latter, but the money must be paid at the time the title passed. Boskowitz v. Davis, 12 Nev. 457.

A leasehold interest is an interest in land. Adams v. Smith, 19 Nev. 272 (3 A. S. 888, 9 P. 337).

A constructive trust may be established by parol evidence, and in such case this statute does not apply. Bowler v. Curler, 21 Nev. 158, 161 (37 A. S. 501, 26 P. 226).

Unless partnership capital is employed in the acquisition of a mining claim, the partnership agreement, unless in writing, is within the statute of frauds. Craw v. Wilson, 22 Nev. 385, 389 (40 P. 1076).

Since it will be presumed till the contrary appears that a contract within the statute on which a suit is based is in writing, where the complaint is silent as to whether it is oral or written, to invoke the statute to defeat the action it must be pleaded by answer and cannot be raised by demurrer. Where a resulting trust is created by the purchase of lands in the name of one person for the joint benefit of himself and another, the contract on which it is based is not within the statute and need not be in writing. Levy v. Ryland, 32 Nev. 460 (109 P. 906).

1070. Idem—Not to apply to wills.

SEC. 56. The preceding section shall not be construed to affect in any manner the power of a testator in the disposition of his real estate, by a last will and testament, nor to prevent any trust from arising or being extinguished by implication or operation of law.

1071. Idem—Contracts in writing.

SEC. 57. Every contract for the leasing for a longer period than one year, or for the sale of any lands, or any interest in lands, shall be void, unless the contract, or some note or memorandum thereof, expressing the consideration, be in writing, and be subscribed by the party by whom the lease or sale is to be made.

1072. Idem—Agent to subscribe.

SEC. 58. Every instrument required to be subscribed by any person under the last preceding section may be subscribed by the agent of such party lawfully authorized.

1073. Specific performance.

SEC. 59. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to abridge the powers of courts to compel the specific performance of agreements in cases of part performance of such agreements.

See Evans v. Lee, 12 Nev. 393 under sec. 55 of this act.

for labor and services performed under a contract void by the statute of frauds. Lap- ham v. Osborne, 20 Nev. 168 (18 P. 881).

Recovery on quantum meruit may be had 1074. Trusts when void.

SEC. 60. All deeds of gift, conveyances, and all transfers or assignments, verbal or written, of goods, chattels, or things in action, made in trust for the use of the person making the same, shall be void as against the creditors, existing or subsequent, of such person.

1075. Statute of frauds—Agreements not in writing when void.

SEC. 61. In the following cases every agreement shall be void, unless such agreement, or some note or memorandum thereof, expressing the consideration, be in writing, and subscribed by the party charged therewith: First, every agreement that, by the terms, is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof; second, every special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another; third, every promise or undertaking made upon consideration of marriage, except mutual promises to marry.

An agreement by the purchaser of real property to pay certain incumbrances upon it is part of the consideration, and the person holding such incumbrance or the person to whom such payment is to be made may enforce such agreement. Such an agreement does not come within the statute and need not be in writing. Ruhling v. Hackett, 1 Nev. 360.

The promise and the consideration for that promise need not be contained in the same paper, provided the signature of the guarantor can be connected with both. Van Doren v. Tjader, 1 Nev. 380.

A guarantee of a promissory note must be in writing, and must express the consideration upon which it is based. Van Doren v. Tjader, 1 Nev. 380.

An agreement by a vendee of goods, in consideration of the sale to pay certain creditors of the vendor, is not within this statute. Alcada v. Morales, 3 Nev. 133, 137.

Where the condition precedent of a contract is the delivery and reception of chattels to be kept for two years, and there is no written agreement, the contract is void. Buckley v. Buckley, 9 Nev. 373, 381.

The law will not imply a contract which will be void if expressed. Capron v. Strout, 11 Nev. 313.

An undertaking, executed to the sheriff, and agreeing to satisfy any judgment that plaintiff in a certain action might recover, is not within the statute. Such an undertaking is not void, because the consideration is not expressed therein. Lightle v. Berning, 15 Nev. 389.

When a contract is fully executed on both sides the rights of the parties become fixed, and neither can interfere with the same by pleading the statute. Cartan v. David, 18 Nev. 311 (4 P. 61).

A promise by plaintiff to intervener to take up the debt due him from defendant if intervener would not record his mortgage, was void under this section, there being no evidence of the promise in writing and it also appearing that the intervener did not, in consideration of the promise, release any of his security against defendant. Simpson v. Harris, 21 Nev. 353, 365 (31 P. 1009).

An agreement between defendant bank and a hay dealer, whereby the bank must collect for sales of hay, and from the proceeds pay checks given by the dealer for the purchase price thereof, and such agreement was communicated by the bank to plaintiff, who, relying thereon, sold hay to said dealer, is not within the statute. Wills v. Bank of Nevada, 23 Nev. 59 (42 P. 490).

1076. Idem—Sale of goods.

SEC. 62. Every contract for the sale of any goods, chattels, or things in action, for the price of fifty dollars or over, shall be void unless: First, a note or memorandum of such contract be made in writing, and be subscribed by the parties to be charged therewith; or, second, unless the buyer shall accept or receive part of such goods, or the evidences, or some of them, of such things in action; or, third, unless the buyer shall, at the time, pay some part of the purchase money.

A contract for the manufacture of an article as distinguished from the sale, does not come within this section. O'Neil v. N. Y. & S. P. M. Co., 3 Nev. 141, 144, 145.

1077. Idem—Auction sale.

SEC. 63. Whenever goods shall be sold at auction, and the auctioneer shall, at the time of the sale, enter in a sale-book a memorandum specifying the nature and price of the property sold, the terms of the sale, the name of the purchaser, and the name of the person on whose account the sale is made, such memorandum shall be deemed a note of the contract of sale, within the meaning of the last section.

1078. Sale, when evidence of fraud.

SEC. 64. Every sale made by a vendor of goods and chattels in his possession, or under his control, and every assignment of goods and chattels, unless the same be accompanied by an immediate delivery, and be followed by an actual and continued change of possession of things sold or assigned, shall be conclusive evidence of fraud, as against the creditors of the vendor, or the creditors of the person making such assignment, or subsequent purchasers in good faith.

Sales of merchandise, secs. 3908-3912.

An agreement by the purchaser of real property, as a part of the consideration of the conveyance, with the vendor, to pay certain incumbrances upon it, does not come within the statute, and need not be in writing. Ruhling v. Hackett, 1 Nev. 360.

Delivery of possession may be either actual or constructive; actual delivery is contemplated unless such delivery be impossible or extremely inconvenient, in which case a symbolical delivery is sufficient. Doak v. Brubaker, 1 Nev. 218, 222, 224.

Facts constituting immediate delivery and continued change of possession. Carpenter v. Clark, 2 Nev. 243, 245-248.

A mere request made to a servant of the vendor who has the property in actual possession, to keep it for the vendee, without any removal or change in the situation of the property, is not an actual delivery or change of possession. Sharon v. Shaw, 2 Nev. 289, 292, 293.

Facts held not to constitute delivery. The want of an immediate delivery and an actual and continued change of possession, is conclusive evidence of fraud against the creditors of the vendor, and it makes no difference whether such creditors have notice of an attempted sale or not. Lawrence v. Burnham, 4 Nev. 361, 366, 368 (17 A. D. 540).

In an action against an officer to recover personal property seized by him on execution against a third person from whom plaintiff claimed to have purchased and received possession previous to the seizure: Held, that it was competent for plaintiff to show his acts of ownership after the sale.

To show a continued change of possession, nothing generally can have a more direct tendency than the control or management of the property or acts of ownership exercised over it by the vendee. Conway v. Edwards, 6 Nev. 190.

Facts sufficient to establish actual and continued change of possession. On a question as to the validity of a sale of personal property where the fact of the sale and change of possession was established, it was held that the declarations of the vendor made after such sale and change of possession were mere hearsay evidence, and not admissible to impeach or defeat the sale. Lewis v. Wilcox, 6 Nev. 215.

Facts constituting a valid sale and delivery. Where goods were sold and the vendee took possession at a time subsequent to the sale but before the levy of an attachment, it was held that the delivery before the attachment validated the sale.

A mere creditor is not in a position to attack a sale of goods on the ground of want of delivery and change of possession; before he can do so he must acquire a lien by attachment or otherwise. Clute v. Steele, 6 Nev. 338, 339.

The vendee must take actual possession of the property and the possession must be open, unequivocal, substantial and continuous, and must not be taken to be surrendered back. When it appears after the purchase, that the vendee exercised such acts of ownership as is usual for persons who own the same species of property, and that it was at all times after the purchase under his direction and control and was in his charge at the time of the levy, and had not been in the possession of either of the vendors, it was held that there was a change of possession. Gray v. Sullivan, 10 Nev. 416.

To take the case out of the statute, the vendee must take actual possession of the property; the possession must be open, unequivocal, substantial and continuous, and must be taken not to be surrendered back. Gray v. Sullivan, 10 Nev. 416; Twist v. Kelly, 11 Nev. 377; Estey v. Cooke, 12 Nev. 276.

The mere fact of the reemployment of the clerk of the vendor by the vendees does not render a sale of personal property invalid. Ivanovich v. Stern, 14 Nev. 342.

The employment of the vendor in a subordinate capacity is only colorable and not conclusive evidence of fraud. Gray v. Sullivan, 10 Nev. 416, 432.

To entitle a party to the character of a bona fide purchaser, without notice, he must have acquired the legal title and have actually paid the purchase money before receiving notice of the equity of another party. Moresi v. Swift, 15 Nev. 215, 228.

Facts held sufficient to constitute a change of possession. Tognini v. Kyle, 17 Nev. 209, 212 (45 A. R. 442, 30 P. 829).

Facts held not sufficient to constitute delivery and change of possession. Wilson v. Hill, 17 Nev. 402, 406 (30 P. 1076).

A delivery of a bill of sale is not even symbolical delivery of personal property described therein. Comaiti v. Kyle, 19 Nev. 38 (5 P. 666).

Delivery of the possession of inclosed land carries with it possession of the personal property—wood and coal—thereon. Ferraris v. Kyle, 19 Nev. 435 (14 P. 529).

An agent bought for his principals all ores of a mine to be delivered when loaded on wagon at mine. Ores thus loaded and delivered to a carrier, consigned to the agent; and a bill of lading in the agent's name was sent to him. Held, that the title passed when ores were delivered to the carrier. West v. Humphrey, 21 Nev. 80 (25 P. 446).

The object of this section is the prevention of fraud, and what will amount to change of possession must be determined in each case, having relation to the character and situation of the property at the time of sale. Where the possession of a buyer is not a concurrent or joint possession with the seller, but is exclusive, the sale is not fraudulent. Hoffman v. Owens, 31 Nev. 481, 488, 491 (103 P. 414).

1079. Creditor defined.

SEC. 65. The term "creditors," as used in the last section, shall be construed to include all persons who shall be creditors of the vendor or assignor at any time while such goods and chattels shall remain in his possession or under his control.

1080. Possession of mortgaged property—Authorized to sell—Lien—Chattel mortgages recorded.

SEC. 66. No mortgage of personal property shall be valid for any purpose against any other person than the parties thereto, unless possession of the mortgaged property be delivered to, and retained by, the mortgagee, or, unless the mortgage shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where the property is situated, and also in the county where the mortgageor resides. A mortgage upon personal property, including growing crops, executed, acknowledged and recorded, shall be valid against all third parties without such delivery of possession; provided, that no such mortgage shall be valid for any purpose as against other than the parties thereto, unless there be appended or annexed thereto the affidavits of the mortgageor and mortgagee, or some person in their behalf, setting forth that the mortgage is made in good faith, and given for a debt actually owing from the mortgageor, stating the amount and character of such debt, and that the same is not made to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of the mortgageor. Any personal property, mortgaged as aforesaid, may be seized under attachment or execution, and the surplus, over and above the mortgage debt, secured to any other creditor of the mortgageor by serving upon the mortgageor and mortgagee, or, in his absence from the county, upon his or their agent or other person in charge or possession of such personal property, a copy of the attachment or execution, or, in case no such person can be found in the county in charge or possession thereof, then by filing a copy of the writ of attachment or execution in the office of [the] county recorder of the county where such property is situate, with a notice endorsed thereon by the officer executing the same, to the effect that such property is so attached. But the possession of mortgaged personal property shall not be taken from the mortgageor or mortgagee unless full payment of the mortgagee's demand be first made, which, if done by the attaching or executing creditor of the mortgageor, shall entitle him to hold such personal property and the possession thereof, under his levy for repayment to him of the amount so paid, in addition to his own individual demand; and any officer executing any execution is hereby authorized to sell such property for the amount of such mortgage demand, in addition to the amount of the execution, and out of the proceeds of sale to first satisfy such mortgage demand. In case of such levy of attachment or execution upon such mortgaged personal property, when the amount of the mortgage demand is not paid to the mortgagee, the officer may expose such property for sale, and may sell the same subject to the rights of the mortgagee under the mortgage, and the purchaser shall take the property subject to such rights and subject to the possession of the parties to the mortgage. The lien of a mortgagee upon a growing crop shall continue until after the crop shall be harvested and threshed or baled, or otherwise prepared for market, and delivered to the mortgagee or his order; provided, that a chattel mortgage upon a growing crop may be executed as well before as after the crop is planted, and when executed before the crop is planted, it shall be expressed in the mortgage that it is the intention of the parties that the same shall take effect upon the crops when planted. The several county recorders of this state are hereby authorized and directed to procure for their respective offices, at the expense of the county, suitable books, properly indexed, for the recording of all chattel mortgages, which books shall be plainly labeled and marked "Records of Chattel Mortgages." All chattel mortgages shall be recorded therein, and such books shall, at all times, be open to the public for inspection, and the mortgages therein recorded shall be canceled and discharged in the same manner as mortgages on real property are canceled and discharged. The recorder of the several counties shall receive for recording chattel mortgages, indexing and releasing the same, the same fees as are allowed them for mortgages on real estate; provided, that no chattel mortgage shall be given or be valid for a less sum than one hundred dollars. As amended, Stats. 1869, 55; 1885, 53; 1887, 66.

Fraudulent grantors cannot rely upon their own fraud. Maher v. Swift, 14 Nev. 324.

When a party executes and delivers a bill of sale to another with intent to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors in the enforcement of their claims, or to secure any benefit to themselves at the expense of his creditors, the transaction is fraudulent.

A debtor has a right to protect his property from being sacrificed, provided he does not do so at the expense of his creditors. When a sale is made to a party who agrees to immediately pay all the vendor's creditors in full, the transaction is not fraudulent. Ivancovich v. Stern, 14 Nev. 342.

Facts recited from which it was held that delivery and change of possession was not sufficient to comply with the statute. Wilson v. Hill, 17 Nev. 402, 406 (30 P. 1076).

An unrecorded mortgage where there is no delivery of the property, is void as to all creditors of the mortgagee even though they have actual notice of the existence of such mortgage. Simpson v. Harris, 21 Nev. 354, 366, 367 (31 P. 1009).

A description in a chattel mortgage that it "covers all other property of a personal nature belonging to said mortgagee which is situated either in Elko or Eureka Counties," is sufficient to cover all such property so situated then belonging to the mortgagee. An affidavit attached to a chattel mortgage, when made by some one in behalf of the parties, need not state that fact. When it appears that a bona fide mortgage, although agreed upon, was not executed until after the note it was given to secure fell due, but that such delay was not fraudulent, and does not appear to have worked injury to any one, the mortgage does not, for that reason, become invalid.

The mortgagee of personal property does not, in the absence of fraud, lose his lien thereon merely by failing to take possession of the property when the debt falls due. Streeter v. Johnson, 23 Nev. 194, 302 (44 P. 819).

Admitting a mortgage in evidence without objection is a waiver of the claim that its execution had not been sufficiently proven. Idem.

In the absence of a statute requiring the affidavit annexed to a chattel mortgage to be signed by the affiants, the mortgage is notice to and valid against third persons, though the affidavit is not signed by the mortgagee or mortgagee. A mortgage is void per se if it confers upon the mortgagee, the right to sell and dispose of the mortgaged property for his own benefit. Lutz v. Kinney, 24 Nev. 38 (49 P. 453).

Cited, State ex rel. Title Co. v. Grimes, 29 Nev. 57.

A person having attached property of the defendant in the hands of a pledgee thereof and having obtained a judgment against defendant, must move by direct proceeding against the pledgee under "proceedings supplementary to execution," to prevent disposition of the property by the pledgee pending an action to determine the rights therein. Persing v. Reno S. B. Co., 30 Nev. 342, 351 (96 P. 1054).

1081. Bottomry, respondentia.

SEC. 67. Nothing contained in the last three sections shall be construed to apply to contracts of bottomry, respondentia, or assignments or hypothecations of vessels, or goods at sea, or in foreign states, or without this territory; provided, the assignee, or mortgagee, shall take possession of such goods as soon as may be, after the arrival thereof within this territory.

1082. Agent to subscribe.

SEC. 68. Every instrument required by any of the provisions of this act to be subscribed by any party, may be subscribed by the lawful agent of such party.

1083. Contracts void, when.

SEC. 69. Every conveyance, or assignment, in writing or otherwise, of any estate or interests in lands, or in goods in action, or of any rents or profits issuing therefrom, and every charge upon lands, goods, or things in action, or upon the rents and profits thereof, made with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or other persons of their lawful suits, damages, forfeitures, debts or demands, and every bond, or other evidence of debt given, suits commenced, decree, or judgment suffered, with the like intent, as against the persons hindered, delayed or defrauded, shall be void.

The declarations of a vendor, made before the sale, of his intention to make a transfer to delay his creditors, will be taken as evidence of his intention in making the sale, but a knowledge of that intention must be brought home to the vendee to avoid the sale. Gregory v. Frothingham, 1 Nev. 253.

As between the parties to a fraudulent conveyance or between a fraudulent grantee and his creditors, courts will not permit either the grantor or the grantee to be heard in avoidance of the fraudulent act. Allison v. Hagan, 12 Nev. 38.

In a suit, brought against the administrator of a deceased person upon a promissory note, the defendant should be allowed to allege and prove that the note was made and delivered without consideration for the sole purpose of protecting the property of the deceased from his creditors.

Courts will not aid either party in enforcing an illegal, executory contract; nor if executed will they aid either party in setting it aside, or in recovering back what has been passed under it. McCausland v. Ralston, 12 Nev. 195, 203, 205, 210 (28 A. R. 781).

When a sale of personal property is made by the vendor with the intent to hinder, delay and defraud his creditors, and the purchaser has knowledge of such intention, the sale is void. Greenwell v. Nash, 13 Nev. 286.

1084. Grants of trust, when void.

SEC. 70. Every grant or assignment, of any existing trust in lands, goods, or things in action, unless the same shall be in writing, subscribed by the person making the same, or by his agent lawfully authorized, shall be void.

See Sime v. Howard, 4 Nev. 473, under sec. 55 of this act.

1085. Instruments, when void.

SEC. 71. Every conveyance, charge, instrument, or proceeding, declared to be void by the provisions of this act, as against creditors, or purchasers, shall be equally void as against the heirs, successors, personal representatives, or assigns of such creditors or purchasers.

1086. Fraud a question of fact.

SEC. 72. The question of fraudulent intent, in all cases arising under the provisions of this act, shall be deemed a question of fact, and not of law; nor shall any conveyance or charge be adjudged fraudulent, as against creditors or purchasers, solely on the ground that it was not founded on a valuable consideration.

Cited, Simpson v. Harris, 21 Nev. 365 (31 P. 1009); Lutz v. Kinney, 24 Nev. 48 (49 P. 453).

1087. Not to affect purchaser for value.

SEC. 73. The provisions of this act shall not be construed in any manner to affect or impair the title of a purchaser for a valuable consideration, unless it shall appear that such purchaser had previous notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor, or of the fraud rendering void the title of such grantor.

1088. Lands defined.

SEC. 74. The term "lands," as used in this act, shall be construed as coextensive in meaning with lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and shall include in its meaning all possessory right to the soil for mining and other purposes, and the term "estate and interest in lands," shall be construed and embrace every estate and interest, present and future, vested and contingent, in lands as above defined.

An assigned leasehold interest is an interest in lands. Adams v. Smith, 19 Nev. 272 (3 A. S. 888, 9 P. 337).

The dedication of a tract of land to homestead uses carries with it the tenements and hereditaments thereon. Smith v. Stewart, 13 Nev. 76.

1089. Conveyance defined.

SEC. 75. The term "conveyance," as used in this act, shall be construed to embrace every instrument in writing, except a last will and testament, whatever may be its form, and by whatever name it may be known in law, by which any estate or interest in lands is created, aliened, assigned or surrendered.

1090. Mortgage recorded.

SEC. 76. A mortgage for a good and valuable consideration upon possessory claims to public lands, all buildings and improvements upon such lands, all quartz and mining claims, and all such personal property as shall be fixed in its structure to the soil, acknowledged in manner and form as mortgages upon real estate are required by law to be acknowledged and recorded in the office of the recorder in the county in which the property is situated, shall have the same effect against third persons as mortgages upon real estate.

Cited, State ex rel. Title Co. v. Grimes, 29 Nev. 57.

1091. Mining rules.

SEC. 77. This act shall not be so construed as to interfere or conflict with the lawful mining rules, regulations, or customs in regard to the locating, holding, or forfeiture of claims, but, in all cases of mortgages of mining interests under this act, the mortgagee shall have the right to perform the same acts that the mortgageor might have performed for the purpose of preventing a forfeiture of the same under the said rules, regulations, or customs of mines, and shall be allowed such compensation therefor as shall be deemed just and equitable by the court ordering the sale upon a foreclosure; provided, that such compensation shall, in no case, exceed the amount realized from the claim by a foreclosure and sale.

The mining laws have been given the force and binding obligation of legislative enactment. Mallett v. Uncle Sam M. Co., 1 Nev. 203.

1092. Limitation of leases.

SEC. 78. No lands within this territory shall hereafter be conveyed by lease, or otherwise, except in fee and perpetual succession, for a longer period than ten years; nor shall any town or city lots, or other real property, be so conveyed for a longer time than twenty years. All leases hereafter made, contrary to the provisions of this act, shall be void.

An Act supplementary to an act concerning conveyances.

Approved December 17, 1862, 29

1093. County records impart notice.

SECTION 1. All instruments of writing now copied into the proper books of record of the office of the county recorders of the several counties of this territory, shall, after the passage of this act be deemed to impart to subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers, and all other persons whomsoever, notice of all deeds, mortgages, powers of attorney, contracts, conveyances, or other instruments, notwithstanding any defect, omission, or informality existing in the execution, acknowledgment, or certificate of recording the same; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect any rights heretofore acquired in the hands of subsequent grantees or assignees.

Cited, State ex rel. Title Co. v. Grimes, 29 Nev. 57.

1094. Certified copies.

SEC. 2. Duly certified copies of such instruments as are embraced in section one of this act may be read in evidence, under the same circumstances and rules as are now or may hereafter be provided by law for using copies of instruments duly executed and recorded; provided, that proof shall be first made that the instruments, copies of which it is proposed to use, were genuine instruments, and were in truth executed by the grantor or grantors therein named.

An Act to provide for the omission of the word "seal," the letters "L. S.," and other words, letters, or characters of like import on instruments in writing.

Approved February 20, 1883, 45

1095. Seal unnecessary.

SECTION 1. The word "seal," and the initial letters "L. An Act to provide for the conveyance of mining claims.

Approved December 12, 1862, 12

1100. Conveyance of mining claim.

SECTION 1. Conveyance of mining claims shall hereafter require the same formalities and be subject to the same rules of construction as the transfers and conveyances of other real estate.

When a person conveys a lode of ore, we have only to ascertain by the best means in our power what lode he meant; and if we can do so, it makes no difference that he has called it by a name illegitimately acquired by or applied to it. Phillipotts v. Blasdel, 8 Nev. 61.

The words "mining ground," when used in a deed, have a technical meaning. They refer to that interest which a mere occupant of the mine has in the same. They are not the words used when a fee simple or leasehold interest in real estate is to be conveyed. Hale & Norcross G. and S. M. Co. v. Storey Co., 1 Nev. 105.

1101. Former conveyances construed.

SEC. 2. All conveyances of mining claims heretofore made by bills of sale or other instruments in writing, with or without seals, recorded or unrecorded, shall be construed in accordance with the lawful local rules, regulations, and customs of the miners in the several mining districts of this territory; and if heretofore regarded valid and binding in such districts, shall have the same force and effect between the parties thereto, as prima facie evidence of sale, as if such conveyances had been made by deed under seal.

1102. How proved.

SEC. 3. The location and transfers of mining claims heretofore made shall be established and proved in contestation before courts, by the local rules, regulations, or customs of the miners in the several mining districts of the territory in which such location and transfers were made.

1104. Minors empowered to sell or convey.

SEC. 2. All minors in this state, over the age of eighteen years, are hereby authorized and empowered to sell and convey by deed such interests as they may have acquired, or may hereafter acquire, in mining claims or mining locations within this state, by virtue of locating the same, or being located therein, and such deed shall, if otherwise sufficient in law, be held valid and sufficient to convey such interest fully and completely, and without the right of subsequent revocation, notwithstanding the minority of the grantor, subject, however, to the same provisions and limitations contained in the first section of this act.

SEC. 16. Every corporation organized under this act shall have and maintain in a conspicuous place on its principal office required by section 14, in letters sufficiently large to be easily read, painted or printed, the corporate name of such corporation. And every such corporation which shall fail or refuse to comply with the requirements of section 14 and of this section, for a period of thirty days, or fail to maintain such office or fail to have a competent agent in charge thereof, on all business days of the year, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered with costs by the state before any court of competent jurisdiction by action at law, to be prosecuted by the attorney-general, or by the district attorney of the county in which such action or proceeding to recover such fine is prosecuted. 1124. Cumulative voting.

SEC. 20. In all corporations heretofore formed and now existing and in all corporations formed under this act—unless otherwise provided in the certificate or articles of incorporation, original or amended—every stockholder shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, the number of shares owned by him for as many persons as there are trustees to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of trustees or directors multiplied by the number of his shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he shall think fit, and such trustees or directors shall not be elected in any other manner; unless such method be set forth in said certificate or articles of incorporation or an amendment thereto. The person or persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be director or directors, trustee or trustees. But a different plan or method of voting, limiting and regulating the mode of voting, may be prescribed in said certificate or articles of incorporation, original or amended, and when so prescribed shall be observed and shall govern.

1125. By-laws, how made.

SEC. 21. The power to make and alter by-laws shall be in the stockholders or members, but any corporation may, in its articles or certificate of incorporation, original or amended, or by resolution adopted by a two-thirds vote, or by written consent of two-thirds of the stock, or the holders thereof, or two-thirds of the members, confer that power upon the directors or trustees. By-laws made by the directors under power so conferred, may be altered or repealed by the directors or trustees, or by the stockholders or members. The written consent of the owners of two-thirds of the stock or of two-thirds of the members shall suffice to adopt, amend or repeal any by-law or by-laws. All by-laws in force must be copied legibly in a book called Book of By-laws, kept at all times for inspection in the principal office. Until so copied, they shall not be effective nor in force.

1126. Officers.

The corporation may have such other officers, agents and factors, who shall be chosen in such manner and hold their office for such terms as may be prescribed by the by-laws.

1127. Meeting of directors, executive committee—Quorum.

SEC. 23. The board of directors or trustees may, by resolution passed by a majority of the whole board, designate two or more of their number to constitute an executive committee, who, to the extent provided in the by-laws of said company, and until a change occurs in said board shall have and exercise the powers of the board of directors or trustees in the management of the business and affairs of the company and may have the power to authorize the seal of the company to be affixed to all papers which may require it, except as modified by the above provisions. A majority of the whole number of trustees or directors shall form a board for the transaction of business, and every decision of a majority of the persons duly assembled as a board shall be valid as a corporate act, subject to the provisions of the by-laws and of the laws of this state. The board of directors shall hold meetings at such times and places inside or outside of the state and upon such notice as it may prescribe or determine; and the by-laws may provide that any action of a majority, although not as a regularly called meeting, and the record thereof, if assented to in writing by all the other members of the board, shall always be as valid and effective in all respects as if passed by the board in regular meeting.

1128. Vacancies by failure to elect trustees or to qualify.

SEC. 24. If it shall happen, at any time, that an election of trustees or directors shall not be held on the day designated by the by-laws of the company, or otherwise fixed, the corporation shall not for that reason be dissolved, but it shall be lawful, on any other day, to hold an election for trustees or directors in such manner as shall be provided for by law, or statute or in the by-laws of the company, and all acts of the trustees or directors shall be valid and binding on the company until their successors shall be elected. When a majority of any newly elected board of trustees or directors shall fail to qualify and file in the office of the company their oath of office, within thirty days from the day of their election, it shall be the duty of any officer of the company upon the request of owners in said company representing not less than one-third of the capital stock of the corporation owned in the company, to call a meeting of the stockholders of said company, which meeting when assembled shall have power to elect trustees or directors to supply the place of those who have failed to qualify; but such trustees or directors may qualify and enter upon the duties of their office at any time after the said thirty days, if such meeting for a new election shall not have been called. Whenever a majority of the trustees or directors elected have qualified by taking the oath of office, and one or more of the remaining trustees or directors elected shall fail to qualify within thirty days' after their election, then the board of trustees shall fill the vacancy caused by failure to qualify by appointment.

1129. Vacancies in board of directors.

SEC. 25. Any vacancy occurring among the directors or in the office of president, secretary or treasurer by death, resignation, removal or otherwise, except a vacancy caused by the removal of a director pursuant to this act, shall be filled in the manner provided for in the by-laws; in the absence of such provision such vacancies shall be filled by the board of directors; but directors or trustees so appointed shall hold only until their places are filled by an election by stockholders or members.

1130. Revisory power of court.

SEC. 26. The district court of the district wherein said corporation has its principal office upon application of any party who may be aggrieved by or complain of any election or any proceeding, act or matter in or touching the same, ten days' notice having been given to the adverse party or to those who are affected thereby of such intended application, shall proceed forthwith at chambers in any county in the district where the corporation has its principal place of business to hear proofs, affidavits and allegations of the parties, or otherwise inquire into the said matter or cause of complaint and either thereupon establish the election so complained of or order a new election or make such order and give such relief in the premises as right and justice may require, and the judge of said court may also, if any election for directors or trustees is not held on the day designated by law or in the by-laws, order an election to be held on petition of any stockholder, and may punish the officers and directors of said corporation for failure or refusal to obey said order as for a contempt of court.

1131. Stock personal estate—Transfer of.

SEC. 27. Whenever the capital stock of any corporation is divided into shares, and certificates thereof are issued, the stock of the company shall be deemed personal estate. Such shares may be transferred by endorsement and delivery of the certificate thereof, such endorsement being by the signature of the proprietor, or his or her attorney, appointed by written power, or legal representative duly authorized; but such transfer shall not be valid except between the parties thereto, until the same shall have been so entered upon the books of the corporation as to show the names of the parties by and to whom transferred, the number or designation of the shares, and the date of the transfer, and the old certificate surrendered and canceled, which must be done in all cases, except in case of loss or destruction of original, before a new one issue. In all cases in which shares of stock in corporations now existing, or hereafter incorporated under any law of this state, are held or owned by a married woman, such shares may be transferred by her, her agent or attorney, authorized by writing, without the signature of her husband, in the same manner, as if such married woman were a femme sole. All dividends payable upon any shares of stock of a corporation held by a married woman, may be paid to such married woman, her agent, or attorney, in the same manner as if she were unmarried. And it shall not be necessary for her husband to join in receipt therefor; and any proxy or power given by a married woman, touching any share of stock of any corporation owned by her, shall be valid and be binding, without the signature of her husband, the same as if she were unmarried.

1132. Payment of subscribed capital stock.

SEC. 28. The stockholders of any corporation formed under this act, may in the by-laws of the company prescribe the times, manners and amounts in which the payment of the sums subscribed by them respectively shall be made; but in case the same shall not be so prescribed, the trustees or directors shall have power to demand and call in from the stockholders the sums by them subscribed, at such times and in such manner, payments, or installments, as they may deem proper. The trustees shall also have power at such times and in such amount, as they may from time to time deem the interest of the corporation to require, to levy and collect assessments upon the capital stock of the corporation, as herein provided, but not upon stock issued as paid up unless so specified and provided in the original certificate or articles of incorporation, which shall not be amended in this respect. Notice of each assessment or call shall be given to the stockholders personally, or by publication once a week for at least four weeks, in some newspaper published in the county in which the principal office or place of business of the company is located, and in a newspaper published in the county wherein the property of the company or corporation is situated if in this state, and if no paper be published in either of such counties, then the newspaper published nearest to the said principal place of business in the state.

1133. Sale for nonpayment of calls.

SEC. 29. If after such notice has been given, any stockholder shall make default in the payment of the call or assessment upon the shares held by him, so many of such shares may be sold as will be necessary for the payment of the call or amount of subscribed capital called in or the assessment upon all the shares held by him, her or them, together with all costs of advertising and expenses of sale. The sale of said shares shall be made at the office of the company at public auction to the highest bidder, after a notice thereof published for four weeks, as above in this section directed, and a copy of such notice mailed to each delinquent stockholder if his address is known four weeks before such sale, and at such sale the person who shall pay the call or assessment so due, together with the expenses of advertising and sale, for the smallest number of shares, or portion of a share, as the case may be, shall be deemed the highest bidder.

1134. When company may buy its stock.

SEC. 30. Every corporation in this state shall also have the power, whenever at any assessment sale of the stock of said corporation or sale for unpaid subscription or call no person will take the stock and pay the assessment, or amount unpaid and due thereon and costs, to purchase such stock and hold the same for the benefit of the corporation. All purchases of its own stock by any corporation in this state which have been previously made at assessment sales whereat outside parties have failed to bid, and which purchases were for the amount of assessments due, and costs or otherwise, shall be held valid, and as vesting the legal title to the same in said corporation. The stock so purchased shall be held subject to the control of the remaining stockholders, who may make such disposition of the same as they may deem fit. Whenever any portion of the capital stock of any corporation is held by the said incorporation by purchase or otherwise, a majority of the remaining shares of stock in said corporation shall be held to be a majority of the shares of the stock in said incorporated company, for all purposes of election or voting on any question before a stockholders' meeting.

1135. Stockholders liable until subscriptions are fully paid.

SEC. 31. Where the whole capital of a corporation shall not have been paid in, and the capital paid shall be insufficient to satisfy its debts and obligations, each stockholder shall be bound to pay on each share held by him the sum necessary to complete the amount of such share, as fixed by the charter of the corporation, or its articles of incorporation, or such proportion of that sum as shall be required to satisfy such debts and obligations, but no more. No suit shall be brought against any director or stockholder for any debt of a corporation organized as aforesaid, of which he is such director or stockholder, until judgment be obtained therefor against such corporation and execution thereon returned unsatisfied.

1136. Trustees not personally liable.

SEC. 32. No person holding stock in any corporation incorporated in this state as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, and no person holding such stock as collateral security, shall be personally liable or subject to any liability as a stockholder in or of such corporation (provided the transfer and the books of the company show the nature of the transfer and that the said stock is held in such fiduciary capacity or as a pledge and as security merely), but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding and owning the same, and the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate or the ward or the person interested in such fund would have been had he been living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name.

1137. Liabilities created by statutes of other states not to be enforced in this state.

SEC. 33. No action or proceeding shall be maintained by any creditor of any corporation, nor by said corporation, nor by any other party or person in any court of this state against any stockholder, officer or director of any domestic corporation for the purpose of enforcing any statutory personal liability of such stockholder, officer or director for or upon any debt, default or obligation of such corporation, whether such statutory personal liability be deemed penal or contractual, if such statutory personal liability be created by or arise from the statutes or laws of the United States or of any other state, territory, colony or foreign country.

When one or more of the commissioners or incorporators of any corporation, created by or under this or any general or special act, shall have died before the corporation shall have been organized, pursuant to law, the survivors or survivor may in writing designate other persons who may take the place and act instead of those deceased, in the organization; and the organization so effected by their aid shall be effectual in law as if it had been effected by all the original commissioners or incorporators.

1141. Errors and omissions in certificate cured by amendment.

SEC. 39. Whenever in the certificate or articles of incorporation or organization of any corporation organized under any general act of the legislature of this state, there shall be any error or omission in the recital of the act under which said corporation is created, or mistake in or the omission of any other matter which is required or proper to be stated in said certificate, it shall and may be lawful for said corporation to correct such error in the manner following: The board of directors of such corporation shall pass a resolution declaring that such error exists and that said corporation desires to correct the same. A certificate of such action shall be made and signed by the president and secretary under the corporate seal; which said certificate shall be acknowledged or proved as in the case of deeds of real estate, and such certificate, together with the written assent, in person or by proxy, of two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders of said corporation, shall be filed in the office of secretary of state, and upon the filing thereof, the articles or

SEC. 43. Any two or more corporations organized under the provisions of this act, or existing under the laws of this state, for the purpose of carrying on any kind of business, may consolidate into a single corporation which may be either one of said consolidating corporations, or a new corporation to be formed by means of such consolidation; the directors or trustees, or a majority of them, of such corporation, as desire to consolidate, may enter into an agreement signed by them and under the corporate seals of the respective corporations, prescribing the terms and conditions of consolidation, the mode of carrying the same into effect, and stating such other facts as are necessary to be set out in articles of incorporation, as provided in this act, as well as the manner of converting the shares of such of the old corporations into the new, with such other details and provisions as are deemed necessary. Said agreement shall be submitted to the stockholders of each corporation, at a meeting thereof, called separately for the purpose of taking the same into consideration, of the time, place and object of which meeting due notice shall be given by publication at least once a week for four successive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county wherein each corporation either has its principal office or conducts its business in this state, and a copy of such notice shall be mailed to the last known postoffice address of each stockholder of each corporation, at least twenty days prior to the date of such meeting, and at said meeting said agreement shall be considered and a vote by ballot, in person or by proxy, taken for the adoption or rejection of the same, each share entitling the holder thereof to one vote; and if the votes of stockholders and others entitled to vote as stockholders of each corporation representing two-thirds in amount of its capital stock and two-thirds of the secured claims held by creditors entitled to vote as stockholders, shall be for the adoption of said agreement, then that fact shall be certified on said agreement by the secretary of each corporation, under the seal thereof, and the agreement so adopted and certified shall be signed by the president and secretary of each of said corporations under the corporate seals thereof and acknowledged by the president of each of such corporations before any officer authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments of deeds to be the respective act, deed and agreement of each of said corporations, and the agreement so certified and acknowledged shall be filed in 1147. Payment for stock of dissatisfied stockholders.

SEC. 45. If any stockholder in either corporation consolidating as aforesaid, who objected thereto in writing, shall within twenty days after the agreement of consolidation has been filed and recorded, as aforesaid, demand in writing from the consolidated corporation payment of his stock, such consolidated corporation shall, within three months thereafter, pay to him the value of the stock at the date of consolidation; in case of disagreement as to the value thereof, it shall be ascertained by three disinterested persons, one of whom shall be chosen by the stockholder, one by the directors of the consolidated corporation, and the other by the two selected as aforesaid; and in case the said award is not paid within sixty days from the making thereof, and notice thereof given to said stockholder and said consolidated corporation, the amount of the award shall be evidence of the amount due by said corporation, and may be collected as other debts are by law collectible; on receiving payment of the award, said stockholder shall transfer his stock to the said consolidated corporation, to be disposed of by the directors thereof, or to be retained for the benefit of the remaining stockholders. 1150. Bonds—Power of consolidated company.

SEC. 48. When two or more corporations are consolidated, the consolidated corporation shall have power and authority to issue bonds or other obligations, negotiable or otherwise, and with or without coupons or interest certificates thereto attached, to an amount sufficient with its capital stock to provide for all the payments it will be required to make, or obligations it will be required to assume, in order to effect such consolidation; to secure the payment of which bonds and obligations it shall be lawful to mortgage its corporate franchise, rights, privileges and property, real, personal and mixed; and may issue capital stock to such an amount as may be necessary, to the stockholders of such consolidated corporation in exchange or payment for the original shares, in the manner and on the terms specified in the agreement of consolidation.

Such corporation shall be formed by a certificate or articles of incorporation executed by the purchaser and his associates, and which shall, in addition to the requirements of the provisions of this act, set forth the description of the property sold and the decree under which the sale was made, if it was sold under judgment, or if not, the deed conveying the property; the amount paid or to be paid, and to whom and by whom, and such other statements as may be deemed necessary. The articles shall be signed by the purchaser and his associates, if any, and shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who shall furnish a certified copy of the same under his hand and seal of office, which shall be recorded as hereinbefore provided for certificates of incorporation; and when a certificate of such fact is delivered to the purchaser the corporation shall be deemed to be organized, and shall have the rights, powers and privileges, 1152. Manner of sale.

SEC. 50. Sales of property and franchises of such corporations that may be sold under a decree of court shall be made after such notice of the time and place as the court may deem proper; and if such sales are made in the foreclosure of one or more mortgages, the court may order such sale to be made for the whole amount of the outstanding bonds and interest secured by such mortgage or mortgages, or if the property and franchise will produce so much, then for the amount of interest due under said mortgage or mortgages, subject to the payment by the purchaser of the outstanding bonds and interest secured thereby as they became due; and in the latter event may, by proper orders, secure the assumption thereof by the purchaser; but when a sale shall be ordered to be made, subject as aforesaid, the court shall direct the officer making such sale, in the event that the property and franchises offered do not sell for enough to pay the amount aforesaid, to sell the same free from encumbrances. Sales under this section shall be made on such credits as the court may deem proper.

1153. Forfeiture of charter for failure to commence business.

SEC. 51. Any corporation organized under this act shall forfeit all rights, privileges and franchises obtained thereunder, if it shall fail, for two years after its incorporation, to organize and to commence in good faith the business, or to promote the objects or purposes for which it was organized.

1154. Incorporation cannot be attacked collaterally.

SEC. 52. The due incorporation of any company claiming in good faith to be a corporation pursuant to the laws of this state, and doing business as such, or its rights to exercise corporate powers, shall not be inquired into collaterally in any private suit to which such de facto corporation may be a party. This section shall not be construed to prevent judicial inquiry into the regularity or invalidity of the incorporation or organization of the corporation, or its lawful possession of any corporate power it may undertake to assert in any other suit or proceeding where its corporate existence, or the power to exercise the corporate rights it asserts, is challenged by the state, or its officers authorized so to do, and evidence tending to sustain such challenge shall be admissible in any suit or proceeding.

1155. May issue stock for labor or real or personal property.

SEC. 54. Any corporation existing under any law of this state may issue stock for labor done or personal property or real estate or leases thereof; in the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the directors as to the value of such labor, property, real estate or leases shall be conclusive.

1156. Stock so issued is paid.

SEC. 55. All stock so sold or so issued pursuant to sections 53 or 54 of this act shall be fully paid and not liable to any further call or assessment (and this shall be so stated on the face of the certificate). But it shall be the duty of the corporation to have its minutes or other permanent records to show, with reasonable detail, the items and character of property (and of the labor or services) for which any stock or bonds were so issued.

1157. Certificate of stock.

SEC. 56. Every stockholder shall have a certificate under the seal of the corporation, signed by the president, or vice-president, and by the treasurer or secretary, certifying the total amount of capital stock, authorized, and the total number of shares, the par value, and the number of shares contained in the certificate, whether they are fully paid up and nonassessable or not, also give the location of the principal office, and the name of the resident agent. As amended, Stats. 1905, 75.

Certificates of stock in mining companies to be stamped "Treasury Stock" or "Promotion Stock," see secs. 1332-1335.

1158. Exemption of stock held by nonresidents.

SEC. 57. The shares of stock in every corporation shall be deemed personal property and transferable on the books of the corporation in such manner and under such regulations as section 27 of this act require[s] and the by-laws provide; provided, however, that no stock or bonds issued by any corporation organized under this act shall be taxed by this state when the same shall be owned by nonresidents of this state, or by foreign corporations.

1159. Voting list of stockholders and stock ledger.

SEC. 58. After the first election of directors where the by-laws or the certificate or articles of incorporation otherwise provide, no stock shall be voted on at any election of directors or trustees, or on any question submitted to stockholders at any meeting thereof, which shall have been transferred on the books of the company within twenty days next preceding such election, and it shall be the duty of the directors or trustees to cause the officer who shall have charge of the stock ledger to prepare and make, at least ten days before every election, a complete list of stockholders entitled to vote, arranged in alphabetical order. Such list shall be open, at the place where said election is to be held for said ten days, to the examination of any stockholder, or party entitled to vote at such election, or their agents or proxies, and shall be produced and kept at the time and place of election during the whole time thereof, and subject to the inspection of any stockholder or party entitled to inspect the same who may be present. Upon the neglect or refusal of the said officers or of the directors or trustees to produce such list at any election, they shall be ineligible to any office at such election. The original or duplicate stock ledger provided for in section 71 of this act and containing the names and addresses of the stockholders, and the number of shares held by them, respectively, shall, at all times, during the usual hours of business, be open to the examination of every stockholder at its principal office or place of business in this state, and said original or duplicate stock ledger shall be evidence in all courts of this state. Such ledger shall be kept by all corporations, and either the original or duplicate shall always be kept open for inspection by stockholders or state officers, at the principal place of business of said corporation. If the duplicate is so kept, the original may be kept at any place the corporation may fix, within or without the state.

1160. Stock ledger to determine who may vote—Proxies to be filed.

SEC. 59. In case the right to vote upon any share of stock shall be questioned, the inspectors of the election shall refer to the stock books of the corporation to ascertain who are the stockholders, and in case of a discrepancy between the books, the stock ledger, if properly kept, shall control and determine who are entitled to vote. Proxies and powers of attorney to vote must (unless the by-laws or certificate or articles of incorporation otherwise provide) be filed with the secretary of the company twenty days before an election, or they cannot be used at such election.

1161. Stock held by representatives, how voted.

SEC. 60. Whenever any stock is held by any person as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, he shall represent such stock at all meetings of the company, though standing in the name of the beneficial owner on the books of the company, and may vote accordingly as a stockholder, or give proxies therefor.

1162. Pledge of stocks and voting power of pledgor.

SEC. 61. Any stockholder may pledge his stock, by a delivery of the certificates, or other evidence of his interest, but may nevertheless represent the same at all meetings and vote as a stockholder. Persons holding stock pledged shall be entitled to vote the shares so held, if transferred to them and standing in their names, unless it appears on the books that the transfer is as security only and not absolute, or if in the transfer by the pledgor on the books of the corporation as security he shall have expressly given to the pledgee power to vote thereon; in all other cases only the pledgor or his proxy may represent said stock and vote thereon. Whenever any transfer of shares shall be made for collateral security, and not absolutely, it shall be so expressed in the entry of the transfer, on the books of the company.

1163. Treasury stock not to be voted.

SEC. 62. Shares of stock of the corporation belonging to the corporation shall not be voted upon directly or indirectly.

1164. Lost certificates.

SEC. 63. Every corporation may issue a new certificate of stock in place of any certificate claimed to be lost or destroyed, but the directors may require as a condition of such reissue that the owner or his successors in interest give a bond in a sum not exceeding double the value of the stock, but not less than $100, to indemnify the corporation against any claim that may be made on account of the issue of such new certificate.

1165. Proceedings in court to obtain new certificate.

SEC. 64. The district court shall, for due cause shown upon complaint of the owner of a lost or destroyed certificate, order the delivery to him by said directors of a new certificate in lieu thereof, and may require a proper bond in such amount as the court may fix for the protection of the corporation and of any person who may be interested in the lost or destroyed certificates.

1166. Security on transfer.

SEC. 65. No share of stock shall be transferred without the consent of the directors until the same is fully paid up or security given to the satisfaction of the board for the residue remaining unpaid. And where bond or security have been given to the corporation for any sum remaining unpaid upon stock, no transfer shall affect the validity of such bond as security.

1167. Dividends.

SEC. 66. The directors of every corporation created under this act shall have power, after reserving over and above its capital stock paid in such sum, if any, as shall have been fixed by the stockholders, to declare a dividend among its stockholders of the whole of its accumulated profits, in excess of the amount so reserved, and pay the same to such stockholders on demand; provided, that the corporation may, in its certificate of incorporation, or in its by-laws, give the directors power to fix the amount to be reserved.

1168. Subdividing capital stock.

SEC. 67. All corporations organized and existing under the laws of this state, whether under this or prior acts, desiring to divide the capital stock of the corporation into shares of smaller denominations than originally issued, thereby increasing the number of shares without changing the amount of capital stock, may do so by a majority vote of the trustees of the corporation at any regular or called meeting of the trustees, without amending their articles or certificate of incorporation, and may issue the stock of such corporation in accordance therewith after having filed a certificate setting forth the amount or denomination into which they propose to divide such shares, verified by the affidavit of a majority of such trustees, in the office of the clerk of the county where such corporation has its principal place of business and a certified copy thereof in the office of the secretary of state.

1169. Capital stock not to be reduced—Proviso—Dividend from net profits only.

SEC. 68. It shall not be lawful for the trustees or directors to make any dividend except from the net profits arising from the business of the corporation; nor to divide, withdraw, nor in any way pay to the stockholders, or any of them, any part of the capital stock of the company; nor to reduce the capital stock, unless in the manner prescribed in this act, or in accordance with the provisions of the certificate or articles of incorporation; and in case of any violation of the provisions of this section, the directors or trustees under whose administration the same may have happened, except those who may have caused their dissent thereto to be entered at large on the minutes of the board of directors or trustees at the time, shall in their individual and private capacities, be jointly and severally liable to the corporation, and the creditors thereof, to the full amount so divided, withdrawn or reduced, or paid out; provided, that this section shall not be construed to prevent a division and distribution of the capital stock of the company which shall remain, after the payment of all its debts, upon the dissolution of the corporation or the expiration of its charter; provided, also, that this section shall not prevent the retirement or conversion of either stock or bonds or the distribution of the earnings or accumulations of the corporation as provided for in the articles or certificate of incorporation, original or amended.

1170. Removal of place of business without amendment.

SEC. 69. Any corporation, now existing or hereafter to be formed, desiring at any time to change the location of its principal office, shall, after a resolution has been passed by its directors, members or stockholders, authorizing or directing such change or removal, file in the office of the secretary of state and of the county clerk of the county where its principal office then is, and publish once a week for four weeks in the newspaper published nearest to the place from which said office is to be removed, a notice of such change, specifying particularly where the said office is to be located, the date when the change was or will be made, and the name of the resident agent to have charge of such office after such change. If it is desired to change the said office to some county other than the one in which the corporation then has its principal office, such a notice must also be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county to which the said office is to be removed, and unless such copies are already on file in said office, a certified copy of its original articles or certificate of incorporation, or of a copy or record thereof made and filed pursuant to this act, and certified copies of all amendments to such original articles must also be filed with said county clerk of the county to which it is proposed to remove. The notice of such change may be signed by any officer or director of the corporation. The formation or corporate acts of no corporation heretofore formed under this act, or any other act, shall be rendered invalid by reason of the fact that its principal place of business may not have been designated in its certificate of incorporation, and on compliance with the provisions of this section, in the several cases herein mentioned, or on filing of an amendment, under sections 40 and 41 of this act, the principal place of business of any corporation shall be deemed established or removed at or to any designated city, town, or locality or county in the state.

1171. Filing copy of articles in other counties.

SEC. 70. Whenever the principal office of a corporation is changed from one county to another by amendment of its articles of incorporation, or otherwise, and whenever any corporation becomes the owner or lessee of any real property in any county other than that where it has its principal place of business, or whenever copies of its articles of incorporation and of all amendments thereto are not on file or of record in the office of the county clerk of the county where its principal office is situated, or where it owns, holds, leases, manages or controls any real property, such corporation must file in the office of the county clerk of such county to which its office is changed, or where it owns or holds any real property in this state, certified copies of its original articles of incorporation, or of the copy thereof filed with the secretary of state, and of each and every amendment thereto on file with the secretary of state, and no corporation shall maintain or defend any suit in such county till this is done, and, if the said corporation fails to cause said papers to be so filed, any person desiring for a lawful purpose to examine the same, may procure and file and record in said county clerk's office said papers or any of them not so filed theretofore, and may recover the expense thereof with the costs of suit in an action against such delinquent corporation.

1172. Book for names of members—Stock ledger.

SEC. 71. It shall be the duty of the trustees of every company incorporated in this state to keep a book containing the names and addresses of all persons, alphabetically arranged, who are or shall become members or stockholders of the corporation, or who may be entitled to vote at stockholders' meetings, and showing the number of shares of stock held, or other voting rights, if any, by them respectively, and the time when they became the owners of such shares; which book shall be kept in its principal office, during the usual business hours of the day, on every day except Sunday and the legal holidays, and shall be open for the inspection of stockholders of the company, at the principal office or principal place of business of the company; and any stockholder of the company may have the right to examine any books and papers of said corporation in said office and to demand and receive from the agent or officer having the charge of such a certified copy of any entry therein, on paying the actual cost of making such copy, and such copy shall be presumptive and prima facie evidence in all actions against said corporation or any of its stockholders.

1173. Information for creditor of stockholder.

SEC. 72. Every person having charge of the original or duplicate stock books of any corporation shall, upon application of any person and upon presentation to him of a sworn affidavit on his behalf that he is a creditor of any stockholder, give him information as to the number of shares owned by said stockholder, and any person refusing to give such information shall forfeit to the party demanding such information the sum of $100, to be recovered in any court having jurisdiction.

1174. Publishing false statements a misdemeanor.

SEC. 73. Any person who, being a director, manager or officer of any corporation or body corporate or company, shall make, circulate or publish, or concur in making, circulating or publishing, any written statement or account which he shall know to be false in any material particular, with intent to deceive or defraud any member, shareholder or creditor of any such body corporate, corporation or company, or with intent to induce any person to become a shareholder therein, or to entrust or advance any property to such body corporate, corporation or company, or to enter into any security for the benefit thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

1175. Officers liable for damages caused thereby.

SEC. 74. If the directors or officers of any corporation organized under the provisions of this act shall knowingly cause to be published, or given out, any written statement or report of the condition or business of the corporation that is false in any material respect, the officers and directors causing such report or statement to be published, or given out, or assenting thereto, shall be jointly and severally individually liable for any loss or damage resulting therefrom.

1176. Penalty for making false entry.

SEC. 75. If at any time the clerk, secretary, agent or other officer or employee having charge of any book required by this act to be kept, shall make any false entry therein, or neglect to exhibit the same, or allow the same to be inspected, or extracts to be taken therefrom, or to give a certified copy of any entry, as provided in section 71 of this act, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall forfeit and pay to the party injured a penalty of one hundred dollars, and all damages resulting therefrom, to be awarded in an action for debt in any court having competent jurisdiction.

1177. Keeping fraudulent accounts a crime.

SEC. 76. Any person who, being a director, trustee, officer or manager of any body corporate, corporation, or company, shall, as such, receive or possess himself of any of the property of such corporation, body corporate, or company, otherwise than in payment of a just debt or demand, and shall, with intent to defraud, omit to make, or to cause, or to direct to be made, a full and true entry thereof in the books and accounts of such body corporate or public company, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

1178. Wilful destruction of books, making false entries.

SEC. 77. Any person who, being a director, manager, officer or member of any corporation, body corporate or company, shall, with intent to defraud, destroy, alter, mutilate or falsify any book, paper, writing, or valuable security belonging to the said corporation, body corporate or company, or make or concur in the making of any false entry, or omit or concur in omitting any material particular in any book of accounts or other document belonging thereto, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

1179. Removal of directors.

SEC. 78. Any director may be removed by a vote of two-thirds of the members or the owners of two-thirds of the stock, or by written consent thereto subscribed by two-thirds of the members, or by the owners of two-thirds of all stock outstanding and filed with the secretary of the company, and the by-laws may provide for removal by a vote or written consent of less than two-thirds, but not by less than a majority of the members of the stock. Upon such removal, a vote of the stockholders or members to fill the vacancy shall at once be taken, or a meeting to take such vote called, and if not called promptly may be ordered by the district court, and the order enforced by punishing the officers and directors or trustees who refuse or fail to comply therewith, as for a contempt, and the removal shall not take effect till such vacancy be so filled by vote of the stockholders or members, but such director so removed shall hold office until his successor is so elected by the members or stockholders and qualified.

1180. Proceedings for removal of officers in certain cases.

SEC. 79. On petition of the stockholders holding the majority of the stock actually issued by any corporation formed under this act, and subject to the provisions of this section, to the district judge of the district where said corporation has its actual place of business, verified by the signers, to the effect that they are severally the holders of the number of shares set opposite their signatures to the foregoing petition, the district judge shall issue his notice to the stockholders of said company that a meeting of the stockholders will be held at the court room of the district court, in the county in which is said principal place of business, stating the time, not less than five, nor more than ten, days after the first publication of said notice, and the object to be taken into consideration, the removal of officers, directors or trustees of said company, which notice, signed by the said district judge, shall be published daily, in a daily newspaper published in said county, for at least five days before the time for the meeting; or, if there be no daily newspaper published in said county, then in such manner as the district judge shall direct.

1181. Proceedings to organize such meeting.

SEC. 80. At the time appointed by said notice, the said district judge shall appoint a secretary of the meeting, and shall thereupon hear the proofs of those claiming to be stockholders in said corporation; and only those showing a right to vote, or their proxies, shall take part in the further proceedings. Said judge shall decide who are entitled to vote in a summary way, and his decision shall be final. If it appears at the time appointed, or within one hour thereafter, that holders of less than one-half the whole number of shares actually issued, or their proxies, are present, the meeting shall be dissolved; but, if the holders of more than one-half of the shares actually issued, or their proxies, are present, they shall proceed to vote, the secretary calling the roll, which he shall prepare by setting down the names of persons held to be entitled to vote, and the number of shares held by each, and such persons voting yea or nay on the question of removal of one or more of the officers, directors or trustees of the company, specifying which one or more that the voters desire to remove, as the case may be. The secretary shall enter the same upon his list, and, when he has added up the list and stated the result, he shall sign the same and hand it to the judge, who shall declare the result.

1182. Removal of officers or directors in certain cases, and election of new board.

SEC. 81. If the result of the vote is that the holders of a majority of all the shares of the company actually issued, or their proxies, are in favor of the removal of one or more of the officers, directors or trustees of the company, the meeting shall then proceed to ballot for officers to supply the vacancies thus created. Tellers shall be appointed by the judge, who shall collect the ballots and deliver them to the secretary, who shall count the same in open session, and, having stated the result of the count, in writing, shall sign the same and hand it to the judge, who shall announce the result to the meeting. The judge shall thereupon issue to each person chosen a certificate, stating that, from the date of such meeting until the next annual election, unless removed under the provisions hereof, he is entitled to exercise and fill the office to which he is chosen; and shall endorse upon, or annex to, said petition a report of the proceedings of said meeting; and an order, requiring that all books, papers, and all property and effects of said corporation, be immediately delivered to the officers-elect, and shall sign the same and file it with the clerk of his court, and thereafter any disobedience to said order may be punished as other contempts of court, and disobedience thereto may be enforced by the court of said district. The district judge shall preside at said meeting, and put to vote such proper motions as he may be requested to submit to the meeting. In deciding any controverted question that may arise, he shall have the power to administer oaths and take testimony, either orally or by ex parte affidavits. For all the services in these proceedings the county clerk shall receive twenty dollars.

1183. The preceding sections optional with corporations hereafter formed.

SEC. 82. All corporations heretofore formed under prior acts, their stockholders, trustees and officers, shall have the powers and be subject to the provisions of the three preceding sections contained providing for removal and elections of new officers, directors or trustees by majority vote in court, and all corporations hereafter formed, renewed or continued under and pursuant to the provisions of this act, which shall in their articles or certificate of incorporation, original or amended, state that they desire to take advantage of such provisions, or of said three sections, or to be governed thereby, or to be subject thereto, or words to that effect, shall accordingly be themselves, their stockholders, directors, trustees and officers, vested with all the powers, and subject to and governed by all the provisions of the said three sections of this act next preceding, that is to say, sections Nos. 79, 80, and 81 of this act, but no others shall be subject thereto nor affected thereby.

1184. Incorporation need not be proven.

SEC. 83. In all civil actions brought by or against a corporation it shall not be necessary to prove on the trial of the cause the existence of the corporation unless the defendant in his or its answer expressly aver that such plaintiff or defendant is not a corporation, and verify the same.

1185. Validating defective articles of incorporation.

SEC. 84. All corporations organized under general laws in whose certificates or articles of incorporation there is any error or omission of any matter or thing required to be therein stated, or which are defectively executed or acknowledged or certified or in which some of the informality or irregularity exists, are hereby declared to be corporations from the time of filing such certificate or articles, in the same manner and to the same effect and intent as if the same were without fault.

1186. Report of election to secretary of state.

SEC. 85. Every corporation incorporated or authorized to transact business in this state shall, within thirty days after every and any corporate act which makes any change in the board of directors or trustees, file in the office of the secretary of state a statement authenticated by the signatures of the president and secretary and verified by each of them, giving the names of all the directors or trustees and officers, with the date of election or appointment of each, term of office, residence and postoffice address of each, character of his business, location (giving also street and number if practicable) of its principal office in this state, and the name of the resident agent in this state, in charge of said office and upon whom process can be served, and every corporation failing so to do for thirty days shall forfeit to the state $100. As amended, Stats. 1905, 75.

1187. Lien of employees.

SEC. 86. Whenever any corporation formed under the provisions of this act and prior acts shall become insolvent or be dissolved in any way, or for any cause, the employees doing labor or service of whatever character in the regular employ of such corporation, shall have a lien upon the assets thereof for the amount of wages due to them, not exceeding two months' wages, respectively, which shall be paid prior to any other debt or debts of said corporation; but the word "employees" shall not be construed to include any of the officers of such corporation.

1188. Service of legal process.

SEC. 87. Services of legal process upon any corporation created under this act or subject to its provisions shall be made by delivering a copy thereof personally to the president, cashier, secretary or resident agent of such corporation, or by leaving the same at the principal office or place of business of the corporation in this state. Service by copy left at the said principal office or place of business in this state, to be effective, must be delivered thereat at least thirty days before the return of the process, and in the presence of an adult person; and the officer serving the process shall distinctly state the manner of service in his return thereto, naming such person; provided, that process returnable forthwith must be served personally.

1189. Surrender of corporate rights before payment of capital stock.

SEC. 88. Before the payment of any part of the capital [stock] other than that paid in before filing articles or certificate of incorporation and before beginning business for which the corporation was created, the incorporators named in any certificate or articles of incorporation may surrender all their corporate rights and franchises, by filing in the office of the secretary of state, a certificate executed and acknowledged by all, and verified by the oath or affirmation of a majority of the said incorporators, that no part of the capital has been paid since filing articles of incorporation, and such business has not been begun, and surrendering all rights and franchises, and thereupon the said corporation shall be dissolved, 1190. Dissolution of a corporation.

SEC. 89. If it should be deemed advisable, in the judgment of the board of directors, or trustees, and most for the benefit of any corporation organized under this act, and prior acts, that it should be dissolved, the board, within ten days after the adoption of a resolution to that effect by a majority of the whole board at any meeting called for that purpose, of which meeting every director shall have received at least three days' notice, shall cause notice of the adoption of such resolution and of the time and place of the meeting of stockholders called to take action thereon, to be mailed to each stockholder and creditor having a right to vote with the stockholder, and also, beginning within said ten days, cause to be inserted in a newspaper published in the county wherein the corporation shall have its principal office, and also in the county, or city and county, where said stockholders' meeting is to be held, at least four weeks successively, once a week, next preceding the time appointed for such meeting, a like notice of said resolution and of such meeting of the stockholders to take action upon the resolution so adopted by the board of directors, or trustees, which meeting shall be held between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon of the day so named, and which meeting may, by consent of a majority in interest of the stockholders present, be adjourned from time to time, of which adjournment notice by advertisement in the same newspaper shall be given; and if at any such meeting or adjourned meetings two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders or two-thirds in interest of any class of creditors entitled to vote at such meeting shall consent that a dissolution shall take place and signify their consent in writing, such consent, together with a list of the names and residences of the directors and officers, certified by the president and secretary and treasurer, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who upon being satisfied by due proof that the requirements aforesaid have been complied with, shall issue a certificate that such consent has been filed, and the corporation shall thereby be dissolved, and the secretary of state shall make an endorsement to that effect on the original certificate of incorporation and on the amendments thereto in his office. Whenever nine-tenths in interest of the stockholders and nine-tenths in interest of any class of secured creditors entitled to vote with stockholders shall consent in writing to a dissolution, no meeting or notice thereof shall be necessary, but on filing said consent, duly acknowledged or proven, in the office of the secretary of state, he shall forthwith issue a certificate of dissolution, as above provided.

In view of this section it is not probable that the legislature intended by section 94 that a corporation could be dissolved upon the mere ex parte application of persons holding one-tenth of the stock, but rather that proceedings could be initiated by this small percentage of the stockholders and that, after the other necessary parties had been joined and heard, the court could determine whether good reason existed for the appointment of receivers to close the affairs of the corporation. Golden v. District Court, 31 Nev. 267 (101 P. 1021). (Per Talbot, J., concurring.)

1191. Continuation of corporation after dissolution for certain purposes of suit.

SEC. 90. All corporations, whether they expire by limitation, or are otherwise dissolved, shall nevertheless be continued as bodies corporate, for the term of one year from such expiration or dissolution, and until all litigation to which such corporation is a party, if begun within that time and process served within said year, is ended, for the purpose of prosecuting and defending suits by or against them, begun within said time, and of enabling them gradually to settle and close their business, to dispose of and convey their property, and to divide their capital stock, but not for the purpose of continuing the business for which said corporation shall have been established. A majority in interest of the stockholders by resolution or by written consent, filed with the secretary of state, may extend this time not exceeding three years in all.

1192. Trustees after dissolution.

SEC. 91. Upon the dissolution of any corporation under the provisions of section 89 of this act, or its expiration by limitation of time, the directors, or the governing body, by whatever name it may be known, shall be trustees thereof, with full power to settle the affairs, collect the outstanding debts, sell, and convey the property, real and personal, and divide the moneys and other property among the stockholders, after paying its debts.

1193. Powers of trustees after dissolution of company.

SEC. 92. Upon the dissolution or expiration of the time limited for the existence of any corporation formed under the laws of this state the directors or trustees at the time of the dissolution shall be trustees to and for the creditors and stockholders of the corporation dissolved, and shall have power and authority to sue for and recover the debts and property of the corporation, in the name of said corporation or by the name of trustees of such corporation, to collect and pay the outstanding debts, settle all its affairs, and divide among the members or stockholders entitled thereto the money and other property that shall remain after the payment of the debts and necessary expenses. Any creditor of a corporation dissolved without decree of court, if said dissolution be in fraud of his rights, may unite with any action to enforce his debt an action to set aside such dissolution, and on proof thereof have such orders and decree as shall afford him complete relief in such action, but such dissolution shall not extend the period limited by law for the enforcement of such creditor's claim or demand.

1194. Appointment of receivers.

SEC. 93. Whenever any corporation organized under this act shall be dissolved in any manner whatever, or expire by limitation, any court of equitable powers, held in the county where it has its principal office, on application of any creditor or stockholder of such corporation, may at any time, in an action, against the company, either continue such directors, trustees as aforesaid, or on proof that they or some of them are incapable or unfaithful, or have resigned, remove such as have given cause after such notice as may be reasonable, to the trustees or directors, or appoint them if none are removed or the remainder of the board to be receivers of and for such corporation, or, if all are removed or resign, may appoint one or more other persons receivers, to take charge of the estate and effects thereof, and to collect the debts and property due and belonging to the company, with power to prosecute and defend, in the name of the corporation, or otherwise, all such suits as may be necessary or proper for the purposes aforesaid, and to appoint an agent or agents under them, and to do all other acts which might be done by such corporation, if in being, that may be necessary for the final settlement of the unfinished business of the corporation; and the powers of such trustees or receivers may be continued as long as the court shall think necessary for the purposes aforesaid.

SEC. 94. Whenever a corporation has in ten successive years failed to pay dividends amounting in all to five per cent of its entire outstanding capital, or has wilfully violated its charter, or its trustees or directors have been guilty of fraud or collusion or gross mismanagement in the conduct or control of its affairs, or its assets are in danger of waste through attachment, litigation or otherwise, or said corporation has abandoned its business and has not proceeded diligently to wind up its affairs, or to distribute its assets in a reasonable time, or has become insolvent and is not about to resume its business with safety to the public, any holder or holders of one-tenth of the capital stock may apply to the district court, held in the district where the corporation has its principal place of business, for an order dissolving the corporation and appointing a receiver to wind up its affairs, and may by injunction restrain the corporation from exercising any of its powers or doing any business whatsoever, except by and through a receiver appointed by the court. Such court may, if good cause exist therefor, appoint one or more receivers for such purpose, but in all cases directors or trustees who have been guilty of no negligence nor active breach of duty shall have the right to be preferred in making such appointment, and such court may at any time for sufficient cause make a decree dissolving such corporation and terminating its existence.

One who is a stockholder in and director of a corporation and who is the administrator of an estate owning nearly one-third of the stock thereof is, in his individual and official capacities, interested in and affected by proceeding under this section instituted by another stockholder and resulting in ex parte orders dissolving the corporation and appointing a receiver to wind it up, and he may on certiorari review the same.

The court cannot, on the application of a stockholder and without notice or hearing, enter orders dissolving the corporation and appointing a receiver to wind it up, though a statute attempts to confer such authority. Hettel v. District Court, 30 Nev. 382, 386, 387 (133 A. S. 731, 96 P. 1062); State ex rel. Howell v. Wildes, 33 Nev. — (116 P. 595).

The court cannot dissolve a corporation and appoint a receiver on a mere petition of the owner of more than one-third of the stock alleging that the corporate assets are in danger of waste, without notice to the corporation, its officers, or any person interested therein.

The appearance of a corporation after the making by the court of ex parte orders dissolving it and appointing a receiver to wind it up, upon the petition of the holder of more than one-third of the stock, conferred no jurisdiction on the court to make the orders. Hettel v. District Court, 30 Nev. 382, 386-388 (133 A. S. 731, 96 P. 1062).

The directors must be made parties to the proceeding, and notice commanding an appearance forthwith to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed, is not a sufficient notice, and all orders made in such proceeding without making the directors parties are void. Golden v. District Court, 31 Nev. 250, 260, 263, 267, 268 (101 P. 1021).

1196. Proceedings when receiver is appointed.

SEC. 95. Whenever any decree is made appointing a receiver to wind up the affairs of a corporation, it shall be the duty of such receiver to file a certified copy of his appointment and of the decree of dissolution, if made by a court, with the secretary of state. Such court shall also direct that such decree appointing a receiver be published at least once a week for four weeks in some newspaper published in the county and shall also limit a time which shall not be less than four (4) months from the date of the first publication of the order or decree within which all claims against such corporation shall be presented to the receiver, and shall provide that all claims not so presented shall not share in the assets but be barred therefrom unless, before actual distribution is made and on good cause shown, permission be given to present any claim after the time so limited.

Cited, Martin v. Kirby, 33 Nev. — (116 P. —).

1197. Sale of property and franchises.

SEC. 96. Said court may in its discretion, in lieu of decreeing the dissolution of such corporation, order the receiver to sell its property and franchise, and the purchaser thereof shall succeed to all the rights and privileges of said corporation and may reorganize the same under direction of said court or pursuant to sections 49 and 50 of this act. At any sale of such property at public auction the court may in its discretion authorize the receiver to accept in payment duly allowed claims against said corporation at a proper valuation.

1198. Sale of deteriorating property.

SEC. 97. Whenever the property of an insolvent corporation is at the time of the appointment of a receiver incumbered with liens of any character, and the validity, extent or legality of any such lien is disputed or brought in question, and the property of the corporation is of a character which will deteriorate in value pending litigation over or respecting such lien, the court appointing the receiver may order the receiver to sell the property of the corporation clear of incumbrances, at public or private sale for the best price that can be obtained, subject to confirmation by the court, and pay the net proceeds of the sale into court, there to remain subject to order of court to be distributed and apportioned under the supervision of the court, as it shall direct.

1199. Compensation of receivers.

SEC. 98. The district court shall, before making distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation among the creditors or stockholders thereof, allow a reasonable compensation to the receivers or trustees for their services, and the costs and expenses incurred in and about the execution of their trusts and the cost of the proceedings in said court, to be first paid out of said assets.

1200. Capital stock consisting of mining ground.

SEC. 99. In corporations already formed, or which may hereafter be formed under this act, or otherwise, for mining purposes, where the amount of the capital stock of such corporation consists of the aggregate valuation of the whole number of feet, shares, or interest in any mining claim in this state, for the working and development of which such corporation shall be or has been formed, no actual subscription to the capital stock of such corporation shall be necessary; but each owner in said mining claim shall be deemed to have subscribed such an amount to the capital stock of such corporation as under the by-laws will represent the value of so much of his or her interest in said mining claim, the legal title to which he or she may, by deed, deed of trust, or other instrument, vest or have vested, in such corporation, for mining purposes; such subscription to be deemed to have been made and to have been fully paid on the execution and delivery to such corporation and its acceptance by such corporation of such deed, deed of trust, or other instrument; nor shall the validity of any assessment levied, or which may hereafter be levied, by the board of directors or trustees of such corporation, provided such corporation has the right and power to levy assessments, be affected by reason of the fact that the full amount of the capital stock of such corporation, as mentioned in its certificate of incorporation, shall not have been subscribed as provided in this section; provided, that the greater portion of said amount of capital stock shall have been subscribed; and provided further, that this section shall not be so construed as to prohibit the stockholders of any corporation formed, or which may be formed, for mining purposes, as provided in this section, from regulating the mode of making subscriptions to its capital stock and calling in the same by by-laws or express contract; provided further, that no corporation hereafter formed shall ever have power to assess paid up stock unless in its original articles or certificate of incorporation such power is reserved, and no amendment of such original in this respect or to give such power shall ever be made.

1215. Repealer, certain acts in force; vested rights not impaired.

SEC. 114. All acts and parts of acts, general and special, inconsistent or in conflict with this act are hereby repealed; but no existing corporation shall be thereby dissolved, nor shall the powers specified in its charter or certificate or articles of incorporation be thereby impaired or limited in any way, and nothing herein contained shall impair or annul, divest or disturb any vested rights, privileges or powers actually exercised and enjoyed in or by any corporation under any law hereby repealed. And provided that all rights and privileges and immunities vested or accrued by or under prior laws, all suits pending, all rights of action conferred and all duties, restrictions, liabilities and penalties imposed or required by or under laws prior hereto, shall not be impaired, diminished or affected hereby. For consolidation of domestic corporations, see secs. 1145–1146, ante.

1216. Mining companies may consolidate—Consent of stockholders—Notice by advertisement—Certificate, where filed—How signed—Certificate, what to contain.

SECTION 1. It shall be lawful for two or more corporations formed, or that may be hereafter formed, under the laws of this state for mining purposes, which own or possess mining claims or lands adjoining each other, or lying in the same vicinity, to consolidate their capital stock, debts, property, assets and franchises in such a manner and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the respective boards of directors or trustees of such companies so desiring to consolidate their interests; but no such consolidation shall take place without the consent of stockholders representing two-thirds of the capital stock of each company, and no such consolidation shall in any way relieve such companies or the stockholders thereof, from any and all just debts and liabilities; and in case of such consolidation due notice of the same shall be given by advertisement for at least twenty days in one newspaper in the county and state where the said mining property is situated, if there be one published therein, and also in one newspaper published in the county where the principal place of business of any of said companies shall be; and when the said consolidation is completed a certificate thereof containing the manner and terms of said consolidation shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the original certificate of incorporation of any of said companies shall be filed, and a copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. Such certificate shall be signed by a majority of each board of directors of the original companies; and it shall be their duty to call, within thirty days after the filing of such certificate, and after at least ten days public notice in some newspaper in the county where its property is situated, a meeting of the stockholders of all of said companies so consolidated, to elect a board of trustees or directors for the consolidated company for the year next ensuing. Said certificate shall also contain the name of the company, the object for which it, the same, has been formed, which shall be the same as the original corporation, the amount of its capital stock, the time of its existence (not to exceed fifty years), the number of shares of which the capital stock shall consist, the number of trustees or directors who shall manage the affairs of the company for the first year, and the name of the city or town in which the principal place of business of the company is to be located.

1217. Stockholders' consent in writing—Proxy.

SEC. 2. When two or more companies may desire to consolidate in accordance with the provisions of section 1 of this act, and shall have given the required notice, as in said section provided, any stockholder consenting thereto shall be required to give his consent in writing, stating the number of shares held by him, and that he is in favor of such consolidation; provided, that any and all stock standing in the name of trustees may be voted by such trustees the same as by the owners thereof, and the consent of such trustees shall be equivalent to the consent of such owners; and, provided further, that any person holding the general proxy of any stockholder shall be entitled to give or refuse his consent to such consolidation, the same as the owner of such stock for which said proxy is held.

1218. Foreign corporations may consolidate with domestic corporations—Agent to be appointed, when—Penalty.

SEC. 3. The provisions of this act shall be construed to permit and allow foreign corporations, owning mining property in this state, to consolidate with corporations organized under the laws of this state; provided, that in all such cases the principal place of business of such consolidation, when effected, shall be located in the State of Nevada, or in the state where such foreign corporation desiring such consolidation resides, as may be determined by a vote of two-thirds of the stockholders of such consolidation after the same shall be completed, and in case it shall be determined upon such vote being had, to remove the principal place of business of such consolidation out of this state, the certificate provided for in section 1 shall be amended so as to show the county and state where the principal place of business is located; and, provided further, that in case the principal place of business of such corporation shall be removed out of this state, there shall be an agent of such corporation appointed in this state, in the county where its property is situated, upon whom all legal process may be served, and the failure of such corporation to appoint such agent shall subject it to a fine of fifty dollars per day, to be recovered in the name of the State of Nevada, as in other cases of fines and penalties.

NOTE—In the formation of corporations for most purposes the following act has been superseded by the act of 1903, p. 121, sec. 1105, et seq., which, however, provides in section 1 that insurance, surety and railroad companies for carrying on business in this state are excepted from the operation of the act, and in section 114 that existing legislation affecting the formation and regulation of banking, insurance, surety, railroad, telephone and telegraph companies remains unaffected by its provisions, thereby leaving the following act in force as to these companies except as partly superseded by later legislation, the most recent of which is the banking act of 1911, secs. 616–694, inclusive, herein, regarding the formation and regulation of banks.

1219. Purposes for which may be formed—Proviso.

SECTION 1. Corporations for manufacturing, mining, milling, ditching, mechanical, chemical, building, navigation, transportation, farming, banking, hotel and inn-keeping, and ore reduction purposes, or for the purpose of engaging in any other species of trade, business or commerce, foreign or domestic, may be formed according to the provisions of this act, such corporations, and the members thereof, being subject to all the conditions and liabilities herein imposed, and to none others; provided, that nothing in this section shall be so construed as to authorize the formation of banking corporations for the purpose of issuing or circulating money or currency within this state, except the federal currency and the notes of banks authorized under the laws of the Congress of the United States; nor shall bank notes or paper of any kind be permitted to circulate as money in this state, other than the federal currency and the notes of banks authorized by the laws of the Congress of the United States. As amended, Stats. 1866, 165; 1869, 95.

Act adopted from California, State ex rel. Rankin v. Leete, 16 Nev. 257.

Cited, State ex rel. Keith v. Toll Road Co., 10 Nev. 162.

1220. Formation, how accomplished.

SEC. 2. Any three or more persons, who may desire to form a company for any one or more of the purposes specified in the preceding section, may make, sign, and acknowledge, before some person competent to take the acknowledgment of deeds, and file and have recorded in a book provided for that purpose, in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal place of business of the company is intended to be located, and a certified copy, under the hand of the clerk and the seal of said county, in the office of the secretary of state, a certificate, in which shall be stated the corporate name of the company, the object for which the same shall be formed, the amount of its capital stock, the time of its existence—not to exceed fifty years—the number of shares of which the capital stock shall consist, the number of trustees and their names, who shall manage the concerns of the company for the first six months, and the name of the city, town, or locality, and county, in which the principal place of business of the company is to be located.

This section clearly limits the term of the trustees selected and named in the certificate to six months from the time of incorporation; at the expiration of that period an election for a new board should be held. State ex rel. Flagg v. L. B. M. Co., 4 Nev. 400-409.

SEC. 3. A copy of any certificate of incorporation, filed in pursuance of this act, and certified by the county clerk of the county in which it is filed, or his deputy, or by the secretary of state, shall be received in all the courts and places as prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated.

1222. Powers and privileges.

SEC. 4. When the certificate shall have been filed, the persons who shall have signed and acknowledged the same, and their successors, shall be a body corporate and politic, in fact and in name, by the name stated in their certificate, and by their corporate name have succession for the period limited, and power:

First—To sue and be sued in any court having competent jurisdiction.

Second—To make and use a common seal, and to alter the same at pleasure.

Third—To appoint such officers, agents, and servants as the business of the corporation shall require, to define their powers, prescribe their duties, and fix their compensation.

Fourth—To require of them such security as may be thought proper for the fulfilment of their duties, and to remove them at will, except that no trustee shall be removed from office unless by a vote of a majority of the stockholders, as hereinafter provided.

Fifth—To purchase, hold, sell, and convey such real and personal estate as the purposes of the corporation shall require.

Sixth—To make by-laws not inconsistent with the constitution of this state, or constitution of the United States.

Seventh—The management of its property, the regulation of its affairs, the transfer of its stock, and for carrying on all kinds of business within the objects and purposes of the company, as expressed in its articles of incorporation.

Every corporation in this state shall have the power, whenever at any assessment sale of the stock of said corporation no person will take the stock and pay the assessment thereon, to purchase such stock and hold the same for the benefit of the corporation. All purchases of its own stock by any corporation in this state which have been previously made at assessment sales whereat outside parties have failed to bid, and which purchases were for the amount of assessments due, and costs or otherwise, shall be held valid, and as vesting the legal title to the same in said corporation. The stock so purchased shall be held subject to the control of the remaining stockholders, who may make such disposition of the same as they may deem fit. Whenever any portion of the capital stock of any corporation is held by the said incorporation by purchase, a majority of the remaining shares of stock in said incorporation shall be held to be a majority of the shares of the stock in said incorporated company, for all purposes of election or voting on any question before a stockholders' meeting.

A foreign corporation can hold no more land than is allowed to be held by a domestic one, that is, what is necessary to conduct its business and no more. Whitman M. Co. v. Baker, 3 Nev. 386, 390.

The by-laws of a corporation are binding, although irregularly adopted, when treated as by-laws by long use. State ex rel. Corey v. Curtis, 9 Nev. 325.

The secretary of a corporation is the proper custodian of the corporate seal, and when the secretary affixes it to a mortgage, or other instrument, the presumption is, he did it by direction of the corporation, and it devolves upon those who dispute the validity of the deed, to prove that he acted without authority. Evans v. Lee, 11 Nev. 194.

A corporation formed for maintaining a water ditch, keeping it in repair and dividing the water between the several stockholders, is bound to perform the duties prescribed in its charter and trust deed, and for any neglect in this respect, it would be liable to the stockholder injured thereby. O'Connor v. N. T. Ditch Co., 17 Nev. 245 (30 P. 882).

A contract made by a mining corporation to advance a specified sum of money for the construction of a tunnel to drain its mine, is not ultra vires. Such contracts come within the implied or incidental powers of the corporation. Sutro T. Co. v. S. B. M. Co., 19 Nev. 121 (4 P. 271).

A corporation cannot be held responsible for a contract of its officers, or agents, unless it affirmatively appears that such officers or agents were authorized to make the contract, or that the corporation received the benefits derived from the contract. Edwards v. Carson Water Co., 21 Nev. 469 (34 P. 381).

Every person who enters into a contract with a corporation is bound, at his peril, to take notice of the legal limits of the capacity of such corporation to contract. George v. N. C. R. Co., 22 Nev. 228 (38 P. 441).

If an act of a corporation is in excess of its chartered purposes, such act is outside of the powers delegated to its agent. Idem.

The responsibility of a contract, made by promoters of a corporation, if it be within the corporate powers of the corporation, may, when the corporation is organized, be expressly or impliedly assumed or ratified and thus made a valid obligation of the corporation. Alexander v. Winters, 23 Nev. 475 (49 P. 116).

1223. Powers to be exercised by trustees—Oath—Time and manner of election.

SEC. 5. The corporate powers of the corporation shall be exercised by a board of not less than three trustees—who shall be stockholders in the company—who shall, before entering upon the duties of their office respectively, take and subscribe to an oath, as prescribed by the laws of this state, and who shall, after the expiration of the term of the trustees first elected, be annually elected by the stockholders, at such times and place within the state, and upon such notice, and in such manner as shall be directed by the by-laws of the company; but all elections shall be by ballot, and every stockholder shall have the right to vote in person or by proxy, the number of shares owned by him for as many persons as there are trustees to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of trustees multiplied by the number of his shares of stock shall equal, or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he shall think fit, and such trustees shall not be elected in any other manner; and the person or persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be trustee or trustees. Whenever any vacancy shall happen among the trustees by death, resignation, or otherwise, except by removal and the election of his successor, as herein provided, it shall be filled by appointment of the board of trustees. On petition of the stockholders holding the majority of the stock actually issued by any corporation formed under this act, to the district judge of the district where said corporation has its actual place of business, verified by the signers, to the effect that they are severally the holders of to the number of shares set opposite their signatures to the foregoing petition, the district judge shall issue his notice to the stockholders of said company that a meeting of the stockholders will be held at the court room of the district court, in the county in which is said principal place of business, stating the time, not less than five, nor more than ten, days after the first publication of said notice, and the object to be taken into consideration, the removal of officers of said company; which notice, signed by the said district judge, shall be published daily, in a daily newspaper published in said county, for at least five days before the time for the meeting; or, if there be no daily newspaper published in said county, then in such manner as the district judge shall direct. At the time appointed by said notice, the said district judge shall appoint a secretary of the meeting, and shall thereupon hear the proofs of those claiming to be stockholders in said corporation; and only those showing a right to vote, or their proxies, shall take part in the further proceedings. Said judge shall decide who are entitled to vote, in a summary way, and his decision shall be final. If it appears at the time appointed, or within one hour thereafter, holders of less than one-half the whole number of shares actually issued, or their proxies, are present, the meeting shall be dissolved; but, if the holders of more than one-half of the shares actually issued, or their proxies, are present, they shall proceed to vote, the secretary calling the roll, which he shall prepare by setting down the names of persons held to be entitled to vote, and the number of shares held by each, and such persons voting yea or nay, as the case may be. The secretary shall enter the same upon his list, and, when he has added up the list and stated the result, he shall sign the same and hand it to the judge, who shall declare the result. If the result of the vote is that the holders of a majority of all the shares of the company actually issued, or their proxies, are in favor of the removal of one or more of the officers of the company, the meeting shall then proceed to ballot for officers to supply the vacancies thus created. Tellers shall be appointed by the judge, who shall collect the ballots and deliver them to the secretary, who shall count the same in open session, and, having stated the result of the count, in writing, shall sign the same and hand it to the judge, who shall announce the result to the meeting. The judge shall thereupon issue to each person chosen a certificate, stating that, from the date of such meeting until the next annual election, unless removed under the provisions hereof, he is entitled to exercise and fill the office to which he is chosen; and shall indorse upon, or annex to, said petition a report of the proceedings of said meeting; and an order, requiring that all books, papers, and all property and effects of said corporation be immediately delivered to the officers-elect, and shall sign the same and file it with the clerk of his court; and thereafter any disobedience to said order may be punished as other contempts of court, and obedience thereto may be enforced by the court of said district. The district judge shall preside at said meeting, and put to vote such proper motions as he may be requested to submit to the meeting. In deciding any controverted question that may arise, he shall have the power to administer oaths and take testimony, either orally or by ex parte affidavits. For all the services in these proceedings the county clerk shall receive twenty dollars. As amended, Stats. 1875, 68; 1881, 34.

Removal of officers, see sec. 1183.

The election of a trustee to fill a vacancy is a corporate act and must be exercised in the manner required by the charter.

A by-law, in regard to election to fill a vacancy, contrary to the charter, is void. State ex rel. Corey v. Curtis, 9 Nev. 325.

The legal right to have an annual election of trustees of a corporation as required by law, belongs to any stockholder, independent of the number of shares of stock owned by him. State ex rel. Sears v. Wright, 10 Nev. 167, 174.

A person who "holds" shares of stock, issued in his name, is recognized as a stockholder as well as one who "owns" them. As to what constitutes one a stockholder, see State ex rel. Rankin v. Leete, 16 Nev. 242, 249-255.

Cited, Orr W. D. Co. v. Reno W. Co., 17 Nev. 169, 170 (30 P. 695).

An election for trustees must take place substantially every twelve calendar months. A board of trustees, holding office, cannot by a by-law extend their own term for three months beyond the period for which they were originally elected. No elective officer has a right to do any act which would prevent the election of his successor at the time fixed by law for such election. Curtis v. McCullough, 3 Nev. 203, 224.

1224. Failure of election or qualification of trustees—Procedure.

SEC. 6. If it shall happen, at any time, that an election of trustees shall not be held on the day designated by the by-laws of the company, the corporation shall not for that reason be dissolved, but it shall be lawful, on any other day, to hold an election for trustees, in such manner as shall be provided for in the by-laws of the company, and all acts of the trustees shall be valid and binding on the company until their successors shall be elected. Whenever a majority of any newly elected board of trustees shall fail to qualify and file in the office of the company their oath of office, within thirty days from the day of their election, it shall be the duty of any officer of the company upon the request of owners in said company representing not less than one-third of the capital stock of the corporation owned in the company, to call a meeting of the stockholders of said company, which meeting, when assembled, shall have power to elect trustees to supply the place of those who have failed to qualify; but such trustees may qualify and enter upon the duties of their office at any time after the said thirty days, if such meeting for a new election shall not have been called. As amended, Stats. 1866, 79.

Where the by-laws of a corporation provide that stockholders' meetings shall be called by the trustees, action of the trustees is necessary to convene a legal meeting, and

1225. Quorum.

SEC. 7. A majority of the whole number of trustees shall form a board for the transaction of business, and every decision of a majority of the persons duly assembled as a board shall be valid as a corporate act.

The trustees represent the corporation, only when assembled together and acting as a board. Y. J. S. M. Co. v. Stevenson, 5 Nev. 225, 232.

To constitute ratification of the unauthorized act of the president of a corporation, it is not enough to show knowledge of the minority of the board of trustees, even if knowledge of all of them in their individual capacity, and not acting as a board, would be sufficient. Idem.

The trustees can only bind the corporation, when they are together as a board, acting as such. Hillyer v. Overman S. M. Co., 6 Nev. 51.

1226. First meeting of trustees.

SEC. 8. The first meeting of the trustees shall be called by a notice signed by one or more of the persons named trustees in the certificate, setting forth the time and place of the meeting; which notice shall be either delivered personally to each trustee, or published at least twenty days in some newspaper of the county in which is the principal place of business of the corporation, or if no newspaper be published in the county, then in some newspaper nearest thereto in the state.

1227. Stock personal estate—Transfer of.

SEC. 9. Whenever the capital stock of any corporation is divided into shares, and certificates thereof are issued, the stock of the company shall be deemed personal estate. Such shares may be transferred by indorsement and delivery of the certificate thereof, such indorsement being by the signature of the proprietor, or his or her attorney, or legal representative; but such transfer shall not be valid except between the parties thereto, until the same shall have been so entered upon the books of the corporation as to show the names of the parties by and to whom transferred, the number or designation of the shares, and the date of the transfer. In all cases in which shares of stock in corporations now existing, or hereafter incorporated under any law of this state, are held or owned by a married woman, such shares may be transferred by her, her agent or attorney, without the signature of her husband, in the same manner as if such married woman were a femme sole. All dividends payable upon any shares of stock of a corporation held by a married woman, may be paid to such married woman, her agent, or attorney, in the same manner as if she were unmarried. And it shall not be necessary for her husband to join in the receipt therefor; and any proxy or power given by a married woman, touching any share of stock of any corporation owned by her, shall be valid and be binding, without the signature of her husband, the same as if she were unmarried.

The legal title to mining stock, except as between the parties, can only be acquired by transfer upon the books of the corporation. State ex rel. Guerrero v. Pettineli, 10 Nev. 141, 145.

1228. Powers of trustees—Assessments—Sale of shares.

SEC. 10. The stockholders of any corporation formed under this act, may in the by-laws of the company prescribe the times, manners and amounts in which the payment of the sums subscribed by them respectively shall be made; but in case the same shall not be so prescribed the trustees shall have power to demand and call in from the stockholders the sums by them subscribed, at such times and in such manner, payments, or installments, as they may deem proper. The trustees shall also have power, at such times and in such amount, as they may from time to time deem the interests of the corporation to require, to levy and collect assessments upon the capital stock of the corporation, as herein provided. Notice of each assessment shall be given to the stockholders personally, or by publication once a week for at least four weeks, in some newspaper published in the county in which the principal place of business of the company is located, and in a newspaper published in the county wherein the property of the company or corporation is situated, and if no paper be published in either of such counties, then in the newspaper published nearest to the said principal place of business in the state. If, after such notice has been given, any stockholder shall make default in the payment of the assessment upon the shares held by him, so many of such shares may be sold as will be necessary for the payment of the assessments upon all the shares held by him, her or them, together with all costs of advertising and expenses of sale. The sale of said shares shall be made at the office of the company at public auction to the highest bidder, after a notice thereof published for four weeks, as above in this section directed; and at such sale the person who shall pay the assessment so due, together with the expenses of advertising and sale, for the smallest number of shares, or portion of a share, as the case may be, shall be deemed the highest bidder. As amended, Stats. 1891, 71.

A stockholder in a banking corporation cannot be held liable for his unpaid and uncalled subscriptions, in an action at law against him as the garnishee of the principal debtor. McKelvey v. Crockett, 18 Nev. 238, 241 (2 P. 386).

Where subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation are payable upon the call of the company, it is not necessary that a creditor of such corporation must, before instituting suit to compel the payment of such subscriptions, make an effort to compel the corporation to make the call. Thompson v. Reno Savings Bank, 19 Nev. 171, 174 (7 P. 870).

The unpaid subscriptions to the capital stock of a bank corporation is a trust fund for the benefit of the general creditors of the corporation. Thompson v. Lake, 19 Nev. 103 (3 A. S. 797, 7 P. 68).

Cited, State ex rel. Rankin v. Leete, 16 Nev. 249-258.

A formal call is not necessary before maintaining a bill in equity to compel payments to subscription of the capital stock. A bill in equity, where there are many parties, is the proper remedy. Thompson v. Reno Savings Bank, 19 Nev. 242 (3 A. S. 883, 9 P. 121).

It is no defense to an action for unpaid subscription to capital stock that the by-laws and subscriptions were illegal, because the trustees were not stockholders, the alleged subscribers having acquiesced in the acts of such trustees, and allowed themselves to appear as subscribers. Ross v. Bank of Gold Hill, 20 Nev. 191, 197 (19 P. 243).

1229. Stock held by executors.

SEC. 11. Whenever any stock is held by any person as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, he shall represent such stock at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a stockholder.

1230. Pledge of stocks.

SEC. 12. Any stockholder may pledge his stock, by a delivery of the certificates, or other evidence of his interest, but may nevertheless represent the same at all meetings and vote as a stockholder.

1231. Capital stock not to be reduced—Proviso.

SEC. 13. It shall not be lawful for the trustees to make any dividend except from the net profits arising from the business of the corporation; nor to divide, withdraw, nor in any way pay to the stockholders, or any of them, any part of the capital stock of the company; nor to reduce the capital stock, unless in the manner prescribed in this act, and in case of any violation of the provisions of this section, the trustees under whose administration the same may have happened, except those who may have caused their dissent thereto to be entered at large on the minutes of the board of trustees at the time, or were not present when the same did happen, shall, in their individual and private capacities, be jointly and severally liable to the corporation, and the creditors thereof, to the full amount so divided, withdrawn, or reduced, or paid out; provided, that this section shall not be construed to prevent a division and distribution of the capital stock of the company which shall remain, after the payment of all its debts, upon the dissolution of the corporation or the expiration of its charter. As amended, Stats. 1866, 188.

Cited, Thompson v. Lake, 19 Nev. 112 (3 A. S. 797, 7 P. 68).

1232. Debts not to exceed amount of stock paid in—Trustees liable for excess.

SEC. 14. The total amount of debts of the corporation shall not at any time exceed the amount of capital stock actually paid in, and in case of an excess, the trustees under whose administration the same may have happened, except those who may have caused their dissent therefrom to be entered at large on the minutes of the board of trustees at the time, and except those not present, when the same did happen, shall, in their individual and private capacities, be liable, jointly and severally, to the said corporation, and in event of dissolution, to any of the creditors thereof, for the full amount of such excess.

1233. Not to issue bills, or notes, as money.

SEC. 15. No corporation organized under this act shall, by any implication or construction, be deemed to possess the power of issuing bills, notes, or other evidences of debt, for circulation as money.

1234. Trustees shall keep book for names of members.

SEC. 16. It shall be the duty of the trustees of every company incorporated under this act to keep a book, containing the names of all persons, alphabetically arranged, who are or shall become stockholders of the corporation, and showing the number of shares of stock held by them respectively, and the time when they became the owners of such shares; which book, and all other books of the company, during the usual business hours of the day, on every day except Sunday and the legal holidays, shall be open for the inspection of stockholders of the company, at the office of the principal place of business of the company; and any stockholder or creditor of the company may have the right to demand and receive from the clerk, or other officer having the charge of such, a certified copy of any entry therein, or to demand and receive from any clerk, or officer, a certified copy of any paper placed on file in the office of the company, and such book or certified copy shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated, in any action or proceeding against the company, or any one or more of the stockholders.

Cited, State ex rel. Rankin v. Leete, 16 Nev. 249.

1235. Penalty for making false entry.

SEC. 17. If at any time the clerk, or other officer having charge of such book, shall make any false entry, or neglect to make any proper entry therein, or having the charge of any papers of the company, shall refuse or neglect to exhibit the same, or allow the same to be inspected, or extracts to be taken therefrom, or to give a certified copy of any entry, as provided in the preceding section, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall forfeit and pay to the party injured a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, and all damages resulting therefrom, to be recovered in an action for debt in any court having competent jurisdiction in the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is located.

1236. Change in capital stock.

SEC. 18. Any company incorporated under this act may, by complying with the provisions herein contained, increase or diminish its capital stock to any amount which may be deemed sufficient and proper for the purpose of the corporation; but before any corporation shall be entitled to diminish the amount of its capital stock, if the amount of debts and liabilities shall exceed the sum to which the capital is proposed to be diminished, such amount shall be satisfied and reduced so as not to exceed the diminished amount of the capital.

Cited, Thompson v. Lake, 19 Nev. 112 (7 A. S. 797, 7 P. 68).

1237. Increase or decrease of amount of stock, how made.

SEC. 19. Whenever it is desired to increase or diminish the amount of capital stock, a meeting of the stockholders shall be called by a notice signed by at least a majority of the trustees, and published at least eight weeks in some newspaper published in the county where the principal place of business of the company is located; or if no newspaper is published in the county, then in some newspaper nearest thereto in the state, which notice shall specify the object of the meeting, the time and place where it is to be held, and the amount which it is proposed to increase or diminish the capital, and a vote of two-thirds of all the shares of stock shall be necessary to increase or diminish the amount of the capital stock.

1238. Idem—Certificate to be made.

SEC. 20. If at a meeting so called, a sufficient number of votes have been given in favor of increasing or diminishing the amount of capital, a certificate of the proceedings, showing a compliance with these provisions, the amount of capital actually paid in, the whole amount of debts and liabilities of the company, and the amount to which the capital stock is to be increased or diminished, shall be made out, and signed and verified by the affidavit of the chairman and secretary of the meeting, certified to by a majority of the trustees, and filed as required by the second section of this act; and when so filed, the capital stock of the corporation shall be increased or diminished to the amount specified in the certificate.

1239. Powers of trustees after dissolution.

SEC. 21. Upon the dissolution of any corporation formed under this act, the trustees at the time of the dissolution shall be trustees of the creditors and stockholders of the corporation dissolved, and shall have power and authority to sue for and recover the debts and property of the corporation, by the name of trustees of such corporation, collect and pay the outstanding debts, settle all its affairs, and divide among the stockholders the money and other property that shall remain after the payment of the debts and necessary expenses.

1240. Dissolution, how effected.

SEC. 22. Any corporation formed under this act may dissolve and disincorporate itself by presenting to the district judge of the district in which the office of the company is located a petition to that effect, accompanied by a certificate of its proper officers setting forth that at a meeting of the stockholders, called for the purpose, it was decided by a vote of a majority of the stockholders to disincorporate and dissolve the incorporation. Notice of the application shall then be given by the clerk, which notice shall set forth the nature of the application, and shall specify the time and place at which it is to be heard, and shall be published in some newspaper of the county once a week for eight weeks, or if no newspaper is published in the county, by publication in the newspaper nearest thereto in the state. At the time or place appointed, or at any other time or place to which it may be postponed by the judge, he shall proceed to consider the application, and if satisfied that the corporation has taken the necessary preliminary steps and obtained the necessary vote to dissolve itself, and that all claims against the corporation are discharged, he shall enter an order declaring it dissolved.

Cited, Orr W. D. Co. v. Reno W. Co., 19 Nev. 66 (6 P. 72).

1241. Removal of place of business.

SEC. 23. Any corporation desiring at any time to remove its principal place of business into some other county in the state, shall file in the office of the county clerk of such county a certified copy of its certificate of incorporation. If it is desired to remove its principal place of business to some other city, town, or locality within the same county, publication shall be made of such removal at least once a week for four weeks in the newspaper published nearest to the city, town, or locality from which the principal place of business of such corporation is desired to be removed. The formation or corporate acts of no corporation heretofore formed under this act shall be rendered invalid by reason of the fact that its principal place of business may not have been designated in its certificate of incorporation; provided, that within six months from the passage of this act such corporation shall cause publication to be made once a week for at least four weeks in the newspaper published nearest to the city, town, or locality where the principal place of business of such corporation has in fact been located, designating the city, town or locality, and county where its principal place of business shall be located. On compliance with the provisions of this section, in the several cases herein mentioned, the principal place of business of any corporation shall be deemed established or removed at or to any designated city, town, or locality and county in the state.

liabilities of the insured thereunder are not limited to fixed premiums. As amended, Stats. 1909, 62.

Approved March 20, 1907, 190

1348. Copy of charter to be filed.

SECTION 1. Every corporation organized under the laws of another state, territory, the District of Columbia, a dependency of the United States or foreign country, which shall hereafter enter this state for the purpose of doing business therein, must, before commencing or doing any business in this state, file in the office of the secretary of state of the State of Nevada a certified copy of said articles of incorporation, or of its charter, or of the statute or statutes, or legislative, or executive, or governmental acts, or other instrument or authority by which it was created, and a certified copy thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state of this state, in the office of the county clerk of the county where its principal place of business in this state is located.

When a complaint alleged that plaintiff was a corporation organized under the laws of a foreign state, it was reversible error to dismiss the complaint on the motion to set it aside on the allegations therein, since whether plaintiff was entitled to do business in the state was a matter on which it was entitled to be heard and to have a day in court before its action was summarily dismissed.

Nor was the unsworn motion of defendant's attorney to dismiss the complaint upon the allegations thereof sufficient to warrant the court in taking such judicial notice of such motion as to deprive plaintiff of its constitutional right of being heard upon the merits of the motion, in a proper proceeding, as to whether it had complied with the law before doing business in the state. Symons-Kraussman Co. v. Reno Liquor Co., 32 Nev. 241 (107 P. 96).

Whenever three-fifths of the qualified electors of any county of this state, each elector being a taxpayer of said county, as appears by the last assessment roll, who have taken and subscribed to the oath or affirmation prescribed by law for the registration of electors in this state, shall petition the board of county commissioners of such county for the removal or location of the seat of justice of said county, the said county commissioners shall, within sixty days thereafter, cause an election to be held at the various places of voting in said county, the said county commissioners giving thirty days' notice in some newspaper published in the county or by posting written or printed notices at the several voting precincts in the county; such notice shall state the time and place of holding, and for what purpose such election is held; and any election provided for in this act may be held on the day of any general election in said county. The place receiving a majority of all the votes cast at such election shall be declared the county-seat; provided, that if no place receive a majority of all the votes cast, there shall be held a second election for said seat of justice, on a day not less than twenty nor more than thirty days after the vote of the first election is counted and declared by the said board of county commissioners, which last day shall be fixed by the board of county commissioners, and they shall give notice of the same for at least ten days in the manner provided for the first election. At said second election the balloting for the seat of justice shall be confined to the two places having the highest number of votes at the first election.

The words "each elector being a taxpayer of said county" refer to the preceding word "electors," and hence the petition is sufficient when three-fifths of the qualified tax-paying electors are signers of the petition. State ex rel. Kaufman v. Martin, 31 Nev. 493, 496-500 (103 P. 840).

The fact that one may have failed to register for a special election does not disqualify him as a signer of the petition above required where he possesses the substantial qualifications and is a taxpayer and voter as indicated.

Persons who appear on the assessment roll as paying taxes only in a partnership capacity are taxpayers within the meaning of this section. State ex rel. Kaufman v. Martin, 32 Nev. 197 (106 P. 318-320).

1499. Registry agents to certify petition.

SEC. 4. Every petition for the purpose mentioned in section 1 of this act shall be accompanied by the certificate of the registry agent of the district where the persons signing such petition reside, showing that all the persons whose names are signed to said petition are qualified electors of said county, as appears by the registry list of said district, or the affidavits on file in his office of persons not registered at the last general or special election, but who are qualified electors of said county.

The determination of the question as to whether the signers were on the last assessment roll and as to whether they had taken the oath prescribed by law for the registration of electors, when that fact was certified by the registry agent, are ministerial acts, and mandamus will lie to compel the board to call an election, if the petition is filed by three-fifths of the taxpaying voters, as shown by the roll and registration certified, although the board has already acted and denied the petition. State ex rel. Kaufman v. Martin, 31 Nev. 493, 496, 499 (103 P. 840).

A petition for the removal of a county-seat which alleges every statutory requirement is not void because it also asks that an election be called to determine whether the county-seat shall be removed to a particular place. State ex rel. Kaufman v. Martin, 32 Nev. 197 (106 P. 318-320).

1500. Election, how conducted.

SEC. 5. The election provided for in this act shall be conducted in all respects as provided for by the general election laws of this state, and any person swearing or affirming falsely in taking an oath provided for in this act, shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and held subject to all the penalties attached by law to the commission of that crime.

SECTION 1. At the general election of the several counties in this state, in A. D. eighteen hundred and seventy, by the qualified electors of each county, a board of county commissioners, to consist of three members, shall be elected, to possess such qualifications and to have such powers as hereinafter provided; provided, that in any county where, at the last general election, there were polled four thousand or more votes, such board shall consist of five members. At the general election in A. D. eighteen hundred and seventy, and at such election held every two years thereafter there shall be elected in such county one commissioner to serve upon the board of county commissioners for the term of four years; and a term of four years shall be known, both in this act and for the purpose of the election of county commissioners, as the long term; and the other commissioner or commissioners, as the case may be, necessary to fill the board, shall, at said election, be elected to serve upon the board for the term of two years; provided, that in any county or counties which are or shall be under the provisions of this act entitled to a board consisting of five county commissioners, two of the commissioners shall be elected to serve upon the board for the long term. In any county wherein at the last or any future general election there were or shall be polled for the first time four thousand or more votes, the board shall be increased to five members by appointment of the governor, and such appointees shall hold their office until the first Monday of January following the then next general election; and at such next general election in such county or counties, five county commissioners shall be elected as provided in this section of this act. Any vacancy or vacancies occurring in any board of county commissioners shall be filled by appointment of the governor, and such appointee or appointees shall hold his or their offices until the first Monday of January following the then next general election, except as provided otherwise in this act. As amended, Stats. 1869, 92.

See secs. 283–284 (Constitution).

The words "last general election," mean the last general election preceding the time when the commissioners are required by law to assume the duties of their office. (Leonard, J., dissenting.) State ex rel. Copeland v. Woodbury, 17 Nev. 337, 341 (30 P. 1006).

Section 26, article 4 of the constitution

(sec. 284 ante) does not prevent the legislature, after the board has been once created, from increasing or decreasing the number of commissioners which shall constitute the board. State ex rel. Copeland v. Woodbury, 17 Nev. 337, 341–350, 353–359 (30 P. 1006).

1502. Qualifications—Terms of office—Eligibility—Vacancy.

SEC. 2. Said commissioners shall be qualified electors of their respective counties, and shall enter upon their duties on the first Monday of January succeeding their election, and shall hold their offices two or four years, as the case may be, as provided in this act; and the term of office of two years or four years, as the case may be, shall expire at twelve o'clock p. m. of the day preceding the first Monday in January following a general election. No county or township officer shall be eligible to the office of commissioner. On entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office, each commissioner, whether elected or appointed under the provisions of this act, shall take and subscribe to the oath of office as prescribed by law; provided, that in case such commissioner shall neglect or refuse, during the period of fifteen days from and after the first Monday of January succeeding his election, to take the oath of office as herein directed, his office shall be deemed vacant, and such vacancy shall be filled by appointment as provided in section 1 of this act; and, provided further, that the term of office of a person appointed to the office of county commissioners shall not by virtue of the appointment extend beyond the hour of twelve o'clock p. m. of the day preceding the first Monday of January next following a general election. As amended, Stats. 1869, 92.

SEC. 3. The meetings of the board of county commissioners shall be held at the county-seats of their respective counties on the first Monday of each and every calendar month; special meetings may be held at the county-seat for the transaction of business pertaining to the county whenever said meeting shall be authorized by the board by resolution duly adopted and entered upon its minutes at a regular meeting. The board shall also meet on the tenth day after each general election to canvass election returns. As amended, Stats. 1909, 217.

The board of county commissioners is not a court as courts are defined in the constitution (ante, sec. 316). Such bodies may lawfully meet and transact business on the first day of January. Brumfield v. Douglas Co., 2 Nev. 65.

Any meeting specially authorized by act of the legislature is valid irrespective of other provisions of the law regarding special meetings.

After a board has adjourned to a day certain it has no power to revoke such order and meet at an earlier day. State v. Manhattan S. M. Co., 4 Nev. 319, 330, 331, 335.

Any act of a board of county commissioners as such, between its regular meetings, is void where its records show that at the last regular meeting such meeting had been adjourned sine die and failed to show a compliance with the provisions of this act relating to special meetings. State ex rel. Beck v. Washoe Co., 22 Nev. 15, 17 (34 P. 1057).

1504. Special meetings—Notice—Business restricted.

SEC. 4. If, at any time after the final adjournment of a regular meeting, the business of the county shall require a meeting of the board, a special meeting of the same may be ordered by a majority of the board. The order shall be entered on the records of the board, and the clerk shall give at least five days' notice of such special meeting to any member of the board not joining in the order; and shall give notice for one week, by publication in a newspaper, if one be published in the county; if none, by notice posted on the court house door. The order shall specify the business to be performed, and no other shall be transacted at such special meeting.

See State v. Manhattan S. M. Co., under preceding section.

See State ex rel. Beck v. Washoe County, under sec. 3.

1505. Quorum—Clerk—Absence of chairman.

SEC. 5. A majority of the board shall form a quorum for the transaction of business, and all sessions of the board shall be public. They shall elect one of their number as chairman of the board, and the county clerk shall be clerk thereof. The clerk shall keep a full and complete record of all the proceedings of the board, together with a full and complete alphabetical index and page citation of and for said record and proceedings, and all such proceedings shall be entered upon such record. The record of each day's proceedings of said board shall be signed by the chairman and the clerk. In case the chairman shall be absent at any meeting of the board, all documents, records, or papers requiring the signature of the board shall be signed by the members present. As amended, Stats. 1909, 140.

If the authority of the board of county commissioners, acting under limited and special powers, to do a particular thing is questioned, their record must exhibit affirmatively all the facts necessary to give them authority to do such thing, otherwise the presumption is against their jurisdiction. State ex rel. Swift v. Ormsby Co., 6 Nev. 95.

Whenever the jurisdiction of the board of county commissioners depends upon certain facts to be ascertained and determined by it, its record should show that it acted upon the evidence presented and adjudged the facts to be sufficient. Johnson v. Eureka

Co., 12 Nev. 28; Godehaux v. Carpenter, 19 Nev. 415 (14 P. 140).

The record is the proper evidence of the official doings of the board. The board has the right to amend the record when sitting as a board of equalization so as to make it conform to the truth, and an amendment made by order of the board of commissioners after they had ceased to sit as a board of equalization was admissible in evidence to show the facts upon which the board of equalization acted in reducing an assessment. State v. C. P. R. Co., 17 Nev. 260, 270 (30 P. 887).

1506. Compensation of clerk.

SEC. 6. The clerk shall receive a compensation for his services of five dollars per day for each day actually employed; in no case to exceed one hundred dollars per annum in the aggregate, and no fee, or other compensation whatever, shall be allowed the clerk for any service connected with the proceedings or business of the board of county commissioners.

Provisions of above section suspended by acts fixing salaries of the several county clerks.

1507. Records kept at office of clerk.

SEC. 7. The books, records, and accounts of the board shall be kept at the office of the clerk of the board, and shall, during business hours, be open to public inspection free of charge.

Cited, State ex rel. N. T. G. & T. Co. v. Grimes, 29 Nev. 59.

1508. Powers and jurisdiction of board.

SEC. 8. The board of commissioners shall have power and jurisdiction in their respective counties:

First—To make orders respecting the property of the county in conformity with any law of this state, and to take care of and preserve such property.

Second—To examine, settle, and allow all accounts legally chargeable against the county, in the manner provided in this act; and to levy, for the purposes prescribed by law, such amount of taxes on the assessed value of real and personal property in the county as may be authorized by law; provided, the salary of the district judge need not be audited by the board, but the county auditor shall, on the first day of each quarter year, draw his warrant on the county treasurer in favor of the district judge, for the amount due such judge as salary for the quarter year preceding.

Third—To examine and audit the accounts of all officers, having the care, management, collection, or disbursement of any money belonging to the county or appropriated by law, or otherwise, for its use and benefit.

Fourth—To lay out, control, and manage public roads, turnpikes, ferries, and bridges within the county, in all cases where the law does not prohibit such jurisdiction, and to make such orders as may be necessary and requisite to carry its control and management into effect.

Fifth—To take care of and provide for the indigent sick of the county, in such a manner only as is or may be provided by law.

Sixth—To divide the county into townships and to change the divisions of the same, and to create new townships as the convenience of the county may require.

Seventh—To establish, change, and abolish election precincts, and to appoint inspectors and judges of elections.

Eighth—To control and manage the property, real and personal, belonging to the county, and to receive, by donation, any property for the use and benefit of the county.

Ninth—Lease or purchase any real or personal property, necessary for the use of the county; provided, no purchase of real property shall be made unless the value of the same be previously appraised and fixed by three disinterested persons, to be appointed for that purpose by the district judge, who shall be sworn to make a true appraisal thereof, according to the best of their knowledge and ability.

Tenth—To sell at public auction, at the court house of said county, after at least thirty days' previous public notice (in the same manner as required by law for the sale of like property on execution), and cause to be conveyed any property belonging to the county, appropriating the proceeds of such sale to the use of the same.

Eleventh—To cause to be erected and furnished, a court house, jail, and such other public buildings as may be necessary, and to keep the same in repair; provided, that the contract for building the court house, jail, and other buildings, be let out, after at least thirty days' previous public notice, as provided in subdivision ten of this section—in each case of a readiness to receive proposals therefor—to the lowest bidder, who will give good and sufficient security for the completion of any contract which he may make respecting the same. But no bid shall be accepted which the board may deem too high.

Twelfth—To control the prosecution or defense of all suits to which the county is a party; and to offer and allow rewards for the apprehension or conviction of defaulting or absconding county or township officers.

Thirteenth—To do and perform all such other acts and things as may be lawful and strictly necessary to the full discharge of the powers and jurisdiction conferred on the board. As amended, Stats. 1871, 47.

County commissioners can only exercise such powers as are specially granted, or as may be necessarily incidental for the purpose of carrying such powers into effect; and when the law prescribes the mode which they must pursue in the exercise of these powers, it excludes all other modes of procedure. Waitz v. Ormsby Co., 1 Nev. 370, 376, 377; State ex rel. Hess v. Washoe Co., 6 Nev. 104; State v. C. P. R. Co., 9 Nev. 79; Sadler v. Eureka Co., 15 Nev. 39, 41; Godechaux v. Carpenter, 19 Nev. 415 (14 P. 140); State ex rel. Beck v. Washoe Co., 22 Nev. 15 (34 P. 1057); Lyon Co. v. Ross, 24 Nev. 102, 109-113.

County commissioners have authority under subdivision 12 above to employ attorneys to protect the interests of the county in litigation affecting it and to bind their county by contracts for the payment of such attorney's fees. Ellis v. Washoe Co., 7 Nev. 291-293.

This section confers upon the board the power to employ counsel other than the district attorney, and as a consequence to ratify the act of an unauthorized agent in employing such counsel.

Facts amounting to a ratification recited.

Upon such ratification the county became bound to pay what the services were reasonably worth. Clarke v. Lyon County, 8 Nev. 182, 188.

The county commissioners have no power to compromise and settle suits instituted by the state for the collection of delinquent taxes.

The only authority giving county commissioners power to reduce or in any manner change taxes as assessed is vested in them as boards of equalization; and when acting in that capacity they must comply literally with the plain provisions of the statute. The county commissioners can neither release the property from the lien nor discharge the property owner from his obligation. State v. C. P. R. R., 9 Nev. 79, 89.

Clause 11 of above section cited, Evans v. Job, 8 Nev. 342.

It is the duty of the commissioners to provide an office, at the expense of the county for some of the county officers; but this duty rests to a great extent, in the discretion of the commissioners.

To hold a county liable for rent of an office, the officer must be one who is by law made the custodian of public records, to which the public are at all reasonable times entitled to access; or one who is by law required to keep his office open for the accommodation of the public and for the transaction of public business.

The officer must show that he demanded of the commissioners a suitable office and that they failed and refused to furnish it. Owen v. Nye County, 10 Nev. 338, 341.

Cited, Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 312.

A writ of certiorari will not be issued to review claims against a county which have been audited, allowed and paid.

The power of commissioners to allow accounts against the county is confined to those "legally chargeable," and a writ of certiorari will issue to review their action. State ex rel. Beck v. Washoe Co., 14 Nev. 66.

The commissioners in the construction of a court house, have the power without further advertisement, to contract for any alterations or changes in the original plans and specifications, provided the same, in the aggregate, do not amount to the sum of $500, but if further changes are ordered to be made, the commissioners must advertise for doing such work and provide for letting the same to the lowest bidder. Sadler v. Eureka Co., 15 Nev. 39, 41.

The legislature has no power by a special act to repeal the general law regulating county business, or dispense with its provisions in favor of a particular person, leaving it in force as to all others.

The fact that the board of commissioners of a county has no power under the general law to examine or allow any account against the county except such as is legally chargeable against it does not authorize the passage of a special law directing the allowance and payment of an account which could not be allowed under the general law. Williams v. Bidleman, 7 Nev. 68, 73.

The making of an order by a board of county commissioners whereby it is ordered that a firm of attorneys be employed in a certain litigation in which the county is interested, is not the exercise of judicial functions, and such order will not be reviewed on certiorari. (Bonnifield, J., dissenting.) State ex rel. Thompson v. Washoe Co., 23 Nev. 247, 254 (45 P. 529).

If a county obtains money or property of others without authority of law, it will be compelled to make restitution, upon the principle that an obligation rests on all persons, natural or artificial, to do justice. Humboldt Co. v. Lander, 24 Nev. 462 (56 P. 228).

Under subdivision 4 above, an engineer, authorized to supervise the repairs of a bridge, could not bind the county by requiring the contractor to perform work not called for by the contract. Lund v. Washoe Co., 31 Nev. 227, 233 (101 P. 550).

1509. To act on demands against county.

SEC. 9. Every demand against the county, except the salaries of the auditor and district judge or judges, shall be acted upon by the county commissioners, and allowed or rejected in order of presentation, and must, after having been approved by the board of county commissioners, before it can be paid, be presented to the county auditor to be allowed, who shall satisfy himself whether the money is legally due and remains unpaid, and whether the payment thereof from the treasury is authorized by law, and out of what fund. If he allow it, he shall indorse upon it, the word "allowed," with the name of the fund out of which it is payable, with the date of such allowance, and sign his name thereto, and draw his warrant on the county treasury for the amount allowed. No demand shall be approved, allowed, audited, or paid unless each several item, date, and value composing it be indorsed upon the same, by the order of the board of county commissioners, together with a reference to the law, order, contract, or authority by title, date, and section, authorizing the same.

Claims must be sworn to, sec. 1535.

Reallowance of unpaid claims, sec. 1536.

Claims allowed to be published, secs. 1541, 1542.

Auditor to number and register orders made by district judges for payment of money from county treasury, sec. 1583:

A juror's claim for fees on the certificate of the clerk should be audited like any other demand against the county. Thornburg v. Herman, 1 Nev. 477.

See Williams v. Biddleman, 7 Nev. 68, 73.

The legislature appropriated money to reimburse the counties for expenses of special election on constitutional amendments. A portion of such claims was disallowed by the board of examiners and suit was brought to recover the amount. The claims against the county were never submitted to the auditor and never paid by the county. Held, that since the county had never paid the claims nor allowed them so as to make them a legal charge it could not recover them from the state. Esméralda Co. v. State, 21 Nev. 195, 197, 27 P. 869.

Where a board of commissioners, without legal justification, refused to allow a claim based upon judgment regularly obtained against the county, mandamus is the proper remedy. State ex rel. Humboldt Co. v. Lander Co., 22 Nev. 71 (35 P. 300).

1510. Copy of order of allowance—Proceedings when auditor refuses to allow.

SEC. 10. The county auditor shall sign no warrant authorizing the payment of money by the treasurer (except for the salary of the auditor and district judge or judges), until a copy of the order of the board of county commissioners, allowing the amount, and ordering the payment thereof, together with the account, have been submitted to him, and his allowance indorsed on such order, unless the said auditor shall refuse to audit and allow the same, in which latter case the order shall be presented to the board of county commissioners, with the refusal of the auditor indorsed, and his reasons for such refusal; and should the board order the issuance of such warrant, by a unanimous vote of all the members elected or appointed, the county auditor shall immediately issue such warrants upon service upon him of a copy of such order of the board, certified to by the clerk of the board, that all the members elect voted for its passage; otherwise, the account shall be declared rejected, and no warrant shall thereupon issue. And if said auditor allow such account in part, a warrant shall only issue for such part, unless the board, by a similar unanimous vote, allow a greater sum. No warrant shall be drawn by the auditor on the county treasurer on any fund, unless the money be therein at the time to pay the same; and any warrant drawn contrary to this provision of this section shall be void for all purposes whatsoever.

Sec. 1, Stats. 1871, 56, conflicts with evident intention with secs. 9 to 12 of this act, and being the subsequent expression of legislative will, overrides them to the extent of creating an exception, in favor of jurors, to

See Esméralda Co. v. State, 21 Nev. 195, 197, 27 P. 869.

1511. Duties of auditor.

SEC. 11. The auditor shall number and keep a record of all demands allowed, showing the number, date, date of approval, amount, and name of the original holder, on what account allowed, and out of what fund payable. The county auditor is required to be constantly acquainted with the exact condition of the treasury, and every lawful demand upon it; and shall report to the board of county commissioners, at each regular meeting thereof, the condition of each fund in the treasury. He shall keep a complete set of books for the county, which shall be open to the inspection of the public, free of charge, during business hours, in which shall be set forth in a plain and businesslike manner every money transaction of the county, so that he can, at any time when requested, tell the state of each fund, where the money came from, to what fund it belonged, and how and for what purpose it was expended, and also the collection made, and the money paid into the treasury by each and every officer.

Cited, State ex rel. N. T. G. & T. Co. v. Grimes, 29 Nev. 59.

1512. Indebtedness deducted.

SEC. 12. No demand upon the treasury shall be approved by the board of county commissioners or allowed by the auditor in favor of any person or officer in any manner indebted to the county, without first deducting the amount of such indebtedness; nor to any person or officer having the collection, custody, or disbursement of public funds, unless his account has been duly presented, passed, approved, and allowed as required by law; nor to any officer who shall have neglected or refused to comply with any of the provisions of this or any other act regulating the duties of such officer, on being required, in writing, to comply therewith by any member of the board of county commissioners.

1513. Board of canvassers—District judge to canvass—Clerk to issue certificates—Application for recount.

SEC. 13. The board of county commissioners shall also act as a board of canvassers, and declare election returns, and cause a certificate of election to be given by their clerks to any person who shall be elected to any legislative, county, or township office within their county; provided, that when the election shall be held for legislators or county commissioners, the district judge or judges shall canvass and declare the election returns for such legislators or commissioners for which purpose all election returns shall be sealed and delivered according to law, to the county clerk, and by him opened in the presence of the district judge or judges, who shall declare the result as to legislators or county commissioners, and the clerk shall give to such persons elected as legislators or county commissioners a certificate of his election, and the board of county commissioners shall then canvass the returns as to other offices; and, provided further, that when said board of county commissioners shall have canvassed the vote for legislators, county and township officers, and it shall appear from such canvass that any legislator, county, or township officer voted for at such election has received a majority of ten votes, or less, in such case, upon the application of the defeated candidate for such office, setting forth, under oath, that he has reason to believe, and does believe, that a mistake or mistakes have occurred on the part of the inspector of election in any election precinct or precincts in said county sufficient to change the result of such election so far as said office is concerned, it shall then be the duty of said board of county commissioners to immediately proceed to recount the ballots for said office of any or all the precincts in said county wherein any mistake or mistakes are alleged to have occurred, and shall continue such count from day to day (Sundays excepted), until the votes of all the election precincts wherein any such mistake or mistakes are alleged to have occurred shall have been counted, and when said count is completed shall declare the result, and issue the certificate of election to the party entitled thereto, as determined by their said count, but they shall in no case be allowed to throw out any ballot upon any alleged legal defect, if from the face of such ballot it can, upon inspection, be ascertained for whom the elector intended to cast his ballot; and, provided further, that nothing herein contained shall prevent either party to said proceeding to contest the right to said office in the courts, in the manner now prescribed by law. As amended, Stats. 1877, 83; 1879, 118.

Under this section it was held, that the county commissioners did not become functi officio as a canvassing board on their determination of a canvass in the first instance, or on the delivery of the certificate of election to a legislator whose office was contested so as to deprive it of power to recount the votes in such contest.

The fact that the contestant of an election for the office of legislator had a remedy to contest such election before the legislature, did not preclude him from prosecuting his remedy by recount before the board of county commissioners. Wright v. Commissioners, 27 Nev. 33-38 (71 P. 145).

1514. May require new bonds of officers.

SEC. 14. The board of county commissioners shall, by an order to that effect entered upon the record, require new bonds of any county or township officer, with additional securities, whenever they deem the same necessary, and may require of all county or township officers, intrusted with the collection, management, safe keeping, or disbursement of public funds, a monthly report of all collections and disbursements made by them during the preceding month; and may at any time examine their books, accounts, and vouchers. They shall see that all the county and township officers intrusted with the collection, disbursement, safe keeping, or management of the public revenue, faithfully perform the duties imposed upon them by law, and shall cause them to be prosecuted for any delinquencies.

1515. To publish statement of finances.

SEC. 15. The boards of county commissioners shall, within sixty days after the passage of this act, ascertain the amount of the existing debt of their respective counties, and the amount and condition of all revenue and property belonging to the county, and cause a statement of the same to be made out and published; and quarterly thereafter, the board shall publish a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the three months next preceding, and the accounts allowed. Said publications shall be made by making one insertion of the statement in a newspaper published in the county, but if no newspaper be published in the county, then such publication shall be made by posting a copy of said statement at the court house door, and at two other public places in the county.

1516. Not to contract debts not authorized by law.

SEC. 16. The board of county commissioners shall not for any purpose contract debts or liabilities, except those expressly authorized by law, and whenever debts or liabilities have been created, which, added to the salaries of county officers and other estimated liabilities, fixed by law for the remainder of the year, shall equal the money on hand in the treasury at the time applicable to the payment of such salaries and said other fixed liabilities, then no allowance shall be made of any account, nor shall any expense be incurred other than salaries and fees and fixed liabilities, expressly authorized by law, during the remainder of said year. As amended, Stats. 1893, 120.

Commissioner cannot vote on contract which extends beyond his term. Sec. 1537.

1517. Salary—Proviso—Mileage.

SEC. 17. Each member of the board of county commissioners shall be entitled to receive for his services a sum not to exceed in the aggregate the sum of six hundred dollars per annum; provided, that in any county where at the last general election there were polled four thousand or more votes, such member of the board of county commissioners shall be entitled to receive for his services a sum not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars in the aggregate during one year; and, provided further, that in any county where at the last general election there were polled five thousand or more votes, each member of the board of county commissioners shall be entitled to a sum not to exceed in the aggregate during one year the sum of thirteen hundred and twenty dollars, and each member of the board of county commissioners shall receive twenty cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled in going to and returning from the county-seat to attend any session of said board; provided, that but one charge shall be made for going and returning from the residence of such commissioner at any one session of such board; and, provided further, that no commissioner shall be allowed any compensation for services by reason of his being on any committee appointed by the board, or for any cause other than as herein provided. As amended, Stats. 1869, 94; 1879, 125.

[Sec. 18 repealed, Stats. 1869, 92.]

The compensation of county commissioners is regulated by the provisions of the salary act (Stats. 1879, 133).

The provision allowing mileage in the former law was intended as a part of the compensation of commissioners for their services. The language of the salary act that the salaries fixed "shall be in full for all services," excludes the idea that the legislature intended to allow the former provision on that subject to stand. State ex rel. Scott v. Trousdale, 16 Nev. 357, 358.

1518. Board to fill vacancy in county and township offices.

SEC. 19. When a vacancy shall occur in any county or township office, except the office of county commissioner, the board of county commissioners shall appoint some suitable person, an elector of the county, to fill the vacancy until the next general election.

See sec. 1607, District Attorney, also sec. 2803.

The phrase "next general election," means the general election on alternate years, commencing with 1864, and has no reference to the election of 1865, which is in some respects to be held as a special election, interpolated on the general system of biennial election. State ex rel. Daggett v. Collins, 2 Nev. 351-354.

1519. Duty of district attorney.

SEC. 20. The district or prosecuting attorney, when not engaged in the district court, in the discharge of his official duties, shall attend the sittings of the board of county commissioners when engaged in auditing accounts and claims brought against the county, and in all cases shall oppose such accounts or claims as he may deem unjust, illegal, or extortionate.

1520. District attorney not to advocate claims.

SEC. 21. No district or prosecuting attorney, except for his own services, shall be allowed to present any claim, account, or demand for allowance against the county, or in any way to advocate the relief asked on a claim or demand made by another.

1521. Objections to claims made, how.

SEC. 22. Any person being a resident and taxpayer of the county may appear before and file with the board of county commissioners of the county wherein he resides written objections to the allowance of any claim or claims, demand or demands against the county. Such objections in writing shall properly describe the claims or demands objected to, and the board of county commissioners shall file the same and embody such objections in the record of their proceedings, and lay such claims or demands on the table for a definite period of time, not less than ten days, at the expiration of which time they may proceed to consider the claims or demands so objected to, together with the objections, unless proceedings have been instituted in a court of competent jurisdiction to determine the validity of such claims or demands. As amended, Stats. 1893, 121.

Any resident taxpayer has the right to oppose in a proper manner, the allowance of a claim against a county both before the board of county commissioners and in the courts.

The board has no jurisdiction to act after objections have been filed and proceedings instituted in the court, to determine the validity of a claim, and they have been notified thereof. State ex rel. Hayes v. Gallagher, 22 Nev. 80, 84, 87.

It was held that, since amendment of Stats. 1893, 120, to above section provided an adequate remedy, certiorari would not lie at the instance of a taxpayer to review the action of a board in entering into a contract for indexing certain county records. State ex rel. Murphy v. White Pine Co., 31 Nev. 113, 118, 119 (101 P. 104).

Where an act of the legislature authorizes the county commissioners to instruct the auditor to issue to the holder of the original a certificate in place of one that has been lost, the issuance of such certificate cannot be restrained on the ground that it is the creation of an unjust indebtedness against the county or an injury to taxpayers. Hayes v. Davis, 23 Nev. 318, 319 (46 P. 888).

1522. Commissioners shall not be interested in contracts.

SEC. 23. No member of the board of county commissioners shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any property purchased for the use of the county, or in any purchase or sale of property belonging to the county, nor in any contract made by the county for the erection of public buildings, the opening or improvement of roads, or the building of bridges, or for other purposes; provided, that the board may purchase supplies for the county, not to exceed thirty dollars, in the aggregate, in any one month, from one of their number, when not to do so would be a great inconvenience, but the member from whom said supplies are purchased shall not vote upon the allowance of said bill, and a violation of this act shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine of not less than one hundred dollars and not exceeding five hundred dollars, and shall be cause for removal from office. As amended, Stats. 1889, 35.

1523. When suit brought against county.

SEC. 24. No person shall sue a county in any case for any demand, unless he or she shall first present his or her claim or demand to the board of county commissioners and county auditor for allowance and approval, and if they fail or refuse to allow the same, or some part thereof, the party feeling aggrieved may sue the county; and if the party suing recover in the action more than the said board allowed, or offered to allow, said board and auditor shall allow the amount of said judgment and costs as a just claim against the county; but if the party suing shall not recover more than the board and auditor shall have offered to allow him or her, then costs shall be recovered against him or her by the county, and may be deducted from such demands.

Where the relief sought is not damages, but an injunction to prevent the commissioners from committing an unlawful act, as the opening of a road through plaintiff's land without having compensated him, and which, if opened, would result in damages, no demand need be made. Champion v. Sessions, 1 Nev. 478, 482.

The commissioners allowed the sheriff a certain amount for services as a jailer which he refused to accept. He brought suit for more than $300: Held, that under this section he was entitled to costs provided he recovered more than commissioners allowed, notwithstanding the fact that the county is an auditing of a claim within this section and it becomes the duty of the commissioners to allow it as an audited claim, unless some sufficient defense exists to the judgment. State ex rel. Humboldt Co. v. Blossom, 22 Nev. 71, 76, 77 (35 P. 300).

1524. Unaudited claims, when must be presented.

SEC. 25. All unaudited claims or accounts against any county in this state, shall be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county, duly authenticated, within six months from the time such claims or accounts become due or payable; provided, nothing contained in this section shall be so construed as to prevent the presentation and auditing of any claim now due against any county in this state, at any time within nine months from the passage of this act.

Where the expenses of a criminal trial have been properly audited in a county where the trial was had, it is unnecessary to have the same claims verified and presented as unaudited accounts to the commissioners of the county from which the cause was transferred (Beatty, J., dissenting). Washoe Co. v. Humboldt Co., 14 Nev. 124, 135, 137.

See State ex rel. Humboldt Co. v. Blossom, under sec. 24 of this act.

1525. Last section mandatory.

SEC. 26. No claim or account against any county in this state shall be audited, allowed, or paid by the board of county commissioners, or any other officer of said county, unless the provisions of the last preceding section are strictly complied with.

See Washoe Co. v. Humboldt Co., under sec. 25 of this act.

1526. Rejected claims.

SEC. 27. No claim which has once been presented and rejected, shall ever again be considered or allowed by the same, or any subsequently elected or appointed board of county commissioners of the same county.

1527. County seal.

SEC. 28. The seal of the county shall be the seal of the board of county commissioners.

1530. Must advertise for bids for contracts over certain amount—Proviso.

SECTION 1. In letting all contracts of any and every kind, character, and description whatever, where the contract in the aggregate exceeds the sum of five hundred dollars, the county commissioners shall advertise such contract or contracts to be let, stating the nature and character thereof—and when plans and specifications are to constitute part of such contract, it shall be stated in the notice where the same may be seen—in some newspaper published in their county, for the period of thirty days; in case the contract be for constructing any public building, then the advertisement shall be in that paper published in the county which is nearest the selected location for such building; and in case there shall be no newspaper published in their county, then by posting notices of the same in five of the most conspicuous and public places in their county for the same period of time. All such contracts shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, subject to the provisions of the twenty-third section [1522, supra] of the act to which this is supplementary; provided, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to contracts for the construction or repair of bridges, highways, streets or alleys where the same conflicts with other acts in relation to bridges, highways, streets or alleys.

Original act, Stats. 1867, 59, consisting of but one section, was superseded by above, and therefore omitted.

Under Stats. 1899, 60, to regulate allowance and payment of certain claims against counties, later repealed, it was held: Mandamus should not be granted to compel a technical compliance with the strict letter of the law, in disregard of its spirit.

Relator presented its claim against Washoe County under said act. The transaction upon which the claim was based had previously been judged fraudulent.

It appeared that there was no dispute as to the value of the property in question. It was held that the county was not bound under said act to submit the question of the value of the property to appraisers where there was no dispute as to its value nor to pay the award of appraiser appointed under its provisions regardless of any meritorious defense the county may have, and that the compelling of a county to pay a claim which had been adjudged fraudulent was not within its object. State ex rel. Office Specialty Co. v. Beck, 25 Nev. 105, 111, 112 (57 P. 935).

Under said act it was held that where the district judge heard the petition of a person claiming the benefit of the same, but refused to appoint the appraisers, mandamus will not issue to compel the judge to make such appointment, since the power to hear, involved the power to determine, and, the determination upon such hearing being a judicial act, it could not be reviewed by mandamus. Approved February 21, 1893. 33

1531. Commissioner districts.

1533. Terms of office.

1534. Electors.

1531. Commissioner districts.

SECTION 1. Whenever twenty per cent or more of the qualified electors of any county in this state shall petition the board of county commissioners of their county to that effect, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners of such county, on or before the first Monday in July preceding any general election, to divide the county into three districts to be known as "Commissioner Districts." Such division shall be made to conform to the established boundaries of election precincts or wards, and each and every election precinct or ward shall be wholly within one of the commissioner districts herein provided for. Each commissioner district shall embrace, as near as may be, one-third of the voting population of the county, to be determined by the vote cast at the last general election, and shall consist of adjoining precincts; provided, that in case not more than three election precincts or wards exist in the county, then each election precinct or ward shall constitute a commissioner district.

1532. Precincts designated.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners to cause to be published in some newspaper in the county, if there be one, and if not, then by the posting at the door of the court house, and one or more conspicuous places in each of the commissioner districts, a notice specifying the election precincts or wards embraced in each of the commissioner districts so established. Such notice shall be posted or published for a period not less than twenty days prior to each general election.

1533. Terms of office.

SEC. 3. The commissioner designated in the statute as the "long term" commissioner shall represent the district in which he resided when elected, and at the general election in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and every two years thereafter, there shall be elected a commissioner from each of the remaining districts, one for the "long term" and one for the "short term," as now provided by law.

1534. Electors.

SEC. 4. County commissioners shall be elected by the qualified electors of the county wherein they reside as other county officers are now elected. As amended, Stats. 1895, 39.

An Act to regulate the presentation and auditing of demands against counties.

Approved March 13, 1867, 115

1535. Accounts sworn to—Certificate—Fees.

SECTION 1. Accounts presented against a county must be sworn to by the claimant, or some one in his behalf, before the county auditor, or some other officer authorized by law to administer oaths; and at the request of the claimant, the auditor shall issue a certificate and deliver the same to the claimant, showing the amount allowed, and out of what fund payable. No more than one certificate shall be issued upon the same allowance, unless the same be plainly marked or shown on the face thereof to be a duplicate certificate. No fee shall be allowed or charged by the county auditor for any service as herein provided to be rendered by the auditor, except as follows: For swearing the claimant, when the demand exceeds fifty dollars, fifty cents; and for issuing the certificate, when the amount allowed exceeds said sum of fifty dollars, one dollar.

warrants thereon for such indebtedness. Webster v. Fish, 5 Nev. 190, 193.

SEC. 16. In case a vacancy should occur in the office of district attorney, by death, removal, or otherwise, the board of county commissioners shall appoint some suitable person to fill such vacancy, who shall remain in office during the balance of the unexpired term.

Although the statute makes no provision that a district attorney, whether elected or appointed, shall hold office until the qualification of a successor, yet he must do so under the general rule, because the presence of such an officer is necessary to the proper conduct of the public business. State v. Wells, 8 Nev. 105.

The provisions of this section that a vacancy in this office shall be filled by appointment for the "balance of the unexpired term" was repealed by Stats. 1866, 231, requiring all appointments to run "until the next general election." Idem.

A reasonable construction of said last-mentioned act does not contemplate that an appointment to fill a vacancy, occurring after an election but before the newly elected officers are to assume their duties, can keep out of his regular term a person legally chosen at such election. Idem.

1658. Authority of, in judicial districts.

SEC. 16. The sheriff in any county in any judicial district in this state, to which any other county or counties in such district may be attached for judicial purposes, shall have power and authority to serve all process, writs, orders, or other papers issued or directed to him by the district court of his county, or the clerk thereof, within any county or counties so attached, the same as if the said county or counties were not separate and distinct counties.

An attachment must be served by the sheriff of the county where the property is situated, except where one county is attached to another for judicial purposes.

A county is not "attached" to another for judicial purposes simply because it and another county or counties form one judicial district. To be so "attached" both counties must, under the law, be treated as one county in all matters pertaining to the courts. Sadler v. Tatti, 17 Nev. 429, 431, 432-435.

The sheriff is not authorized to serve a subpoena upon witnesses residing in any other county, except it is within the same judicial district. Washoe Co. v. Humboldt Co., 14 Nev. 123, 131.

No sheriff shall be liable for any damages for neglecting or refusing to serve any civil process, unless his legal fees (and an indemnifying bond in cases where he has doubts as to the ownership of the property sought to be levied upon or attached, if the same shall be required by him) are first tendered him.
